Preface

This Silesian History of the Sternitzke Family consists of three books combined in one digital document. A single digital document allows the reader to search for members of the family listed in all three books. There are more than fifty variations of the Sternitzke family name, so it is often easier to search for a known family name of a spouse or known location.

Book I is a translation of an unpublished manuscript regarding the Sternitzke family history in Trebnitz County of Silesia. It was based on research by Wilhelm Starnitzki before the Second World War, and it was edited by Karl Sille in 1969. It includes the earliest known history of the Sternitzke family in nine villages in Trebnitz County. It covers a period of about 400 years of family history, from the early 16th century to the early 19th century. I have added maps and other Sternitzke family histories related to those nine villages from other sources.

Book II is a translation of a booklet commemorating the 1709-1909 bicentennial of the Protestant Church at Pawellau in Trebnitz County - a church that was very important in our family history in Silesia. The original booklet was written by Pastor Ernst Conrad from Pawellau in 1909, and it was edited by Karl Sille in 1968. I again added additional family history related to the Sternitzke family from Pawellau that was found in other sources.

Book III is divided into three parts. The first part includes Sternitzke family histories found in many other resources. It includes family history from other locations in Trebnitz County, and histories from other parts of Silesia which resulted from the growth of the family and the movement of the family members.

The service of Sternitzke family members in the Prussian military led to the spread of the family to other parts of the Prussian Empire. Book III, Part 2 includes the histories of their known military service, and the spread of the family to Brandenburg, Posen, Pomerania and West Prussia. The second part also includes the histories of the family who emigrated to the United States.

Book III, Part 3 explores the theories of regarding the known variations of the Sternitzke name, and the meaning of the Sternitzke name. I also include possible origins of the Sternitzke family prior to the colonization of Trebnitz County.

There are two appendices at the end of Book III. Appendix A is a family tree that connects known family members discussed in Books I, II and III. The family tree does not include every family member listed in those books, because most of them cannot be linked to the family member listed in the nine villages in Trebnitz County. Appendix B is a table that cross references the names of locations listed in Books I, II and III, with known variations in spelling and other names of the locations including their current names.

Acknowledgments

My work on these books began in 1999, when Dr. Ulrich Görlitz of Bremen, Germany (another subscriber to the Familienforschung in Niederschlesien Internet mailing list) informed me that he had found an unpublished 89-page Sternitzke family history manuscript at the Martin Opitz Bibliothek (library) at Herne, Germany. The catalog details for the manuscript at that library are:

Starnitzki, Wilhelm: Familiengeschichte des Geschlechts Sternitzke aus dem Kreis Trebnitz/Schlesien. Bearbeitet von Karl Sille, 1969.

Catalog Nummer FK 173, Martin-Opitz-Bibliothek, Berliner Platz 5, D-44623, Herne.

Since 1999, I have been corresponding with Sören Starnitzky of Dresden, Germany. He contacted the Martin Opitz Bibliothek and obtained a photocopy of the Wilhelm Starnitzki manuscript for me. I have been translating and building on the manuscript since 1999, with kind assistance from many other members of the Familienforschung in Niederschlesien including: Wilfried Hübner, Solveig (née Starnitzky) Opitz, Margarete (née Runge) Reiter, Martin Kugler, Brian Wierzimok and Angelika Beck. I have also had the pleasure to consult with Michael Ziefle, the great-grandson of the Sternitzke family researcher: Wilhelm Starnitzki. Helmut Springer from Blomberg, Germany provided details about the family of his grandmother Emma (née Sternitzke) Springer from Striese and Mühnitz in Trebnitz County.

Wilfried Hübner not only provided assistance with translation, but has also provided an important central point of contact for family members on both sides of the Atlantic Ocean. Many additions to the known Sternitzke family tree have resulted because of contacts made through Herr Hübner's family history website.

Wilfried Hübner has published our earlier German/English version of the Wilhelm Starnitzki's manuscript on his Internet website www.huebner-row.de. That translation was a very rough translation, which we rushed through in 2008 (relying primarily on computer software for translation of the last quarter of the manuscript). At that time, we were dedicated to finishing a transcription and translation of another book that Mr. Hübner has also published on his website. That second book is a German and English copy of Pastor Ernst Conrad's Denkschrift zur 200-jährigen Jubelfeier der evangelischen Kirche zu Pawellau, Kirchenkreis Trebnitz am 6. Juli 1909 (Memorial Book for the Bicentennial Anniversary of the Protestant Church of Pawellau, in the Trebnitz Parish). An English translation of Pastor Conrad's book is presented in this history of the Sternitzke family as Book II.

A transcription of the Pawellau Church bicentennial book came to me from Martin Kugler at the end of 2006. Wilfried Hübner and I concentrated first on completing the Pawellau church book translation before the Wilhelm Starnitzki manuscript because we wanted to present a copy to the Pawellau church before their tricentennial in 2009. In October of 2008, my wife Colleen and I personally delivered copies of the transcribed and translated bicentennial memorial book to the priest at Pawellau church, and to Mr. Zbigniew Lubicz-Miszewski, the curator of the Muzeum Regionaine w Trzebnicy (the Regional Museum of the former Trebnitz County). Our copies of the book were only in German and English. We had hoped to find someone to help with adding a Polish translation before our trip to Pawellau, but ran out of time. This version of the Pawellau bicentennial book also includes additional information regarding the Sternitzke family members who lived at Pawellau, which was provided by their direct descendants: Richard A. Harrer (1948-2020) of Eagle Harbor (Michigan) and Julian Sternitzke (a civil engineer at Darmstadt, Germany).

I also received generous assistance, hospitality and guidance during my two trips to Silesia in 2008 and 2009 from Kazimierz Łamasz and his wife Jystyna, who live in the village that was named Gross Ujeschütz when the Sternitzke family lived there (and is now named Ujeździec Wielki). The Łamasz family lives just a short walk down a cobblestone lane from the house Gregor Sternitzke purchased in 1616. Many of the photographs shown in these books were taken during tours of the Trebnitz County villages while guided by Mr. Łamasz.

During our 2008 visit to Pawellau and Trebnitz, I had asked the local priest, the county museum director and members of the local historical association if a tricentennial celebration was planned for the Pawellau church in 2009. The idea had not occurred to anyone, but apparently my question got them thinking. Less than a year later, in June of 2009 I received an email from Mr. Lubicz-Miszewski, inviting me to the tricentennial celebration. The celebration was prompted by our 2008 visit and by the continuation of our research of the Pawellau church history by a local historian Mr. Marian Radzik from Prusic, who we had met during our visit at the Pawellau church. A week after I received the invitation, I was sitting in the Pawellau church observing the most beautiful church service I had ever seen (even though I could not understand a word). The little church was completely packed with local officials, villagers and Catholic priests. Mr. Radzik provided the photographs of that tricentennial celebration service that appear in this book.

Both the Pawellau church bicentennial book and Wilhelm Starnitzki's family history manuscript were originally transcribed by Karl Sille. Karl Hans Sille was born in Leipzig on the 19th of July in 1897, and he died on the 21st of April in 1993 at Bergisch Gladbach. He traced his family tree to the Silesian village Domnowitz in Trebnitz County, where members of the Sille and Sternitzke families were Scholzen (village mayors). See my discussion regarding the common Sille ancestors and the marriages between the Sille and Sternitzke families at the end of Book I, Chapter 9: Germanengrund (Domnowitz).

The late Gotthold Sternitzke (1919-2017) helped me locate Karl Sille's original documents and Gotthold shared his family tree, which was prepared for him by Karl Sille. In September of 2011, I visited the Herder Institut for Historical Research on East Central Europe in Marburg, Germany, to review the archived research files of Karl Sille. The Herder Institut holds Karl Sille's original research records and his completed genealogical monographs, including the histories of the Trebnitz County families: Labitzke, Mücke, Ruschig, Sille and Sternitzke. I thank Dr. Peter Wörster and the staff of the archives department at the Herder Institut for their kind assistance and warm hospitality during my visit.

Wilhelm Starnitzki (whose full name was Karl Friedrich Wilhelm Starnitzki) was born on the 19th of November in 1864 at Spahlitz, in Öls County, Silesia. In May of 1946, Wilhelm Starnitzki completed his manuscript, documenting his family history research in Silesia. He died in 1948. Karl Sille transcribed and edited Wilhelm Starnitzki's family history manuscript in 1969. Wilhelm Starnitzki's source documents, including copies of civil and church records (as mentioned by Karl Sille in his preface) may still exist, but my review of records of Karl Sille at the Herder Institut indicates Karl Sille referred to photocopies of articles from the Trebnitzer Kreiskalender (published in 1930, 1937 and 1940), which were articles written by Wilhelm Starnitzki regarding Trebnitz County village and church histories. Those articles matched the village and church histories presented in Wilhelm Starnitzki's Sternitzke family manuscript, and may have been the source documents mentioned by Karl Sille. I have been in contact with Michael Ziefle (a great-grandson of Wilhelm Starnitzki) and other Sternitzke family members in Germany, regarding those source documents. At this time, we do not know if additional source documents exist. I think those documents were all destroyed by the bombing of Heilbronn in 1944 (as was described by Wilhelm Starnitzki in his preface to Book I).

Another research paper regarding the Sternitzke family history was found in the LDS Family History Library online catalog in early 2013. A Sternitzky cousin in Colorado, Mrs. Melanie Tafaro, was able to locate a copy of the microfilm and sent me a hard copy for translation. That document is listed in the LDS catalog as: FHL INTL Film 1945536, file A1420 Sternicke aus Sternitzki Dietz aus Breslau. It turned out to be the family history research of the Christoph Sternicke-Sternitzki and Johann Friedrich Dietz families, written by Dr. Gustav Stein of Duisburg, Germany in 1935. Dr. Stein's grandparents were Andreas Benjamin Sternitzki (1784-1851) and Maria Sophie Henrietta Amalie Dietz (1796-1866), which explains why he was interested in the subject. He was only able to trace his Sternitzke family roots to Christoph Sternicke (with variations of the family name: Sternicky, Sternisky, Sternitzky and Sternitzki). Christoph Sternitzki was an 18th Century farmer and innkeeper at Machnitz in the Hochkirch parish of Trebnitz County. Dr. Stein was apparently unaware of Wilhelm Starnitzki's research that was occurring at the same time. While Wilhelm concentrated on the local church and civil records at Trebnitz and Öls, Gustav concentrated on the state and city archives at Breslau. One of the most interesting results of Dr. Stein's research was the shortage of information found in the Silesian State Archive and the Breslau City Archives regarding the Sternitzke family. Dr. Stein found that the family name was common in Silesia, but as far as he could determine his was the first documented research of the Sternitzke family history. The results of Dr. Stein's research are presented in Book III of this family history, in the chapters regarding Breslau, the Hochkirch parish and in the chapter regarding the origin of the Sternitzke name.

We are very fortunate that Wilhelm Starnitzki and Dr. Gustav Stein documented their searches at the Silesian State Archives, at the Breslau City Archives, at the local government record offices and at the local churches. Many (probably most) of the civil and church records at Breslau and Trebnitz were destroyed by the Russians during and after the Second World War.

Introduction

by James W. Sternitzky, Ph.D.

Silesia was (and still is) a region with mixed cultures and languages. Many of the names of the villages related to our family history changed two or more times during the hundreds of years the Sternitzke family lived in Silesia. In many cases, more than one version of a name existed (and are still in use) for the same location or family. The version and spelling of the names depended on the ethnicity and education of the person who recorded the names. Old handwritten documents were transcribed and reproduced in books related to Silesia. Those transcriptions are another source of variation and errors in the spelling of the family name.

One challenge in documenting the family history from many sources was the dealing with the variations in the spelling of village (and family) names over the approximately 500-year period of Sternitzke family history. The original Slavic names of villages and towns were sometimes written in a Latin form, and were later modified as German settlers populated Silesia. Or, in some cases the villages had two names: one for the Polish speakers and another for the German speakers. Family names also existed in Polish and German variations depending on the ethnicity of the recorder.

Latin was initially the official language for early records in Silesia (until it was replaced by German), resulting in Latin versions of the local Germanic and Slavic names of the people and places in our family history. Another challenge was to identify where the villages were located. When the German settlers first arrived in what became Trebnitz County (Kreis Trebnitz), the region was ruled by an ethnically Polish duke with an ethnically German wife. The villages were later under the control (or in some cases ownership) of the Catholic Church or the Dukes of Öls. The creation of administrative districts and counties came much later. Wilhelm Starnitzki identified the locations of the villages (important to our family history) according to the counties as they existed during his lifetime. But the counties did not exist during the early part of our family history, and in later years the boundaries were sometimes revised. For the sake of continuity, all three books are based on the county borders that were in place just prior to 1945, during the time Wilhelm Starnitzki and Pastor Ernst Conrad wrote their books.

A major renaming project took place in 1936 under the German Third Reich, which resulted in many village names to be renamed to sound more Germanic. An interesting letterhead on a letter dated the 17th of April in 1942, from Pastor Johannes Fitzer to Karl Sille (retrieved from the Karl Sille documents at the Herder Institute in archive file DSHI-100-Sille-16), identified both the post-1936 name Friedrichskirch and the pre-1936 name Kainowe for the Evangelical parish. The listing of two names for this village in 1942 was not for the benefit of the speakers of two languages (German and Polish); it was for historical continuity within the German community.

After World War II, the region our family lived in was transferred to Poland, the Germans were evicted and the names of the villages were again changed to Polish versions of the village names prior to 1936. It was interesting to me that although the spelling of some of the village names changed after World War II, they sound the same, or similar to how their German names were pronounced in German. For example, during our 2008 trip to Silesia, I received directions to the village Pawellau over the telephone and the Polish names for the nearby villages sounded just like the German pronunciations of the names on Karl Sille's map from before 1945. In general, my wife and I easily toured the countryside using German topographical maps that were produced before the Second World War, because the pre-1936 German names sound similar to the current names in Polish. Also, the roads, villages and the buildings that were not destroyed by the Soviets have changed little from the years our family lived there. Many of the villages still have cobblestone roads.

The author Wilhelm Starnitzki or the editor (Karl Sille) of the original manuscript included a table of village names in their various forms up to World War II, which is useful to the reader and the researcher who wishes to continue Wilhelm's work. I have expanded the original table to include the locations mentioned in all three books, and therefore placed that table at the end of Book III. My addition of the current Polish names of the villages to the original table is useful for searching for current maps, news and photographs of those villages via the Internet.

I have added notes, photographs, old maps and modern maps throughout all three books to help the reader picture where our family lived. I have also added details regarding the references identified by Wilhelm Starnitzki and Pastor Ernst Conrad, to make it easier to locate and download the original references from the Internet. This book is intended as a tool for future researchers, so rather than hide my comments and sources at the end of each chapter (or even worse at the end of the book – a practice that makes no sense to me) I have placed them within the text just below their related topics. My notes are indented, in smaller font and identified with my initials – JWS, to distinguish my notes from the translation of the original text.

Format of Foreign Words, Occupations, Names of People and Names of Locations

Wilhelm Starnitzki used the Sternitzke spelling as the standard to represent the family in general which existed in many spelling variations over the last 500 years. I have continued that practice when referring to family in general, particularly when discussing known members of the family from Trebnitz County. Variations of Sternitzke are underlined to show that they are not typographical errors made by me. That practice became inaccurate when describing the families in Upper Silesia, Bohemia, Moravia and Austria - where the name Czernitzky better represents the variations found in those regions. The Sternitzke and the Czernitzky family groups may be related, because during its long history Silesia was part of Bohemia and then Austria, but that is discussed in the third book.

I used specific formats for recording the occupations, status, surnames, forenames and the names of locations. In general, the words in italics are foreign words such as occupations or indicators of social status. A few examples are: Müller (miller), Fischer (fisher), Kretschmer (innkeeper), Bauer (farmer) and Häusler (an agricultural day worker and homeowner). Many German surnames are identical to occupational or status words. The names of people are shown in bold type. The names of locations are written in normal font without underlines.

Here is a good example involving the occupation Kretschmer and the surname Kretschmer. The Kretschmer (innkeeper) Maria Elisabeth Kretschmer from Bürgwitz was one of the baptism sponsors for Ernst Wilhelm Sternitzke in 1840.

Here are two unrelated examples involving a location and an identical surname. In these examples the city named Auras in Wohlau County is shown differently than the Auras family surname. Bertha Johanna (née Landmann) Sternitzke and her husband, the Schumachermeister (master shoemaker) Sternitzke were residents of Auras in 1885. Augusta Emma Marie Auras was born at Breslau on the 22nd of August in 1889. Her birth record listed her parents as the Bahnarbeiter (railroad laborer) Joseph Auras and his wife Anna (née Stanetzky) Auras. Other locations with names identical to surnames found in our family history include: Bartsch, Striese and Tschernitzke!

The Stanetzky surname in the example above is underlined to show that it is not a typographical error made by me in transcribing the record. It was a spelling variation used by some members of the Sternitzke family. The format for showing full forenames is best shown by the name of Karl Friedrich Wilhelm Starnitzki (1864-1948) who wrote the manuscript I translated as the foundation of Book I. The underlined middle name was his Rufname, the name that he used on legal records such as birth records, marriage records and death records. In his case, he used his third forename as his Rufname and he signed records as Wilhelm Starnitzki. The Rufname was sometimes selected by the child's parents, and it was indicated on the birth record by underlining the Rufname. The Rufname was not always the third forename. Some people used the first or second forename as their legal Rufname, such as Christian Gottlieb Sterniske, Sternitzke (c.1800-after 1856) and Hermann Reinhold Paul Starnitzki (1865-1938). All of a person's forenames were usually included on the first page of their marriage record. The Rufname was usually identified from the person's signature on the second page of the marriage record. In some cases, the individual signed the second page with all of their forenames.

I have left many of the words and phrases in the text as written in their original language (Latin, Polish or German) and have indicated them in the italic font, and include their translations. The German words for occupations, positions of office and property descriptions have complex meanings that are described in my translation of Wilhelm's narrative and in my notes. Because this volume is intended for readers of the English language, I have tried to repeat the translations of foreign words often rather than expect the reader to memorize the translations. Every rule has exceptions. In this case, I have not translated the small common German words used in the names of cities, such as Frankfurt am Main or Frankfurt an der Oder where their locations on specific rivers identify the cities. I have also used the German word bei (near), to indicate nearby cities, to help identify villages with the same or similar names: such as Zschernitzsch bei Altenburg and Zschernitzsch bei Schmölln.

The German words Kreis and Stift are two words that I should discuss here, for different reasons. Both words appear frequently in the original document, but were treated differently by me. The word Kreis is translated by some people as "county", but other people translate it as "district". A Kreis is about the size of a county in the United States, and has the administrative function equivalent to a county. I have used the word “county” as much as possible in my translations. The only real difficulty arises when the word Stiftkreis is used. The German word Stift means a religious foundation or business unit of a church organization. During the Middle Ages, the Catholic church foundations (business units within the church) owned, rented, bought and sold land on a scale that matches the large corporations of today. I thought it was important to continue using the word Stift as it appeared in the text, and to explain it again when it appeared in compound words such as Stiftsdörfern (villages owned by the church foundation). The word Stiftkreis implies an administrative unit, similar to a parish, but different because a Stiftkreis included the properties (villages, manufacturing sites, breweries, mills, equipment and agricultural land) owned and operated to support the church organization. Many farmers and their families were renters of the land they worked for the church, and a portion of their produce was paid to the local church as rent. This business arrangement resulted in conflicts between the feudal lord of the region and the Stift. In our family’s case, these conflicts were between the Protestant Princes of Öls and the Catholic Church. The books by Wilhelm Starnitzki and Pastor Ernst Conrad describe the history of those conflicts.

Regarding Religions

When I began translating the Wilhelm Starnitzki and Pastor Conrad books, I started using the word Protestant as the translation of the German word evangelisch. Technically, that translation is correct but I think it is misleading because it may have included members of the evangelisch-lutherisch (Lutheran) and the evangelisch-revormiert (Reformed) churches. It was also used as a shortening of an administrative grouping for the Protestant denominations called the Evangelische Kirche in den Königlich-Preußischen Landen (Evangelical Church in the Royal Prussian Lands). I spent about five years reviewing thousands of Breslau birth, marriage and death records. During that time, I noticed only a few cases where a person’s religion was listed as reformiert (Reformed) or altlutherisch (Old Lutheran). I believe the word evangelisch was used in civil records to include all of the Protestant faiths, to simplify the record keeping. I also found one case where a record indicated a person’s religion as altcatholisch (Old Catholic). The topic is very interesting and complicated. In the end, I guess the civil servants made the correct choice in using evangelisch to describe the Protestants.

The Sternitzke family history began before the Reformation, at a time when all our family members were Catholics. After the Reformation, most of the Sternitzke family became Protestants, but some members of the family remained Catholic. Inter marriages between the Protestants and the Catholics was not unusual in the Sternitzke family history. There was also a marriage between a Protestant (Erich Bertold Sternitzke) and a Jewish girl (Johanna Heinrich). See Book III: Village of Carlowitz in Breslau County, Erich Bertold Sternitzke, 1896 to 1935 City of Breslau, 1927 to 1934 Carlowitz.

Sternitzke Family Tree

A Sternitzke family tree are presented in an appendix at the end of Book III. The family tree only includes the family members whose relationship to the earliest family members from Luzine or Zantkau can be directly established from civil or church records, or indirectly from property transfer records. There are many Sternitzke family groups (in all three books) whose relationship to the original Sternitzke family cannot be established at this time.

After many years of research, I am still uncertain about the origin of the Sternitzke family. Book III, Chapter 23 includes my theory regarding the possible locations of the family prior to the 16th Century. My best guess is that the family name was originally similar to Tschernitzke, which meant “a man from the village Tschernitz”. There are many villages in that part of Europe with historic names similar to Tschernitz. The village that I think is the most likely source of our family name is now named Tschernske. It is located in Görlitz County of Saxony, about twenty miles northeast of the city Bautzen and about twenty miles northwest of the city Görlitz. It is located very close to the route probably taken by the German settlers from Naumburg to Trebnitz County in 1215 and 1231. A book from 1833 identified that village as Tschernitzke.

There have been many plagues, fires, floods and wars in Silesia over the last five centuries, which resulted in the destruction of many families and their histories. We are fortunate that our family survived, and we are able to lament the loss of the records of our history.

1969 Preface by Karl Sille

A long search of genealogical essays related to Silesian places and family histories resulted in the finding of this research essay from a native Silesian researcher named Wilhelm Starnitzki of Heilbronn. I owe a friendly debt of gratitude to Mr. Robert Starnitzki, a retired member of the Stuttgart Board of Directors, and son of the author (who died in 1948), for loaning me these documents as they were preserved.

Originally, I only hoped to find therein messages concerning my ancestors originating from the same home county [Trebnitz], but then I soon detected the unique value of this extensive collection of documented texts from the 16th to 18th centuries, and their importance for historical analysis.

Therefore, I decided to adhere to the original concept of the “Family History of the House of Sternitzke”, though the original is only partly typewritten by machine, and partly handwritten in German writing (in modern script) with many later additions. In one case I needed to rearrange some paragraphs chronologically.

Additionally, I rearranged the list titled “Stammbaum” (which was defined by the author as a “family tree”) to represent it in order by generations, with modern numbering as is used today in genealogy. I did not find a family tree or an appropriate master list, which would have contained all determined descendants of the master father arranged according to generations. However, I still intend to prepare such a list.

In addition, there is a special paragraph of “family history”, a useful document that is an “Ancestor List” arranged alphabetically by the first names of 267 people.

This book is similar to an ancestor list, an “ancestor directory” with 330 ancestors of the son Robert, arranged in a modern format. This study does not contain any documents, but a number of booklets with handwritten copies from court records, land registries and home mortgages (and some photocopies), as well as church books, still exist (a cultural treasure). Unfortunately, a portion of these booklets was destroyed by the bomb attack on Heilbronn in December of 1944. It would be valuable to have copies of a “document book” made accessible.

The purpose of publishing this edition is to preserve copies of the author’s family history at the “Homeland Archive of Trebnitz County” in Goslar, and in the “Library of the German East” at Herne, meeting the intention of the author and serving as a monument of his research.

1946 Preface by Wilhelm Starnitzki

This manuscript was available for printing for a long time. But interruptions occurred again and again to prevent the printing (the immense and long-lasting disruptions of the World War from 1939 to 1945). My residence of many years at Heilbronn on the Neckar River barely survived a bomb attack on 4 December 1944. I lost almost my whole property. Also more importantly, a part of the family documents, as well as valuable special notes collected through the years, reports from official printing offices, and historically valuable prints and books were unfortunately destroyed by the flames.

I was absent at the time of the disaster at Heilbronn. The kind-hearted rescue efforts by my neighbors preserved a large section of my earlier research notes which were necessary for me to write my family history. Acknowledgment is deserved by the Utz family, whom I have to thank for their assistance after the deplorable and extraordinary losses I suffered due to the bombing.

I searched for and found with my wife (our sons were ex-servicemen in a prison camp) in the County of Schwäbisch Hall, where she was with good friends in a refugee camp.

Whether and when the available work can be made accessible for the sake of our kinship depends on the availability of materials and the other peculiarities of our current economic conditions.

1946 Introduction by Wilhelm Starnitzki

One year after the other each fall into the abyss of time. Constantly, like the hand of a clock, the time hurries to eternity. But the forests always rush from one century into the next one with the same mysterious song. And with the passage of the years for us humans, also the line of ancestors which bind each individual to the past, stretches. More importantly than that, as Gustav Freitag said: the lights and shadows which the individual overcomes are from the hereditary factors of his ancestors, which he will leave on to his descendants. But with that obligation which the past puts on us, also the liberty and creative strength of the grandchild grow wonderfully at the same time.

The family was located and is still located - also in our presently strange times - at the focal point of community perception and concern. By the family everyone is rooted in the past of his people, and in it we live for the future. From this realization not only the desire, but also duty arises for each individual for the study of his descent and ancestors. Besides it was also always attractive to perceive the community from the aspect of actual blood relationships.

So, I would like to try with available resources to give a sufficient picture of the origin, characteristics and propagation of my family, based on documents I have found during many years of research. On the basis of these written witnesses of past centuries I could make interesting statements.

The first to be examined were the church books of the various Protestant parishes of Trebnitz County located near the homesteads of the Sternitzke family's ancestors. The oldest well known applicable homesteads, at the beginning of my research in the year 1900, were the places: Gross Hammer, Gross Ujeschütz, Klein Ujeschütz and Domnowitz (known today as Germanengrund). My research began with the Protestant parish of Pawellau (Paulskirch), which was responsible for the municipalities Kainowe (Friedrichskirch) and Gross Hammer. The place names have, like many others in Silesia at the end of 1936, received new designations (set in parenthesis). See also the discussion "Alterations of Place Names in Trebnitz County" in the appendix!

Note by JWS: I have moved the appendix mentioned by Herr Starnitzki to the end of Book III of this family history, and added locations identified in all three books.

Soon however, the Catholic parish of Schawoine (Blüchertal) also came into consideration, because the baptism and marriage books of the Protestant church at Schlottau and its daughter church at the town of Polnisch Hammer (Gross Hammer) from 1675 to 1707 were located there.

Concerning the section called "Church Books"; I always found support by the clergymen (now unfortunately deceased) whom I contacted initially by correspondence and later during my personal on the spot research in the church books. It is important for me to emphasize here my gratitude for the support I received from Pastors Schmitt and Fitzer in Friedrichskirch, Dubbe and Feierabend in Gross Hammer, Hippe in Schlottau, Malich in Blüchertal, Geppert and Bernhard in Paulskirch, as well as Archpriest Flassig in Blüchertal.

The church books were not the only productive research sources, but official documents were also productive. In August of 1928, with the permission of the supervisory judge in the court office at Trebnitz, it was possible for me to examine the land register records of the Trebnitz rural communities. From examining those public records, and from those later at the Prussian State Archives in Breslau, I found many documents describing the selling and transfers of properties and possessions.

A thorough family research is not conceivable without the knowledge of local history. Therefore, a family history would not be complete, if it only included the personal conditions of the family members, ignoring a view of events over the centuries, and the family's place in geographical, political, historical and church matters. Knowing all these circumstances is necessary to complete the overall view. Therefore, I have included short descriptions of those districts and localities which I have found to be the principal homesteads of our family. With the general and local historical remarks, I include a special paragraph dedicated to the church records and the relevant church conditions that were so important for the research, as I could determine from historical literature related to the churches.

The section called "Form and Meaning of the Name" is a result of my detailed research, but it is only to be considered as my personal opinion as to the interpretation of the name. I leave it to my descendants to continue the research in this regard and to test my results and conclusions.

Thus, I transfer only this attempt of a family history to faithful hands, my sons Wilhelm and Robert. I hope and wish that this often interrupted but again and again continued work, created by me under laborious research, whose completion will probably not be granted to me because of my age, will be a legacy and a family monument appreciated and held in honors.

Existing circumstances orders us to think here also of honoring family members who sacrificed their lives in the wars of the modern times for the public. In reverence I thank those family members who are convalescents, in the name of our family community for their loyalty and devotion, and I suggest a holy obligation also exists towards all the widows and orphans, who are in mourning because of the war.

Notes by JWS:

Reverend Richard Hippe was born on the 2nd of April in 1871. He was ordained in 1897 and became the Protestant minister at Schlottau in Trebnitz County. In 1911, he was the minister at Paschkerwitz (also in Trebnitz County). Reverend Hippe retired in 1934.

Dr. Johannes Gottfried Fitzer was the minister at the Protestant church in Kainowe (Friedrichskirch) from 1934 to 1945. He was born at Gross Bresa (near Breslau) in 1903. After leaving Silesia in 1945, he became a professor of New Testament Science at the University of Vienna in 1950. Professor Dr. Fitzer died in 1997, in Winklern/Mölitäl (Kärnten), Austria.

Chapter 1

Prehistory of the Home of Our Ancestors

The special interest in the history of our ancestors brings us to looking backwards in time. Where historical and official statements (and finally also legends) fade into darkness, research using the common spade has provided information as common as if it occurred in recent decades, in ways that would have been considered impossible in former times.

Silesia is officially considered one of the best investigated landscapes in the area of artifacts preserved in the ground. Therefore, I include some details concerning the settlement of the Trebnitz area during prehistoric times, because they have special meaning for my family history.

The historical details are drawn from historical artifacts mentioned in various publications from the Silesian State Office for the Preservation of Prehistoric Artifacts.

From what we know about the inhabitants of Silesia during the Bronze Age (2000 to 1000 BC) they developed from a mixture of European peoples from all directions during the Upper Stone Age (5000 to 2000 BC). There are two cultural sites near the Bartsch River in the Trebnitz district where small flint tools were discovered. The flint culture artifacts found in Silesia were produced by people who migrated through there from 6000 to 8000 BC.

The Middle Bronze Age (around 1500 BC) is among other things characterized by the transition to cremation burials. After they were burned on a funeral pyre, the remains of the dead one was buried in bronze urns; small containers, like cups with handles and a cover, and richly decorated with jewelry. Such cremation cemeteries were found at many sites in the Trebnitz area, such as at Hünern, Gross Krutschen, and Raschwitz. The research collection of the State Office for Preservation of Prehistoric Monuments in Breslau includes over 20,000 Bronze Age cremation containers from this area.

The finds prove for a fact which groups of peoples lived at certain places, at certain times. From the dates and people in each case, it is possible to draw conclusions about the political conditions during prehistoric times.

The results of the research based on the prehistoric artifacts prove that since the later Stone Age (in the third millennium BC), Silesia was inhabited first by Nordic, and then by Indio-Germanic people; and starting from 200 BC it was a Germanic territory except for a short period of Slavic rule.

Around the year 100 BC the Vandals moved into Silesia from the area of the western Baltic Sea. Early Vandal burial urns have been found at Pawellau, in Trebnitz County, and a grave from the first century AD has been found at Brietzen, also in Trebnitz County.

Note by JWS: Brietzen is now named Brzyków, Poland. It had a population of 206 in 1938.

The Vandals reached quite an amazing cultural height, exceeding their reputation. In the region of our family homesteads there are many graves from the Vandal settlement of Silesia (from 100 to 400 AD). Excavations in August of 1934 resulted in finding other interesting artifacts from the older Bronze Age; including flint artifacts, small tools, blades and scrapers. And other flint artifacts were found that originate from the Middle Stone Age (about 5000 BC).

Since the early Germanic colonization of the area is proven by numerous artifacts in Trebnitz County, it is also proven that the Germans populated the Silesian area and Trebnitz County 1000 years before the Slavs. It is thereby proven furthermore that East Germany does not belong to the homeland of Poland, but that the Slavs settled in Silesia only after the German migration.

In the magazine of the Silesian Historical Society (Volume 65, 1931, page 16) Mr. Schimke, the Inspector of Schools determined that it can be proven that of the 151 municipalities in Trebnitz County, 105 municipalities were settled by Germans before Poland ruled the area. Chapter 2

Church Books and General Church Conditions in Trebnitz County

I have arranged the family registers of our family, containing all ascertainable public records, personal circumstances, and property ownerships based on communities. These registers form an important part of our history.

It is natural that this collection of family names and groups of families also became extensive because of the length of time covered, so that not all carriers of our name who lived in the region could be included here.

There are two reasons why the registers are incomplete today; not all church files of Trebnitz County and the neighboring area have been fully researched for the occurrence of our name, and also because the church books themselves are incomplete.

To a certain extent, research is not possible further back than the year 1675. In Paulskirch, an old homestead of our family, the baptism, marriage and funeral registers only begin in the year 1687. Unfortunately, in Paulskirch and in Gross Hammer the Seven Years War also had a dire effect on church conditions including the church record keeping.

At Paulskirch, Pastor Conrad reported in his Memorandum for the 200-year-old Anniversary of the Protestant Church at Pawellau on the 6th of July 1909: the baptismal registers for the years 1738 to 1762 and 1765 had been destroyed by the Russians.

I was informed later by Pastor Bernhard in Paulskirch that the missing baptismal registers for the years 1751 to 1759 were found in 1937 among other old documents.

During the Seven Years War the church in Gross Hammer must not have been usable for any reason by the members of the community, because the church activities are missing in the parish archive books for that time and until 1765.

The Seven Years War (also called the Third Silesian War) lasted in Europe from 1756 to 1763. Prussia and Britain fought against Austria, Saxony, Sweden, Russia and France. It followed the First Silesian War (1740 to 1742) and the Second Silesia War (1744 to 1745), which had resulted in Prussia taking Silesia from Austria. The Seven Years War was Austria's unsuccessful attempt to reclaim Silesia from Prussia. Hauptmann (Captain) Georg Sternitzky served in the Austrian Army from 1741 until his death on the 7th of September 1757, as a Captain in the 19th Line Infantry Regiment. He was killed at the Battle of Moys, at Görlitz against the Prussians. He had previously commanded the 1st Grenadier Company. Before the Battle of Görlitz, he fought in the following battles: 1741 Losenstein; 1742 Linz, Caslau, Prague; 1743 Ingolstadt; 1745 Bassignana; 1746 Rottofreddo, Var-Flusses, Genus; 1747 Castellane, Campiano; 1748 Brugnato;

On the other hand, according to my research for the years 1758 - 1765, I found that five residents of Briesche, who were members of our family, were baptized in Schlottau though they normally attended the church in Gross Hammer. Only one wedding was recorded during that time, and funerals were attended by the pastor at Schlottau. All church functions for our family from Gross Hammer were transacted at Schlottau.

Church conditions in our district during the time of the Reformation deserve special mention. The reformation had gained a foothold in Silesia in a relatively short time. A Protestant church oversight body was established in the Principality of Öls.

In large sections of Trebnitz County, ministers and municipalities soon subscribed to the new teachings. As Berg explained: the Stiftsdörfern [villages owned by a Catholic Church foundation] within the principality had the right to appeal to their duke. Violent repression by the Roman Catholic Church occurred at certain towns in Trebnitz County, such as Kapsdorf, Schimmerau and Zirkwitz and in the City of Trebnitz.

Notes by JWS:

A Stift was a Christian foundation or institution that included a convent, monastery, seminary, school or home for the elderly. Land was granted or donated to the Stift and farmed by the local villagers who paid rent to the Stift with harvested crops, products and services. The Trebnitz Stift included a convent. A list of the villages owned by the Trebnitz Stift is on pages 94-95 of K.A. Schmidt's Geschichte des Klosterstiftes Trebnitz. Oppeln: Gratz, Barth & Comp., 1853.

There were several cases of rebellion (riots and refusal to pay tithes) by the Silesian citizens against the Catholic Church during this period, including at the villages where the Sternitzke family lived:

- at Groß Krauschen in 1535,
- at Glogau against the Klarissen Cloister in 1545, and
- at Frauenwaldau, Schlottau, Luzine, Groß Grunau and Zantkau against the Trebnitz Cloister Convent in 1563.

The Religious Peace of Augsburg in 1555 brought official acknowledgment of the new teachings and equal rights. But it would soon turn out differently. The storm of the Counter-Reformation had begun.

Early under Emperor Rudolf II (1575-1612), whose reign is defined by historians (not without reason) as the gloomiest time of German life, the Protestant Church of Silesia suffered interventions whose purpose was to reduce or completely suppress the freedoms of the Protestant religion by force. This was how it was at Sagan, Hundsfield, Breslau, Neisse and other places.

Again, it seemed, as if the state of affairs would turn out nevertheless in favor of the Protestants. In 1609, the emperor found himself forced to print the so-called Letter of Majesty establishing conditions first for the Bohemians, and then also for the Silesians. Through that gracious act the Protestants received the benefit of religious freedom, and permission to establish churches and schools.

But soon the earlier acts of violence were repeated. Emperor Matthias, who followed his brother Rudolf II's reign in 1612, completely removed the concessions granted by the 1609 Letter of Majesty in 1618. This act led to the Thirty Years' War, that period in German history which was characterized by boundless misery, mass murder and finally the decimation of the inhabitants for all times. The years 1653 and 1654 saw the closing of 656 Protestant churches in Silesia.

In the course of the following decades in the Principality of Öls, eleven communities were affected by the closing of their churches. Eight churches were allowed to remain open in Trebnitz County. Those churches were in Friedrichskirch, Lossen, Luzine, Paulskirch, Gross Hammer, Blüchertal, the city of Trebnitz, and in the community of Schlottau.

Notes by JWS:

Many Silesian villages were renamed in 1937 and again after World War II. Friedrichskirch is the same village as Kainowe. Paulskirch is the same village as Pawellau. Gross Hammer is the same village as Polnisch Hammer. Blüchertal is the same village as Schawoine. The village names Wilhelm Starnitzki used on this page were the 1937 to 1945 versions.

First, I would like to select one of these eight communities already mentioned - Gross Hammer, as the church of this community provided baptism, marriage and funeral services for the bearers of our name. In the year 1671, it was deprived of its Protestant administration and was transferred to the Catholics. The convention between Karl XII of Sweden and Emperor Josef I on 22 August 1707, as part of the concessions of the Peace of Westphalia, solemnly acknowledged Protestantism in Silesia and returned some of the churches that had been taken away, including the church at Gross Hammer.

Pastor Conrad contain remarkable insight, essentially covering the same question I discussed in 1901 with Pastor Hippe in Schlottau (mentioned above) in an exchange of letters regarding the ancestor born in Briesche in 1705. In his letter he wrote:

”Where could George Sterniske have been baptized? I assume it was in Schlottau, although the church in Schlottau was in Catholic hands from 1671 to 1707. I examined the church book from Luzine, from that time of the transfer of churches in the Protestant communities of our area, and found that a peculiar situation must have prevailed. The inhabitants remained Protestant: nevertheless, the Catholic priest recorded all baptisms including the godfathers. I suppose that he also performed them. The statement that the inhabitants mostly remained Protestant comes out from the fact that the priest expressly records each time someone became Catholic, which was rare. From that fact I conclude that the Protestants were allowed to have baptisms during the Catholic period in Schlottau...”

The assumption of Pastor Hippe proved to be applicable. George Sterniske, who is discussed here, was born in 1707 at Briesche. His baptism was recorded at the Catholic parish office at Schawoine where one can find the “Baptism Book of the Parochial Church at Schlottau and their branch church at Polnisch (Gross) Hammer”. This is because Briesche was a branch parish of Gross Hammer, and Gross Hammer was a branch municipality of Schlottau until 1824.

Notes by JWS:

George Sterniske (SN143, 1707-1780) was a Freigärtner und Gerichtsscholz at Briesche. He was the son of Adam Scirnisko (SN1, 1671-1749). See Book I, Chapter 6: The Ancestors and Descendants of Wilhelm Starnitzki.

Some of the records of the Catholic Church at Schawoine were available for review in 2017. The baptism and marriage records from 1675 to 1707 were reviewed by me. The baptism record of George Scierniske, the son of Adam and Anna Scierniske was found, but is barely legible. The records for other Sternitzke family members were also found in those records. See Book III, Chapter 2: Village of Schawoine in Trebnitz County.

With regard to this question concerning the interim ministry, Grünhagen made the following remarks in his History of Silesia:

The blocking of the Protestant church services did not necessarily drive the population to change faith. In general, direct compulsions to convert were avoided to limit the attention and public annoyance. Rather they sought to achieve conversions in another way. The Peace Treaty of 1648 included a freedom granted to the Protestants, a freedom that had withered – the right to contact the nearest minister of their faith as long as the service fees were paid to the Catholic parish priest. In 1688, Franz Ludwig the Bishop of Breslau even issued a regulation that allowed all local parish churches to perform marriages and baptisms for non-Catholics.

During that critical time, it is understandable why the Protestant inhabitants of Gross Hammer held their baptisms, weddings, etc. in the Catholic Church.

It is significant that the loss of the older church books, which were certainly available at the Parish church office, occurred in 1671; the year that the transfer of the Protestant churches at Paulskirch, Gross Hammer and Schlottau to the Catholics had taken place. It is an unfortunate fact, which leads to the assumption that the books were illegally removed by an upper church authority at that time. Perhaps the books could have been destroyed by fire. It remains remarkable nevertheless that their disappearance coincided approximately with the Catholics taking possession of the churches.

Following the death of the Duke Sylvius Nimrod of Württemberg-Öls in the year 1664, Article 3 of the Church Constitution was concerning the guidance for maintaining family registers and church records. There it was written: "Each minister has to keep a correct family register for all in his congregation, from the youngest one to the oldest one, to maintain an accurate church book and therein record the people who are baptized, married or deceased".

Source: Fuchs, Gottlieb. Reformations- und Kirchengeschichte des Fürstenthums Öls [Reformation and Church History of the Principality of Öls]. Breslau: 1779. Pages 102 and following pages.

It is therefore with considerable confidence to assume that church books were also produced in the parish offices at Paulskirch, Gross Hammer and Schlottau, at least from the year 1665. In addition, it is not impossible that church books existed before in individual municipalities. For example, the church book of Stroppen in Trebnitz County already existed in the year 1582.

By written inquiry with the Royal Consistory (overseeing body over regional churches) in Breslau, with the Prince-Bishop General Vicariate at that place and with the diocesan archives, I could determine in 1901 the existence of baptism and marriage books of the parish church in Schlottau and its branch church in Polnisch Hammer (both beginning in 1675) located at the Catholic parish church of Schawoine (Blüchertal). The books contain records of 19 weddings, for the years from 1688 to 1703 for persons with our family name, or for persons who are related to our family and therefore are likewise of interest to us.

The funeral book for the years from 1675 to 1707 is missing in Blüchertal. I was not able to determine its whereabouts, nor could I determine the whereabouts of the books for the years before 1675.

End of Chapter Notes and Additional Information by JWS:

The church books for Friedrichskirch (known as Kainowe prior to 1937, and now known as Koniowo) are of particular interest to me because my ancestors from Klein Ujeschütz were most certainly baptized and married at the church in Kainowe. See Chapter 14 of this book for more information regarding the church books from Friedrichskirch.

Gerhard Labitzke, a grandfather of Martin Kugler, was born in 1908 in Berlin. Before the Second World War, Herr Labitzke requested and received certified copies of church records associated with the Labitzke family. From those records, Martin Kugler has transcribed Sternitzke family information from the Kainowe church books. That information has been added to Wilhelm Starnitzki's information in the associated chapters.

Frau Margarete (née Runge) Reiter of Bremen, Germany, has spent a considerable amount of time transcribing the church books for the villages: Glauche, Kloch-Ellguth, Massel, Schawoine, Schlottau, and Werndorf. Frau Reiter's transcriptions are included in the chapters associated with each village. Her great-great-grandmother was Susanna Helena Sternitzke (see the chapter regarding the village Schlottau). Frau Reiter transcribed the church book records from microfilms at a Family History Center of the Church of Latter-day Saints (LDS) at Bremen.

A book published in 1902, Die Kirchenbücher Schlesiens beider Confessionen, listed the Catholic and Protestant church records that existed in Silesia. According to that book, the oldest baptism record book in Silesia was the 1546 book from the Peter-Paul Church in Liegnitz. The earliest baptismal record book for the city of Breslau was from 1569 at the St. Bernhardin Church. The baptismal books for the St. Elisabeth and the St. Maria Magdalena Churches were started in 1570. Below is a table (with data from the 1902 book) listing the years that baptism, marriage and burial records were known to exist for the churches identified on the Karl Sille's map (shown above). That 1902 book also listed other villages and churches associated with the Sternitzke family history. The 1902 data supports Wilhelm Starnitzki's findings in 1901. It shows the oldest records related to our family were the 1594 Protestant Church marriage records at the city of Öls, which existed (in 1902). But it is unlikely that those early church records survived the Second World War. See the final chapter of Book III: Major Sources Reviewed and Avenues for Future Research, for tables listing known surviving church and civil records.

The microfilms of the German church books have a complicated (and incomplete) history. The church records were originally copied locally by the parish priests and pastors for preservation by an office of the Third Reich (Reichsstelle für Sippenforschung) because of their importance in documenting racial purity. Some of the church books and civil records were microfilmed from 1936 to 1940 in Berlin, and those microfilms may be in the Sächsisches Staatsarchiv at Leipzig, or may have been destroyed by the Russians in 1945. The original records were transferred to another office (Reichsrippenamnt) in 1940. In 1945, the original hardcopies were at the Schloss Rathsfeld (in Thuringia) to be microfilmed by the Gatermann Company (from Duisburg). The original records may have been destroyed by the Russians. At first, I hoped the original records were captured by the Allies and secreted to archives in Washington or Moscow. But I was notified by email that the U.S. National Archives does not hold any German church books. I also contacted Dr. Patricia Kennedy Grimsted, a senior research associate of the Ukrainian Research Institute and associate of the Davis Center for Russian and Eurasian Studies at Harvard University. Dr. Kennedy Grimsted is an expert in the contents of the Russian Special Archives for captured records and a leader in the efforts to restore the captured holdings to the original countries. She was “not aware of any foreign vital statistics records held at the Russian Special Archives or in other Russian archives”.

After the war, the Gatermann Company sold the microfilms to the German government and the microfilms were distributed to regional archives in Germany. Some (but not all) of the microfilms were copied by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Family History Library. The Central Archives for the History of the Jewish People (CAHJP in Jerusalem) also has photocopies of the records microfilmed by the Reischsippenamt.

Our name: Occurrence, Form, Interpretation

My family is rooted in the status of being farmers. For centuries the best men of the German people, the best men who gave strength to and were always the core of the German people, were known by the following designations:

Erbbauer = a hereditary farmer,

Bauer = a farmer on a full-sized farm,

Freigärtner = a farmer who owned a house and a small garden for growing household vegetables, and Häusler = an agricultural day laborer who owned a house.

Notes by JWS:

Häusler was the occupation listed for my ancestor Friedrich Sternitzke on his German emigration record, as identified in Wilhelm Iwan's book: Die Altutherische Auswanderung um die Mitte des 19. Jahrhunderts. Johann Hess-Institut, Band II. Breslau: Eichhornverlag Lothar Ludwigsburg, 1943.

Jahrbuch. Johann Hess-Institut, Band II. Breslau: Eichhornverlag Lothar Ludwigsburg, 1943.

There were also other occupational classes in Silesia associated with the Sternitzke family:

Gärtner = as villager with a house and a small piece of land to grow household vegetables,

Gutstagelöhner = a day laborer who received a wage to work for an estate, and Lohngärtner = an agricultural day laborer with a house and small garden.

Titles of social position were also associated with property ownership in the Silesian villages:

Baugutbesitzer = owner of a farmstead,

Mühlenbesitzer = owner of mill, and Stellenbesitzer = property owner.

See the table of occupations held by the Sternitzke family in the next chapter.

Beginning sometime in the last century, rural people with our name began drifting into the cities and held positions of all kinds including as officials and in manufacturing. For example: in the Breslau address book of 1930 where our name appears 57 times, besides some merchants, I counted 13 manufacturers and 9 officials. In that same year, our name was represented 56 times in Berlin, and included 7 merchants, 21 tradesmen, 13 teachers, technicians and officials.

Even in Wettolsheim [a city in Alsace, France], and also in the German north, in Kiel [a city in Schleswig-Holstein], a family of our name lived in the 90's of the last century [1890s].

In former times our family was represented in more than 50 communities in the homeland county of Trebnitz. While the family is currently only present in approximately 20 communities, it is still generally common. The places of highest concentration were always the villages Zantkau, Luzine, Germanengrund, Gross Ujeschütz, Klein Ujeschütz, Briesche, Brietzen, Paulskirch and Friedrichskirch.

In the course of the time the family produced men who were active in public service: councilmen, school teachers, church fathers, and church parish chairmen.

Our name appears in research sources that were accessible to me, in more than 30 variations in spelling. I found the following forms:

Czirnizsko, Ziernitschke, Stiernischke, Sciernisko, Sernisko, Siernisko, Schiernisko, Scernisko, Sterniske, Stanezki, Zeritzky, Czernisso, Czernisske, Scherniske, Schernisske, Sterschnitzke, Schernüsske, Sternisske, Stezernisske, Sernissge, Schernissge, Scernisske, Szernissge, Schernisse, Scernissge, Sternisko, Zirnisko, Sterschnisske, Sthernisske, Sczernissge, Czerniske, Sternüsske, Tschernüsske, Tschernisske, Sernoske, Sternitzke, Sternitzki, Sternitzky, Sternissky, Sterniski, Starnitzki.

Those substantial deviations listed here, and those to be found later, occurred because the only writing expert at the time of record was the local clergyman or a clerk. Often, they were the first people to record the sounds of the name that belonged to you, in the form of letters. They often did this based on their personal background.

The oldest well-known versions of our name (Czirnisko, Zirnisko and Czierniske) are found in Trebnitz County and in the adjacent counties. Around 1700, it was written as “Sciernisko”, which is the Slavic version of the German word “Stoppelfeld”.

It is well-known that surnames were often associated with property names. It was an old custom, not only to name a field after its owner, but also in reverse - for the owner to take the name of the field or real estate his family was designated to settle on.

It is appropriate to assume that our family name had an accordant connection. The first owner, perhaps a settler, could have begun possession of an area assigned to him at a time when it existed as predominantly harvested-off pieces of field – stoppelfeldern. I like this interpretation of our name nevertheless for personal reasons even if it is ever proved incorrect.

For example, you will very often find the family name Bartsch (who were related to our family) in the Trachenberg and Militsch areas in Silesia. The Bartsch family name could have been taken from the name of a tributary of the Oder River with the same name. Other names that are found in settlements along the river are: Bergmüller, Wiese, Wiesner, Bühler and others.

The name-ending -ko, weakened to -ke, (and in high-German -chen) is the German linguistic diminutive (reduction) syllable. It defines, in the name to which it is applied, the person as the descendant of the initial holder of the name, as suggested in the words: Heinke (from Heinrich), Wielke (from Wilhelm), Karlchen and so on. The well-known language researcher Förstemann now considers the -ko to be a Low-German diminutive ending for Low-German name forms that are substantially Saxon. If one accepts the Förstemann thesis, then in our case, perhaps a Saxon settler with our name took part in the 12th Century East German resettlement of Silesia.

Bender, Georg. Heimat und Volkstum der Familie Koppernigk (Coppernicus), Darstellungen und Quellen zur schlesischen Geschichte, Band 27, Breslau: 1920, page 51.

An example may be given here for further consideration. Starting on page 23 of Häusler's book, Urkundensammlung zur Geschichte des Fürstenthums Öls, which was printed in Breslau in 1883, is a transcription of a document from the year 1204. That document discusses the granting of jurisdiction of 74 villages, by Duke Heinrich I to the monastery at Trebnitz. On page 25 of that same document appears the name Stanis. The residence of this Stanis was indicated as being the village Brochocin (today's Moltketal, and known before 1937 as Brockotschine).

Notes by JWS regarding Wilhelm's sources:

Förstemann, Dr. Ernst Wilhelm. Alteutsches Namenbuch [Book of Old German Names]. Band 1: Personennamen. Nordhausen: Verlag von Ferd. Förstemann, 1856.

Häusler, Wilhelm. Urkundensammlung zur Geschichte des Fürstenthums Öls [Archives for the History of the Principality of Öls]. Breslau: Josef Max & Comp., 1883.

It appears obvious to assume here the convention for adding a diminutive syllable for suggesting his descendants, by adding a -ko or -ke, would create the old forms "Stanisko" or "Staniske". The incorrect spelling of our name "Sciernisko" around 1700 is therefore a Slavic form. It was spelled that way only as an adjustment for Slavic linguistic usage similar to the manner discussed above for the name form "Stanisko". Pastor Conrad wrote about an early church elder Christoph Sciernisko (c.1676-after 1709) in his commemoration book for the "Bicentennial Celebration of the Church at Pawellau" (Paulskirch), printed in Breslau in 1909.

Notes by JWS:

Christoph Sciernisko (c.1676-after 1709) from Brietzen was a church father in 1709 for the Protestant Church at Pawellau. See Book II of this family history.

The full citation for Wilhelm's reference (Book II of this family history) is:

Conrad, Pastor Ernst. Denkschrift zur 200-jährigen Jubelfeier der evangelischen Kirche zu Pawellau, Kirchenkreis Trebnitz am 6. Juli 1909 [Memorial Book for the Bicentennial Anniversary of the Protestant Church of Pawellau, in the Trebnitz Parish]. Breslau: June 1909.

The name form used there may have originated in the beginning of the 18th Century in Paulskirch, where the officiating minister was Christian Rohrmann (who was referred to as being "a good Polack" in the Pastor Conrad's memorial book). Pastor Rohrmann was known to write the local village and family names in the church book in the Polish language. Perhaps he believed our name was incomprehensible in its German form, and in the case of Sciernisko, he created a record in a Slavic language so it would be understandable, but would still remain consistent with the fundamental method for modifying names at that time. But, over time the main form of our name has fundamentally remained with some variations.

End of Chapter Notes and Additional Information by JWS:

There are several items to consider here regarding the Sciernisko spelling of our name. First, it is important to note that Sciernisko is an existing Polish word for forestland after the trees have been cut down, or a field that has been harvested until only the stubble is left (as translated in an 1890 Polish-English dictionary). A Polish-German dictionary from 1836 translated Sciernisko as das Stoppelfeld, which then translates to English as stubble-field. Secondly, the word Sciernisko when pronounced in Polish sounds like Sternitzko as it is pronounced in German (with the St pronounced Scht as in the German word Stein, pronounced as “schtein”). In a bilingual farming community, it may have been funny coincidence that a farmer had a name that sounded so close to the Polish word for a harvested field. Lusatians and Silesians were also subjects of the King of Bohemia for much of their early history. The Bohemian word strnisko (which also translates to the German word Stoppelfeld) was also a Moravian noble family name, written in German books as Sternisko. The Bohemian influence may have been the source of the Czirnisko and Czirniszko variations of the family name in 1594.

It is also true that the -ko suffix can mean “the child of”, but it can also be added to the end of a location name (such as a village name) to form a family name. The -ky suffix is foreign to the Polish language which used a -ski or -cki suffix to indicate “the son of X”, or “from the village of X”. Consider the names of the villages Tschernitz and Tschirnitz. A -ko, -ke or -ky suffix added to the village names denoted the person originated from that village, or descended from the father from that village, resulting in versions of our ancestors’ names. See my chapter in Book III regarding earlier versions of the family name and my theory regarding its origin.

The Schöppenbuch for the villages Biadauschke and Domnowitz listed Isop Sciernisko as one of the Zeugen (witnesses) on the 2nd of January in 1622. Wilhelm Starnitzki also found much earlier instances of the word Sciernisko being used for our last name in records for the village Zantkau. Paul Sciernisko was listed as the mayor of Zantkau in a 1583 civil registration book. Paul’s brother was listed as Blasien Czirniszko in a 1594 Schöppenbuch for the village Domnowitz (see Wilhelm’s discussion regarding Paul and Blasius in the Zantkau and Domnowitz chapters). But an earlier version of the Sternitzke name was recorded at Zantkau - George Tschirnitzke was identified as holding the hereditary office of village leader for a feudal lord (erbliche Lehnscholtisei) for the village Zantkau in 1554. In this case the feudal lord was the Trebnitzer Stift. Collecting taxes and village administration were typical duties for the village Scholz. I believe George Tschirnitzke was the father of Blasien Czirniszko. The Tschirnitzke version of the family name that was consistent with the German process of forming a family name from their village of origin – such as the village Tschirnitz.

Note that the first name Blasien was used in the 1594 Schöppenbuch for the village Domnowitz. The names Blasius, Blasien, Blase and Blaise are forms of the Latin word Blaze (which means “stutter”). Blasius was probably given that name not because he stuttered, but because of the custom of naming babies based on the date of their baptism. His baptism was probably on the feast day dedicated to St. Blaise (February 3). Wilhelm also found other versions of the last name used by that same Blasius, including: Czirnisko, Czirniszko, Ziernißko, Szernischko and Szernitzke. These variations of the surname for Blasius and the earlier versions of the family name Tschirnitzky (at Luzine in 1541), CzerniŃky (at Luzine in 1559) and Tschirnitzke (at Zantkau in 1554) indicate that the Polish word Sciernisko was not our family name, but it was a word that sounded close to the family name. That Polish word was probably used when the name was recorded by a Polish priest or official of the Trebnitz Stift.

The Sciernisko name variation was recorded in the records of Christoph Sciernisko (c.1676-after 1709, from Brietzen and the church at Pawellau) in 1709. Sciernisko was recorded with variations found in Catholic Church records from the villages Powitzko and Schawoine in Trebnitz County.

- Female Sternitzke variations found in church records from Powitzko: Scierniskin (1673 - 1674), Scziernisken (1613) and Scziernisken (1608 - 1620), Scierniskowa (1637 - 1669) and Sczierniskowa (1669 - 1671).
- Male Sternitzke variations found in church records from Powitzko: Sciernisko (1617 - 1675), Scziernisko (1608 - 1626), Scziernisko (1669 - 1672) and Schiernisko (1724).
- Male Sternitzke variations found in church records from Schawoine: Sciernisko (1690 - 1698), Schiernisko (1704) and Scierniske (1707).

A book by Jonathan Shea explains that the female surnames in Polish records included endings such as -owa meaning a married woman, or -ówna to indicate an unmarried woman.

Wilhelm Starnitzki wrote that the name Sciernisko was a Slavic representation of our family name, created in the same process as the creation of the family names Stanisko and Staniske. He did not write that the Stanisko and Staniske family names were variations of the Sciernisko family. The possibility that the Sternitzke name was related to Stanisko or Staniske (meaning the “son of Stanis”) is unlikely. There were about three centuries of undocumented family history between the 1204 document naming Stanis of Brochocin and the known Sternitzke family members at Luzine and Zantkau. A Lokator named Stanislaus was identified in a document for 1371, associated with the settlement of Ujeschütz under German Law. He was probably an ancestor of a man named StaniŃlaw from Kniegnitz (about six miles south of Ujeschütz) who was identified in a 1523 document. That year (1523) was near the time when the Tschirnitzke and Tschirnitzky names were recorded at Zantkau and Luzine. So, it is unlikely that there is a relationship between Stanislaus or StaniŃlaw and the Sternitzke family.

Heinrich Grüger's book included transcriptions of Trebnitz County documents from 1410, 1505, 1523, 1524 and 1567. Although variations of other family names related to our history were identified in those documents (such as Labiczky/Labitzky and Posnansky), it is unfortunate for us that variations of the Sternitzke name were not listed. Many of the people listed in those documents were only identified by their occupation (or title) and their village. It is likely that members of the Sternitzke family were listed that way; such as the “scholczen zw Lewtzen” (the Scholz of Luzine) in 1523. Further discussions of the Sternitzke family origin are written in Book III.

A summary of Wilhelm Starnitzki's research and his theory of the possible origins of the Sternitzke name was published by Heinrich Nitschke in 2007. The Stanisko and Sciernisko names were mentioned in that article as possible sources of the Sternitzke name, but no new evidence was presented by Heinrich Nitschke.

And finally, it is interesting that a popular Polish band named Golec uOrkiestra had a hit song named Sciernisko, with videos on the Internet showing them singing their song in open country fields.

Ownership Structure and Occupational Classes

As described above, our family is rooted in the native rural land. As far as could be determined from documents and land registers, this table shows the number of occurrences our family name is associated with agricultural occupational groups in the 16th to 20th Centuries. The following job titles could be determined:

| Occupations of Sternitzke Family Members by Century | | | | | | |
|--|------------------------------------|------------------|------------------|------------------|------------------|--------|
| Job Titles (descriptions) | Occurrences of our name by Century | | | | | Totals |

Besides these agricultural occupational groups, the following occupations were also represented by our family from the 18th to 20th Centuries:

Kretschmer innkeeper, tavern owner, hotel owner,
Erbkretschmer hereditary innkeeper,
Krämer shopkeeper,
Totengräber gravedigger,
Schneider tailor,
Schuhmacher shoemaker,
Lehrer teacher,
Schulhalter schoolmaster, and Forstmeister forest master.

Naturally (and I would like to stress this to you), this is not an exhaustive representation list because it covers only a relatively small portion of the family. The above list is based only on the documents that could be found, and depends on the accuracy of those documents. Information is also missing because of the distribution of the family name throughout Germany. I have found that more information could be added if the search would include the Rhine province, Thuringia, Saxony, Posen, Brandenburg, Bavaria, and even foreign countries.

Regarding the individual agricultural occupational groups, the following is to be said: although property subservience had been removed already in 1810, the farmer was still completely in economic dependency to the landlord. The term landlord is to be understood here as the church-owned foundation in Trebnitz.

Oppressive conscriptions were still part of the possession of rural land. In the first place there was the property rule to carry out Hand- und Spanndienste, which amounted to forced labor and slavery. These became the driving sources of the liberation, but, those changes did not occur quickly. It wasn't until the year 1821 that the state expressed support for those changes. The property owners naturally wanted to be compensated for the loss of those services. This compensation usually consisted of a pension, but often included considerable portions of land turned over to the farm property.

Notes by JWS:

I did not update the above table based on my research. Handdienste was compulsory manual labor services done in the fields and forests by the bondsmen and bondswomen for the land owner. Spanndienste was compulsory labor performed with draught animals (horses or oxen), such as plowing and moving wagons during the harvest.

The removal of the Hand- und Spanndienste ended a lifelong oppressive conscription for the farming townships. The farmers now felt free and independent, and called themselves Freibauern (free farmers). Those who now lived freely on their inherited land became Erbbauern (hereditary farmers)! A bearer of our name, Johann Sternitzky, lived as a Freibauer in the 18th Century, in Domnowitz. He belonged to the group of wealthy farmers, who apparently redeemed themselves from their services to the nobility. Johann and four other farmers were mentioned in the Katastralverhandlung on February 12, 1743, with the notation that they did not have to provide services for the priests except for transportation for the clergymen on religious holidays.

Notes by JWS:

A kataster (English: Cadastre) is a land registry record of all tax-paying persons in a community. A Katastralverhandlung was an official inventory of the property values. It was used to determine property taxes owed to the feudal lord or, as was often the case for our family, to the Stift of the Catholic Church at Trebnitz. Johann Sternitzky was listed as Hans Sterncke in the 1743 Katastralverhandlung. See Chapter 9: Germanengrund where Wilhelm identified Hans Sterncke as Johann Sterniske.

Cadastre. Retrieved from <https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Cadastre>.

However, complete liberty and independence occurred much later, i.e., in the year 1850. That year was marked by the replacement of the so-called Perpetual Charges (deliverables and duties which traditionally had to be carried out by the farmers).

The Freibauer designation already existed in the 17th and 18th Centuries, therefore it preceded the legal occurrences of Hand- und Spanndienste. How can this be explained? First, it may be assumed that in most cases concerning the wealthy farm owners had reached a mutual agreement with the landlords, to transform the service obligations to a one time or ongoing money payment. In other words: those farmers who had redeemed themselves from the services to the landlords, either by one large payment or by making smaller payments to a total payable by a certain date, still had to pay a periodic recognition fee to the landlords.

The Freigärtner classification appears next in the list of agricultural statistics, with the large number of 59 families in that group. The Freigärtner, having a small rural operation, was not required to perform Handdiensten services for the landlord, and was not indebted to a landlord in the form of cash or grain interest. However, despite the name (free-gardener), they were never quite free.

Another type of agricultural class emerged, the owners of Gärtnerstellen. When an independent settler in the village acquired a piece of field, along with his house and yard, he would operate a small farm (a garden) on his property. Such new places were free from interest and service, just like those settled places that arose during the later colonization of the 18th Century that were known as Freistellen.

There were also farmers in our family belonging to another group. They are only identified as being a Stellenbesitzer.

Notes by JWS:

Stellenbesitzer translates to “the owner of a place or property”. In the next chapter, Wilhelm Starnitzki also used the term Gutsbesitzer, which means the owner of an estate or a farmstead, but a farmstead is usually described as a Bauergut. A detailed discussion of the occupational titles associated with Silesian farmers and social classes was written in the monograph by Dr. Opitz: Die Aren des Rustikalbesitzes und die Laudemien und Markgroschen in Schlesien.

Another classification for Sternitzke family members in the Hochkirch parish of Trebnitz County was identified by Dr. Gustav Stein. A Dreschgärtner (threshing farmer) was a farmer who owed annual threshing and flax processing services for the fields owned by the village landlord.

Chapter 5

Directory of all Village Magistrates (or Mayors) and Members of the Courts from the House of Sternitzke

1. Scholzen (Community Leaders, Mayors)

“The primary position in the village organization is the Scholz (mayor); he is either an Erbscholz (hereditary mayor) or a Setzscholz (selected by the nobility). The Setzscholz is not always a farmer. The nobility can select the person from another class of their subjects.”

2. Gerichtsgeschworene and Schöppen (small claims court jurymen and councilmen)

“Additional positions in the municipality organization exist; the court people or jurors, are most important after the mayors, and were also appointed by the nobility. One of the members must be taken from the social class of the *Gärtner*s. The mayor and (usually two) court people formed the Gerichtsbank (court bench). In some villages, besides the jurors, municipality elders are selected and acknowledged by the nobility.”

Notes by JWS:

The hereditary office of mayor was usually passed from father to oldest son. But, in the case of Blasius Sternitzke, when Blasius left Zantkau to become the mayor of Domnowitz, the hereditary office of mayor for Zantkau then went to his younger brother Paul.

Most of the members of the Sternitzke family were listed in other chapters of Wilhelm Starnitzki's manuscript (and other documents) under multiple versions of the family surname. His editor, Karl Sille, did not list surnames in this chapter. The surnames listed in the table were added by me and they were selected to show the diversity of the variations of the Sternitzke name. For example: Georg (c.1650-after 1709, SN133) was listed as:

- Georg Sternitzke in a property purchased at Gross Ujeschütz 1671,
- Geörge Sternisko and Georg Sterniski in the 1691 baptism record of his son Hanß (Hans, Johannes) at the church in Pawellau,
- Georg Sternisko, George Schernißke in the 1693 baptism record of his daughter Katharina at the church in Pawellau, and
- Georg Sternisko, George Sternißke and Sterniske in the 1695 baptism record of his daughter Hedewig at the church in Pawellau, and the duplicate record from the Kainowe Church.

The Master ID Numbers (SN, Stammliste Nummers) listed below are from Wilhelm Starnitzki's master list of Sternitzke family members. See my note at the beginning of Chapter 6: The Ancestors of Wilhelm Starnitzki. I added other members of the Sternitzke family who held public offices to this table. Those additional family members did not have associated Stammlist numbers. Other additions by me included the years of birth, which were also not included in the original table. See the notes regarding my additions at the end of this chapter.

The table below uses the occupational titles defined in the previous table in Chapter 4, and the legal titles Wilhelm found associated with our family in court records. Some of those legal terms were defined by Wilhelm (see above). Some other terms used in Wilhelm's table are translated by me (using Thode's dictionary) as:

End of Chapter Notes and Additional Information by JWS:

Scholzen in 1297

Wilhelm Häusler's Urkundensammlung zur Geschichte des Fürstentums Öls included a document dated the 13th of April in 1297, concerning the gift of one Hufe of land from the Abbess Eufrosina at Trebnitz to Herrmann the Scholz of the village Frauenwaldau. That document also identified the Scholzen at that time for other villages near the city of Trebnitz:

- Hainrich of Schezicz (Jeschütz),
- Hainrich of Schaffon (Schawoine),
- Sieboth of Leutzen (Luzine), and
- Steffan of Zantke (Zantkau).

Unfortunately, the surnames of those Scholzen were not given, or did not yet exist. It is possible that one of those Scholzen were related to our family. The 1883 book by Häusler was identified as the source of this information in the 1886 book by Dr. Colmar Grünhagen. Note that the village Jeschütz is now known as Jaszyce. Jeschütz was not the same village known as Ujeschütz.

1563 Rebellion Against the Trebnitzer Klosterkonvent

There were several cases of rebellion (riots and refusal to pay tithes) by the Silesian citizens against the Catholic Church during the period when the Sternitzke family members were Scholzen. Rebellions occurred at:

- Groß Krauschen in 1535,
- Glogau against the Klarissen Cloister in 1545, and
- Frauenwaldau, Schlottau, Luzine, Groß Grunau and Zantkau against the Trebnitz Cloister Convent in 1563.

Thomas Tschirnitzky (c.1500-c.1568, SN410)

The surname variation for Thomas CzerniBky in 1559 (as identified by Wilhelm Starnitzki) was a Bohemian spelling variation of the name TscherniBky. The Bauer (farmer) Thomas TscherniBky may have been a brother of the Bauer George Tschirnitzke (c.1510-c.1574, SN1) who was the mayor of the nearby village named Zantkau.

Dr. Goldman's book recorded Thomas Tschicnintzky as the Scholtisei oder Erbgericht (the village headman or a member of the village council) in 1541 for the community of Luczina (Luzine in Trebnitz County). On the 6th of April in 1541, Abbess Barbara confirmed Thomas as the holder of the hereditary office of Scholz and granted him two mills and an inn, of which he was obliged to pay interest to the Trebnitz monastery. In 1568, Christopher Kuhlhaus (the son-in-law of Thomas) was the Scholz of Luzine. Another source, the Luziner Dorfchronik von Lehrer Ratsch wrote that on the 6th of April in 1541, Abbess Barbara of Trebnitz confirmed Thomas Tschirminsky as the Erbscholz (hereditary mayor) of Luzine, and granted him two mills and an inn for which he was obliged to pay interest to the Trebnitz monastery. He held the office until 1568. The modern review and transcription of the original Trebnitz monastery documents by the Polish historian Professor Doctor Kazimierz Bobowski identified Thomas Tschirnitzky as the mayor of Luzine who was confirmed by the Abbess Barbara in 1541.

No sons have been identified for Thomas Tschirnitzky. His hereditary office of Erbscholz of Luzine passed to his son in law Christopher Kuhlhaus who was the Scholz of Luzine in 1559. See Book I, Chapter 11: Luzine.

George Tschirnitzke (SN1) and Blasius Tschernißke (SN22)

Wilhelm Starnitzki did not identify the first name of the father of Blasius Tschernißke (c.1544-c.1615, SN22). The father of the Bauer (farmer) Blasius was most probably the Bauer George Tschirnitzke (c.1510-c.1574, SN1), who was identified as holding the hereditary office of erbliche Lehnscholtisei for the village Zantkau in 1554. Dr. Opitz identified his source for the information regarding George Tschirnitzke as Document D 289a in the Breslau State Archives. John Ebers' German-English dictionary from 1789 defined the position of Lehenschulze (Lehenschulze) as: "the provost, the judge of the feudal court; also, the name for a judge of a village, that holds his office hereditarily in fief." See Chapter 8: Zantkau.

Wilhelm Starnitzki originally recorded the year of the death of Blasius (SN22) as about 1611 in the above table. In the handwritten ancestor chart, he prepared for Gotthold Sternitzke, Wilhelm wrote that Blasius had died about 1613. In the ancestor chart Karl Sille prepared for Wilhelm Starnitzki in 1969 (see Chapter 6: The Ancestors of Wilhelm Starnitzki) Karl listed the year of death for Blasius as around 1615. In 1970, Karl Sille prepared an ancestor report for Robert Starnitzki (the grandson of Wilhelm Starnitzki). In that document, Karl listed the year of death of Blasius as around 1615 and he identified the surname of Blasius as Tschernißke.

George Tschirnitzke was the Erbscholz of Zantkau from 1554 to 1574. Blasius inherited the office at Zantkau from his father. He sold the office to his brother Paul Czierniske (SN389) on the 2nd of July in 1583, and Blasius purchased a rural farmstead at Domnowitz in 1584. In the table in this chapter, Wilhelm Starnitzki recorded the office of Blasius at Domnowitz as the Gerichtsscholz (a court appointed mayor), but in Chapter 9: Germanengrund (Domnowitz) he recorded the office title as Setzscholz (an appointed mayor, probably appointed by the Abbess at Trebnitz). Dr. Emil Opitz recorded that Domnowitz did not have a hereditary mayor (Erbscholz) until 1615. His source for the first Erbscholz of Domnowitz was the Codex diplomaticus Silesiae, Volume 4, page 286: Abbess Elisabeth Pietrowskin of Trebnitz appointed Jacob Ritter as the Erbscholz of Domnowitz on the 3rd of July in 1615. So, Blasius the Elder probably died shortly before that date.

Baptism Sponsors Blaseus Scziernisko and Anna Scziernisken, 1609 & 1610

Blaseus Scziernisko from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor on the 24th of May in 1609 at the Catholic church in Powitzko.

Anna Scziernisken from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor on the 11th of July in 1610 at the Catholic church in Powitzko. The surname Scziernisken was the female version of the surname Scziernisko.

Second Marriage of Anna Scziernisken, 1616

Anna Scziernisken the widow of Blasey Sczierniske from Domnowitz, married Hans Dicke on the 7th of July in 1616. They were married at the Catholic church in Powitzko. Hans Dicke was the son of the Scholz Martin Dicke from Gaubitz. Anna was probably the widow of Blasius the Elder (c.1544-c.1615, SN22). But she could have been the widow of Blasius the Younger (1578-1614) who died in 1614. A third Blasius existed – Blasius Scziernisko (1616-after 1651) – who was born in the same year Anna married Hans Dicke.

His father Johannes Sternitzky (SN274) was probably born before 1690 and died after 1720. See Book III: Chapter 2, Village of Schickwitz in Trebnitz County. The arbitrators' duties were to settle legal disputes between citizens at the local level. Christiane Sternitzke, the wife of a miller, was a baptism sponsor at Cainowe in 1843 and 1848. See Book I, Chapter 14, Friedrichskirch (Kainowe): the Family of Friedrich Sternitzke and Christine (née Sternitzke) Sternitzke, 1839 to 1900 Gross Kainowe. Chapter 6

The Ancestors of Wilhelm Starnitzki

From many years of research in church files and at the Trebnitz land register office, it was possible for me to consult useful and interesting family records that contain the descent relationships and property ownership history. However, these relationships are not complete, because only a limited number of church files could be fully researched. Items that could not be examined, among other things, include the books of the parishes at Obernigk, Schimmerau, Pristelwitz, Heidewilxen and Paschkerwitz. Also, Gross Hammer was not yet completely exhausted for our purposes, and likewise at Lossen and Trebnitz. The terrible war interrupted me at this point here, preventing me from continuing that work.

Notes by JWS:

This chapter was titled Die Stammliste in Karl Sille's edition. In this chapter Wilhelm referred to a full list of ancestors and other bearers of our family name, including family members found outside of Silesia. Unfortunately, as Karl Sille mentioned in his preface, such a list was not found in Wilhelm's documents. Wilhelm had a list of Sternitzke family members organized alphabetically by first name (with the unidentified father of Blasius the Elder and Adam Tschernißke both identified as Ancestor Number 1). Those Stammliste numbers frequently appeared in Wilhelm's tables and were included in the tables of this transcription. Unfortunately, the Stammliste numbers identified in his manuscript were for only fifty-five individuals. Wilhelm wrote (see my transcription below) that there were 729 male first names and 360 female first names identified in his records of our family.

It should be noted that in recent times a substantial number of communities in the area settled by our family have been renamed; the names of these places are given in the Ancestor List. This information was taken from the book Schlesienbuch, published in Dresden in 1942 by the Kurt Gruber Publishing House.

Notes by JWS:

Wilhelm was referring to the renaming of Silesian villages that took place in 1937 by the government of the Third Reich. For examples: Pawellau became Paulskirch, Polnisch Hammer became Gross Hammer, and Kainowe became Friedrichskirch. The names of the villages were changed again after World War II, when the region our family lived in was turned over to Poland. Karl Sille's manuscript included a table that cross referenced the 1937 village names to their older names. I have added known historic names of those location and the modern Polish names of our family villages to that table. See Book III, Appendix B: Cross Reference of Place Names.

The full title of the book Wilhelm referenced above is: Das Schlesienbuch, Handbuch für die Provinzen Niederschlesien und Oberschlesien [The Silesia Book, Handbook for the Province of Lower Silesia and Upper Silesia].

The Ancestor List generally includes information about those ancestors whose wives and children are known, as could be determined from marriage records and property records. Those family members who died young, or were listed without their own household, and those for whom only a birth year could be determined, are listed with their parents.

The area settled by our ancestors includes the Silesian cities and districts of Breslau, Trebnitz, Öls and Militsch. Outside of this area, so far as I can tell, there are nine other cities where our family members currently reside: Berlin, Hamburg, Heilbronn (on the Neckar River), Kiel, Luckenwalde, Nürnberg, Rawitsch, Posen and Stuttgart.

The bearers of our name in these other places still have a relationship with our family homeland. They are therefore as much as can be determined, likewise added to the Ancestor List regardless of whether or not their descendants were found. Where the residence could not be determined, the place of birth is indicated. For Berlin, an excerpt from the 1930 book of residents is attached.

Notes by JWS:

Wilhelm's excerpt from the 1930 Berlin Residents Book was not included in Karl Sille's edition of Wilhelm's manuscript, but the Berlin address books from 1799 to 1943 are available on the Internet from the Zentral- und Landesbibliothek Berlin, retrievable at http://adressbuch.zlb.de/searchResultAdressbuch.php?CatalogName=zlb_sk1.

In the 1930 Berlin address book, there was one person listed with the last name Starnitzke, five people named Starnitzki, one person named Sterniske, eight people named Sternitzke, two people named Sternitzki and eleven named Sternitzky.

The ancestor lists (I & II) mentioned by Wilhelm in this chapter were not found by Karl Sille, but he did find a list of Wilhelm's direct ancestors, which he placed as Wilhelm did, after the chapters regarding village histories – as a summary of Wilhelm's research for each village. Ancestor List I was probably a list of the male members of the Sternitzke family, arranged alphabetically by first name. Those with the same first name were then arranged by the estimated date of birth. The second Ancestor List was probably a list of the female members of the family – also arranged alphabetically by first name.

The order of presentation for the village histories by Wilhelm and Karl Sille followed the chronological order of Wilhelm's ancestors, from the earliest one found (the father of Blasius in the village of Zantkau), and continued as the family spread from village to village. I have moved Wilhelm's direct ancestor list to this chapter (before his village histories) because it made use of the genealogical terms and symbols he discussed below.

Births, marriages and deaths are indicated by the standard genealogical symbols:

- x = geboren, born
- ~ = getauft, baptized
- + = gestorben, died
- = begraben, buried
- o = verlobt, engaged
- oo = verheiratet, married
- o\o = geschieden, divorced
- ooI = verheiratet in I. Ehe, first marriage
- ooII = verheiratet in II. Ehe, second marriage

The following personal conditions and facts are interesting for family history:

- A = Vornamen, First name
- B = Lebensdauer, Life span
- C = Krankheiten, Todesart, Diseases, Cause of death
- D = Kinderzahl, Number of children

Information determined from church books and other official documents, appropriate for statistical collection, was used only for producing Ancestor Lists I and II.

Regarding First names

Which first names were common for our ancestors throughout the centuries? I have identified 729 male and 360 female first names while creating the Ancestor List. Here it was determined that regarding the male persons, the Biblical name Johannes (Hans) was most common. Some years ago, the following note appeared in the Korrespondenz für Rasseforschung und Familienkunde [Correspondence for Racial Research and Genealogy] concerning the frequent occurrences of the first name Johannes:

“The Archive for Genealogy stated repeatedly that at certain times in some regions “Johannes” was almost the universal name used as a lucky and blessed name. In very numerous cases men, who had not received the first name Johannes at their baptism, have this first name added on the occasion of a later church book entries (wedding, baptism of children, death) regardless of the first actual baptismal name. In certain circumstances it is possible for the original name to disappear and emerge as Johannes, so that the person’s identity can only be concluded from dates and other connections.”

Concerning the origin and meaning of the first name Johann, Brechenmacher wrote (in his Deutsches Namensbuch, on page 122 and the following page):

“It is one of the few Biblical names, which for a long time before the splitting of the church, was common in German families and comes from Hebrew and means - God is benevolent. For many centuries Johannes was the most popular and most common baptismal name. (First Saint with this name: Jehochanan the Baptist). Oldest Hebrew form: Jehochanan – from the Israeli name for God - Jehova, Jahwe. The full name meant thus “Jehowa is benevolent.”

Notes by JWS regarding Wilhelm’s sources:

The Korrespondenz für Rasseforschung und Familienkunde [Correspondence for Racial Research and Genealogy] was a pre-1946 journal or newspaper.

Brechenmacher, Prof. Josef Karlmann. Deutsches Namensbuch [German Book of Names]. Published at Stuttgart in 1928.

Male First Names

The first name Johann appears among the 729 male first names 116 times, it is the most common in the 18th Century with 79 instances. It is most frequently found in the area of Domnowitz, Gross and Klein Ujeschütz. Within a larger area, other names frequently found are: Friedrich (Fritz) with 64, George with 65 and Daniel with 49. Then followed by Karl with 44 times, Gottlieb 37, followed by Wilhelm 32, David 28, Hermann 27, Heinrich (Heinz) 24, Martin 20, Christoph 19, Ernst 14, Gustav 13, Thomas 13, Paul 12, Gregor and Gottfried 11 each, Richard and Matthäus each 10 times.

Names that appear less than 10 times include: Adolf, Adam, Albert, Alexander, Alfred, Andreas, Anton, August, Bartholomäus, Bernard, Blasius, Bruno, Christian, Eduard, Emil, Erich, Erwin, Fabian, Felix, Ferdinand, Gotthold, Hartmut, Hellmut, Herbert, Horst, Jakob, Josef, Julius, Kaspar, Kurt, Leopold, Lorenz, Max, Moritz, Michael, Nikolas, Oskar, Reinhold, Robert, Roman, Simon, Walter, Werner, Wolfgang.

Female First Names

Out of 360 cases: Anna and the secondary names connected with Anna – including Anna Rosina – total 65 cases, Susanna with 59 total cases, Maria and the secondary names connected with Maria (such as Maria Elizabeth 12 times) with 56 total cases, Rosina 36, Hedwig 26, Helene 15, Elizabeth 12 cases.

Names that occurred less than 12 times include: Adelheide, Albertine, Augusts, Barbara, Berta, Christiane and Christine, Else, Emilie, Emma, Erna, Ernestine, Eva, Frida, Gerda, Gertrud, Hella, Herta, Ida, Ilse, Inge, Ingborg, Johanna 8 times, Juliane, Karoline, Katharina, Käte, Luise, Margarete, Martha, Meta, Pauline, Rita, Selma, Sophie, Susi.

The Ancestors of Wilhelm Starnitzki Eleven Generations of the Sternitzke Family from Trebnitz County in Silesia

Comments by Karl Sille, editor of the Wilhelm Starnitzki's manuscript:

The details for the eleventh generation were provided by Robert Starnitzki, the son of Wilhelm Starnitzki and Johanna (née Kögel) Starnitzki. The order of presentation has been reversed from Wilhelm's original, to be consistent with today's genealogical standards.

Notes by JWS:

The Wilhelm Starnitzki mentioned by Karl Sille was Karl Friedrich Wilhelm Starnitzki (1864-1948). The Robert Starnitzki mentioned was Robert Christoph Hugo Starnitzki (1901-after 1970).

Karl Sille's original table had one page for the male ancestors and a separate page for the female ancestors. I have combined the data into one table, added the spellings of their last names as they are identified in other chapters and added a 12th generation. Below is Karl Sille's table (which originally included 11 generations) with additional information from Karl Sille's manuscript titled Anhnenliste Robert Starnitzki, and the 1936 Feststellung der arischen Abstammung " [statement of Aryan extraction] by Michael Ziefle's grandfather: Wilhelm Karl Friedrich August Starnitzki (1897-after 1926).

The generation numbers correspond with the Sternitzke Family Tree at the end of Book III.

He died at the age of 77 years and 5 months, making his calculated date of birth around April in 1834. See the Family of Friedrich Wilhelm Hermann Starnitzke, April 1891 to 1911 City of Breslau.

Gen.X-274. Juliane Starnitzke (1836-after 1865) was born around August in 1836. She married Herman Winkler at Öls on the 21st of May in 1865. See Book III, Öls County in the Breslau District, City of Öls in Öls County: the Marriage and Family of Juliane Starnitzke 1865 City of Öls.

Gen.X-276. Wilhelm Theodor Starnitzkÿ was born around 1841. He was the son the Müllermeister Gottlieb Starnitzkÿ. His father died at Neudorf near Juliusburg in Öls County. The Schneidergeselle Wilhelm Theodor Starnitzkÿ/Sternitzke married Johanna Louise Brinke on the 6th of January in 1868 at Breslau. See Book III, Chapter 1: the Marriage and Family of the Schneidermeister Wilhelm Theodor Starnitzkÿ, 1867 to 1914 City of Breslau.

Notes by JWS:

The genealogy website MyHeritage.com listed Christiane Nitschke as born in 1843 and died in 1911 (matching data from Karl Sille). The website shows Christiane married the Zimmermann (carpenter) Robert Sternitzke before 1864, and that they had one son: Wilhelm Sternitzke. It listed the birth date of Robert Sternitzke as 14 January 1839 (which also matches the data from Karl Sille, except for the spelling of the surname Starnitzki). The website listed a different place of birth for Robert Sternitzke: it listed Briesche instead of Pirschen. It also listed a different age of Christiane when she died. It listed 68 years old instead of 69 years old.

Vital Statistics

Apart from the numerically registered given names, the property transfers and occupational classes, some particulars of the biological kind follow here, as far as they could be identified from the church registers or as to be ascertained, otherwise, by calculations. Unfortunately, the church registers in general give few or no information about the biological connections and concomitants of the isolated cases.

This numerical data is on no account complete for our forefathers, and is to be understood as only representative. The information about the deaths comprises the age of death and any important statement of the cause of death. At the end of this chapter are interesting statistics regarding the number of children resulting from these particular families.

These biological statistics represent the direct family ancestors of the author which includes eleven generations. The statistical information represents a total of 442 cases: 414 cases from the small settlement area of our family (the cities and counties of Trebnitz, Breslau, Militsch and Öls) and 28 cases from outside the Silesian region. The areas outside Silesia include family members from the cities and districts of Berlin, Strasbourg in Alsace, Hamburg, Stuttgart, Thuringia, Posen, Nuremberg, Essen, Kiel and Heilbronn on the Neckar River.

1. Life Spans

The oldest known family member, Georg, a farmer from Domnowitz, died at the age of 99 years. He was joined by six other family members who lived 90 years or more, with one woman living to the age of 95 years. Nineteen people lived to the age of 80 to 89. Twenty-nine people lived to the age of 70 or more. The life spans of the remaining 387 family members could not be determined from the information in the church registers.

2. Religions

A majority by far of the 442 total cases were Protestants. Membership in the Catholic religion was provable only in 11 cases. In 12 cases Old-Lutherans could be ascertained as the church affiliation.

3. Marriage Ceremonies and Number of Children

Of the 442 total cases only 368 marriage ceremony records could be found. The remaining 74 cases remain out of consideration for the calculation below, because their marriages could not be identified. Accordingly, the 368 marriages resulted in the birth of 515 boys and 387 girls. The total number of offspring was 902 children, corresponding to an average figure of 2.5 children per marriage. In 40 cases a second and in 6 cases a third marriage occurred.

4. Victims of the wars and missing in action totaled 6 people, as far as is known.

End of Chapter Notes and Additional Information by JWS:

The above number of war victims was presumably totaled by Wilhelm Starnitzki in 1948. The chapter titled Military Men of the Sternitzke Family in Book III of this family history includes a table which documents the Sternitzke family members who were German soldiers, and who lost their lives (or were missing in action) in the First and Second World Wars. The documented number of our extended Sternitzke family members who were lost during those wars is shocking and depressing.

Perhaps even worse than the military casualties are the unknown number of civilian family members who were lost during (and after) the Second World War. Some very depressing books have been written regarding the treatment of the Silesians after that war. Below are a few books on that subject.

Silesian Money in the 16th, 17th and 18th Centuries

Around 1580, the Schwere (heavy) Mark – which was the equivalent to the Polish Schwer – was worth 48 Groschen, and one Groschen was worth 12 Heller. During the Thirty-Years' War (1618-1648) the Schwere Mark disappeared. It was replaced by the Schlesische (Silesian) Taler, which was worth 24 boehmische (Bohemian) or 36 Weissgroschen. After the Seven-Years' War (1756-1763), besides the Schlesische Taler, there also appeared the Reichstaler which was worth 30 Silbergroschens (silver groschens). Therefore, 4 Reichstalers were worth 5 Schlesische Talers. Thus 24 Silbergroschens equaled one Schlesische Taler. One Silbergroschen (Sgr) equaled 12 Pfennigs.

Notes by JWS:

1 Schwere Mark = 48 Weissgroschen = 32 Silbergroschen = 1.333 Schlesische Taler

1 Reichstaler = 45 Weissgroschen = 90 Kreuzern

1 Schlesische Taler = 36 Weissgroschen

1 Böhmische Groschen = 1 Böhmen = 1 Silbergroschen = 1.5 Weissgroschen

1 Silbergroschen = 1.5 Weissgroschen = 12 Pfennig

1 Groschen = 12 Heller = 12 Pfennig

1 Kreuzer = 6 Heller

A detailed discussion of the Silesian monetary system is titled Geldwerte, on pages XIV-XVI, in Die Arten des Rustikalbesitzes und die Laudemium un Markgroschen in Schlesien by Dr. Phil. Emil Opitz, included in: Goldman, Dr. Jur. Emil. Beiträge zur Geschichte der germanischen Freilassung durch Wehrhaftmachung. 73. Chapter 8

Zantkau

Introduction to Personal and Place Histories

The following chapters are in regard to the chronological occurrences of our name and the locations of their homesteads. It illustrates the property ownership history of our family, which gives to the reader a picture of the permanence of our family.

As a supplement for historians, I have attached historical data for the individual places where our family lived.

Notes by JWS:

The Wilhelm Starnitzki manuscript included village histories that he presented generally in chronological order according to the history of his known direct ancestors in Silesia. It begins with the father of Blasius Czirnisko in Zantkau, and continues from village to village as the family grew. The exception to this general rule is the chapter regarding Luzine which had family history that occurred concurrent with the history for the village Zantkau.

Wilhelm Starnitzki did not identify the connection between the Sternitzke families at Zantkau and Luzine. My guess is that Thomas Tschirnitzky (the Erbscholz of Luzine) was the older brother of George Tschirnitzke (the Erbscholz of Zantkau). I have added other personal and place histories for Sternitzke family members in the Book III of this family history.

Zantkau

One of our oldest places of settlement was among the possessions of the monastery at Trebnitz since the Middle Ages, and was named Zantkau. Here a bearer of our name held office 400 years ago as head of the community (Scholz: mayor). Unfortunately, his first name is not known. He was one of the oldest name bearers of our kinship. It is probably first of interest to hear of the income connected with the office of Mayor at that time.

The office of mayor included 4 free Hufen of land, a free mill, as well as jurisdiction over the inn, baking and meat. Furthermore, the mayor received, as usual at that time according to German Law the “3rd Pfennig” i.e., third part of the income from the production within his jurisdiction. One Hufe equals 30 Silesian morgens – approximately 16.80 hectares or 65 Prussian morgens.

Notes by JWS:

The father of Blasius was not identified by Wilhelm Starnitzki, but he found that the hereditary office of Erbsholz for the village of Zantkau passed from father to son (not from brother to brother) in 1574 to Blasius Sciernisko. The father of Blasius was probably George Tschirnitzke, who held the hereditary office of mayor (erbliche Lehnscholtisei) for the village of Zantkaw (Zantkau) in 1554, when Blasius was 10 years old.

Source:

Goldman, Dr. jur. Emil. Beiträge zur Geschichte der germanischen Freilassung durch Wehrhaftmachung. 73. Heft. Die Arten des Rustikalbesitzes und die Laudemium un Markgroschen in Schlesien von Dr. Phil. Emil Opitz. Breslau: M. & H. Marcus, 1904. Page 108: George Tschirnitzke, erbliche Lehnscholtisei. of Zantkau in 1554. The source for this information was identified as the Breslau State Archive File D 298a.

The village of Zantkau (like our family name) has had many spellings throughout its long history. Other spellings of the village name included Czancovi (1236) and Zancov (1266-7), Czantachaw (1530), Zantkaw (1554), Zanzkau (1574) and Tzanckau (1605). The Abbess Gertrud of Trebnitz granted German Law, with a Scholz, to Zantkau in 1250. An early reference to Zantkau was regarding Steffan the Scholz of Zantke on the 13th of April in 1297.

The population of Zantkau was 310 in 1939. It is now named Sadków. According to Wikipedia, the village had a population of 468 in 2009. Below is a 1928 topographical map of Zantkau.

Hufe is the German word for a “normal full-sized farm (with crops, hay and pasture)” equal to 30 Morgens and is equivalent to about seventeen U.S. acres in size. Thode defined a Morgen (page 169) as “theoretically the amount of land that one man and an ox can plow in one morning”.

Zantkau, from a 1928 Topographical Map of Trebnitz County

Our ancestor officiated in Zantkau in the second half of the 16th Century. We know that he fathered 8 children, 3 sons and 5 daughters. The civil registration book for Zantkau provided his children's names and other relationships, as shown below. His death seems to have taken place around the year 1574, because a document in the Silesian State Archives shows the transfer of his land and office to his oldest son Blasius in that year, Blasius was 30 years old at the time of the transfer of land and office. Therefore, Blasius was born around the year 1544. Blasius held office until 1583.

Notes by JWS:

The table shown above shows Wilhelm Starnitzki's conclusions based on his review of the Zantkau village administrators' record books (Schöppenbüchern).

George Tschirnitzke was identified in Dr. Emil Goldman's book as the erbliche Lehnscholtisei (the holder of the hereditary office of mayor of a fief) at Zantkau in 1554. George was very likely the father of Blasius Sciernisko. See my earlier note for the source information. George Tschirnitzke was born around 1510. He was the Erbscholz of Zantkau from 1554 to 1574. He was probably the brother Thomas Tschirnitzky who was born around 1500. Thomas was the Erbscholz of the nearby village Luzine from 1541 to 1568. See Chapter 11: Luzine. As the older brother, Thomas probably replaced his father as the Erbscholz at Luzine.

Wilhelm Starnitzki recorded the year of death for Blasius as 1616 in his chapter regarding Domnowitz, based on information from the Domnowitz village administrators' record books (Schöppenbüchern).

It is interesting that there are so many connections between the children of George Tschirnitzke of Zantkau and the other villages in what would (much later) become Trebnitz, Militsch and Öls Counties. The common links between these villages were their feudal lords: the Stift of Trebnitz and the Dukes of Öls. In the 16th Century the village Scholzen were important people to the church and the nobles for collecting taxes and making legal decisions at the local level. The local Scholzen and their families undoubtedly knew each other through periodic visits to the Stift administrators at Trebnitz and the Duke's court at Öls. This explains how the children of George were able to develop relationships outside their village.

Blasius' successor in his possessions and office was his brother Paul, who was about three years younger than Blasius. The change of ownership between Blasius and Paul took place on the 2nd of July in 1583 according to a transfer agreement acknowledged by the Stift of Trebnitz. The total purchase amount paid by Paul, including the office fee paid to the Stift, was agreed upon as 496 Schwere-Marks and 27 Groschens. It was the same amount which, nine years earlier, the older brother Blasius paid for the possession transfer from their father. Blasius was justified in charging this amount- in the change of ownership document – and had one month to move into a newly built house, after the sale of his own furniture and his own movable property (household goods, cattle, wine, grain, etc.). If he had purchased a house outside of the Stiftkreis, then the furniture and other items would have had to remain in place, but he – Blasius – would have received the estimated value replaced. Another option would have been for Blasius to move his old furniture into his new residence, as long as the new residence was within the properties under the authority of the Stift of Trebnitz.

Blasius later became the Gerichtsscholz (court appointed mayor) of Domnowitz (later renamed as Germanengrund). Both brothers, Blasius and Paul, were mentioned in a 1594 decree issued during the reign of Emperor Rudolf II. By this official document, a muster of all subjects of the princes and their estates who were fit for military service was ordered throughout the land, establishing a national defense of Christians against their hereditary enemy – the Turks.

Note by JWS:

Wilhelm recorded the that Blasius held the office of Gerichtsscholz of Domnowitz from 1584 to 1608.

The city of Trebnitz was required to form 15 squads of the Volkswehr (a civilian militia), with the surrounding communities also participating. At the end of the document is a list identifying which people, from each municipality who were liable for military service. The name of each citizen who must serve (if called) was specifically mentioned. The citizen could however send another person in his place. With each name, the required personal equipment of the man was indicated, which he had to bring along; usually a “musket and side arm” or “pike and sidearm”. In the squad from Zantkau, the Scholz Paul Zirnissko was named first, with musket and side arms.

Note by JWS:

The personal equipment was listed in the original document as “Langrohr und Seitenwehr oder Speiß und Seitenwehr”. A Langrohr was a long-barreled hunting weapon used by the civilian militia. Seitenwehr (sidearms) included a Degen oder Rapier (a dagger or a rapier sword).

In the year 1608 another military muster was completed. The people liable for military service were not organized by location, but were arranged according to their occupational classes. Under the paragraph “Now Following the Free”, 24 mayors were specified, among them was listed Paul Zernizky (so!) of Zantkau.

Note by JWS:

Note the spelling of Paul’s last name has written in another form; this time closer to our current spelling.

Around 1605, Paul Zirnizky “the respectable, faithful Mayor of Tzanckau”, as he is referred to in the purchase agreement with the Stift of Trebnitz, acquired in addition to the four Hufen already possessed by him, two further Hufen of land, which are recognized as landholdings of the mayor’s office “for eternal time free of all debts and easements” by the Stift of Trebnitz. Paul died between 1611 and 1619. The office of Mayor of Zantkau continued within the “Zernitzky” family and their relatives until 1687.

Notes by JWS:

Note the minor change in the spelling of the last name from Zirnizky (in 1605) to Zernizky (in 1608) for our family members in Zantkau, but no other example was provided to show the Zernitzky variation being used. Also note the variation above in the spelling of Zantkau - as Tzanckau.

Maria Szernischko, a daughter of Blasius Sciernisko and a niece of Paul Zirnizky was born in 1608 at the village Domnowitz. Maria married Kaspar Hennemann who was the Mayor of Zantkau after Paul held the office.

End of Chapter Notes and Additional Information by JWS:

The major differences between villages governed by Polish Law (Polnisches Recht) and those under German Law (Deutsches Recht) were:

| Polish Law (Polnisches Recht) | German Law (Deutsches Recht) |
|--|--|
| Marriages were only between families within a village. | Freedom to select mates from other villages. |
| Large tithing payments of natural produce and compulsory labor were provided by the village to the Lord. | Small (or no) tithing payments of natural produce to the Lord. |
| The field belongs to the Lord, the farmers cultivate it in service of the Lord, or are mere beneficiaries. | The farmers are bonded hereditary owners of their land. There was a community. The village church was rarely seen as an owner of part of the village. |
| The Lord was the judge and manager. | Administration and adjudication were made by the hereditary mayors, who were often the leaders of the settlement of the villages. |
| Small settlements. | Large parent villages were often several small Slavic villages united to a large German village by a connecting clearing of the land. The land clearings were a common characteristic. |

Germanengrund (Domnowitz)

From the darkness of the Silesian past, around the middle of the 13th century a community arose in the northwest part of what is today's Trebnitz County; a community whose name is reminiscent of the original form of the name of the Apostle Thomas: Domanovichi. That place is approximately 1 ½ km from today's border of Militsch County, and 11 km from the city of Trebnitz, the county seat of Trebnitz County. The western and northern boundary adjoins Militsch County, the northeastern boundary is represented by the Schätzke River, a tributary of the Bartsch River.

Notes by JWS:

Wilhelm Starnitzki wrote his manuscript before the Second World War. Militsch and Trebnitz counties are now in Poland and have new names: Milicz and Trzebnica. The Bartsch River is now the Barycz River.

Domnowitz was written as Domanouichi in 1203. Domnowitz was written as Domanouici in a 19 March 1267 document regarding the properties and rights of the Trebnitz Cloister. One year later, Pope Clement IV canonized St. Hedwig of Silesia.

Other spellings of the village name included: Domanouici (1208), Domanowitz (1248), Domanowiz (1252, 1608, 1736 and 1785), Domanovis (1253), Domanevici (1267), Domonowitz (1410), Domanowitz (1449, 1575, 1594, 1601, 1615, 1654, 1666 and 1743), Dommanowicz (about 1505), Domanewietz (1575), Domanowicz (1575, 1587 and 1622), Domnowicz (1575), Domonowicz (1579), Domanow (1604), Zdomonowic (1639), Domonowic (1641) and Domnowitz (1616, 1718, 1725, 1726, 1743 and 1863). The name of the village was also written as Damnowitz in some church records and books, including the 1845 geography book written by Johann Georg Knie.

The population of Domnowitz was 518 in 1845 (Knie, page 103). Wilhelm Starnitzki listed the population of Domnowitz as 380 in 1931. Domnowitz was renamed as Germanengrund in 1937. In 1939, the population was 379. It is now named Domanowice, Poland.

The origin of the location probably dates back to the middle of the 11th Century, in the period of growth following the founding of the Catholic diocese at Breslau in the year 975. It may be concluded that a bearer of the biblical name Thomas, may have been a clergyman of the diocese, or a dignitary or founder of one of the monasteries possessed by the parish.

The village Domnowitz received the new name Germanengrund in the year 1937, when many places in Silesia were renamed. The new name was based on the numerous Germanic gravesites that were found there, which indicated an early settlement of the Germanic people.

The following description concerning the local living conditions and population information is extracted from the official Katastralverhandlung of 12 February 1743, Domnowitz was described as follows:

“the farmers and the free people, and also nine day-laborers possess their goods and houses by hereditary means. The remaining day-laborers and farmers are subjects. The ground is sandy and is subject to wetness. The subjects pasture their cows on the uncultivated land and in the stubble fields, the sheep however are kept in the Pawellau forest, for which the community annually pays 70 Thalers for pasture fees and interest to the Stift.

The meadows are very exposed to flooding, but a ditch drains the water from the uncleared land owned by the Trachenberg community. The farmers pay a portion of their grain, as interest on each Huf of land. All farm laborers (who are conscripted to the Catholic Cloister at Trebnitz) have to give one pile of wood to the Trebnitzer Stift each week, also they must serve in the fields, and provide cart-loads of fish. But from each cart-load of fish they may keep one carp.”

“George Ziegion, Caspar Weiss, Marie Syllen, Daniel Scora and Hans Sternecke (Johann Sterniske) do not have to perform further services, other than taking turns at picking up and transporting (in turn) the clergymen during the holidays. The landlord and landlady will be provided 5 to 6 days of service at their manor. The village is on land owned by the Powitzko Catholic parish associated with the Trachenberg parish. But since these subjects are Protestants, they belong to the church at Pawellau. There is no schoolteacher here, but the children are taught in the households.”

Notes by JWS:

The Katastralverhandlung (Catastral Negotiation) of 12 February 1743 was an official report of the catastral registry (the land register of property values used for setting real estate taxes). It was a written list that included the number of livestock, field size and production, type of crops, and the number of farmers by their occupational categories. The Katastralverhandlung included cadasters (plat maps) showing locations and classifications of the farmers' fields. It was started in Silesia in 1723, completed in 1743, and was used to determine property taxes in 1748.

A larger portion of the old document (which Wilhelm paraphrased from) can be found on pages 290-291 (pages 403 & 404 of 502 pages) in the second part of Dr. August Meitzen's Urkunden Schlesischer Dörfer, zur Geschichte der Ländischen Verhältnisse, und der Flureintheilung insbesondere. Namens des Vereins für Geschichte und Alterthum Schlesiens. Codex diplomaticus Silesiae. Vierter Band. Breslau: Joseph Max & Comp., 1863. That book can be downloaded from the Internet. A discussion of the history of Domnowitz with detailed descriptions and maps of the farmers' fields (one of which is shown below) begins on page 62 in the first section of Meitzen's book.

Four of the five individuals (George Ziegion, Caspar Weiss, Daniel Scora and Hans Sternecke) may have been exempt from the court's service requirement because they held village offices in addition to being farmers. Marie Syllen may have been Maria (née Scholz) Sille the widow of the Erb- und Gerichtscholz Daniel Sille who died in 1738. Meitzen's transcription included more information on the arrangement of services between the village and the landowners at Trachenberg. Besides 5 to 6 days of service, the village also had to provide one-half Stoss load of wood every seven months. The German word Stoss (Stoß) had many meanings. In Silesia, it appears to have meant a unit of volume for firewood or timber, equal to 4 Klaftern. The size of 1 Klafter of wood varied by region but appears to have been a little less than the North American measure: a cord of wood.

Wilhelm Starnitzki identified Hans Sterncke as Johann Sterniske in his transcription included in this chapter, but in Chapter 4 Wilhelm identified Hans as Johann Sternitzky. This Johann Sternitzky (Sterncke, Sterniske) may have been Hans Sternitzke (as he was identified in the property transfer for Bauergut Grundstück Nr. 26 on 23 June 1736 at Domnowitz). That Hans Sternitzke was the son of the Protestant Freigärtner Gregor Tschernisky who bought property in Domnowitz in 1655. Gregor was born around 1619, the son of Johann (Hans) Ziernitschke (1575-1655). The lineage of these family members was: George (c. 1510-c.1574, SN1) - Blasius the Elder (c.1544-c.1615, SN22) - Johann/Hans (1575-1655) - Gregor (c.1619-c.1730) - Johann/Hans (c.1714- c.1765).

Powitzko was a village in Militsch County. Powitzko was named Urdorf in 1936, and it had a population of 664 in 1939. A Catholic church was located there. It is now named Powidzko, and is only 7 kilometers northwest of Domnowitz (now Domanowice). Trachenberg (now named Żmigród) is a little farther north, but still in Militsch County, just to the north and west of Trebnitz County. Trachenberg was known as Zunigrod (1155), Smigrod (1228), Zmigrod (1245) and Trachenberg in 1287. Trachenberg had a population of about 1200 in the year 1287, and 4570 in the year 1939, and is now known as Zmigrod. See Book III, Chapter 5: Cities and Villages of Militsch County in the Breslau District.

An individual named Caspar Weis was associated with the construction of the church at Pawellau in 1709. See Book II, the Memorial Book for the Bicentennial Anniversary of the Protestant Church of Pawellau 1709-1909.

The section of the Codex diplomaticus Silesiae concerning Domnowitz was in Volume IV, starting on page 62. It contains the full printing of the Katastralverhandlung, which is shown in part here. It shows that at around 1860, there were 22 farmsteads and 24 smaller properties in Domnowitz. Thirteen of those properties, except for fields belonging to Gärtners, were treated completely as part of the properties of individual farmers. From the status report of 1869, the whole area of Domnowitz amounted to 3379 Prussian Morgen (which equals 15.36 Hufen, or 860 hectares).

In the year 1931, there resided in Domnowitz: 17 farmers, 9 Freigärtner, 11 property owners, 4 Häusler, and 3 owners of small properties. The community's total population was 380 souls before the war.

Where all sources of research for going back further failed, I found again valuable information in the old Schöppenbüchern, purchase books, mortgage registers and other community documents of Trebnitz County, which are archived with public records in Breslau.

Notes by JWS:

Schöppenbüchern were books maintained by village administrators to document private agreements and contacts (such as land sales, wills, guardianships, etc.). In cities, they were called Stadtbücher (city-books). Schöppe was another word for Schöffe, a lay assessor or juryman.

Apart from the inheritance and ownership records in the mortgage books and Schöppenbüchern, which are interesting for the kinship researcher, I found the confirmation book for the years 1512, 1594, 1608 and 1609 for the Trebnitz Stift. This led to identifying possible places that may have inhabitant directories worth searching for. These directories were set up at that time for muster in time of war. They are treasure troves of information for every serious family researcher. For example: see the included chapter regarding Zantkau. The first squad of "Domanowitz" (Domnowitz) was listed, and there designated for war service: Blasien Czirnisko with musket and sidearm. At the conclusion of this entry was written:

"under this designation Blasien Czirnisko shall come immediately, or send another".

As previously mentioned in the chapter regarding Zantkau, this Blasius was the older brother of the mayor Paul Czierniske in Zantkau. Blasius established himself in Domnowitz, after he transferred the hereditary office of mayor at Zantkau to Paul. He bought the rural farmstead of Lukas Poßnansky [Posznansky] in 1584 for about 1200 Schwere Marks. At that time the Schwere Mark was worth 48 Groschen, and one Groschen was worth 12 Heller. Refer to the chapter regarding the coinage system in Silesia.

Notes by JWS:

A typical farmstead consisted of a dwelling house with its outbuildings and adjoining land.

Lukas Poßnansky (as written by Wilhelm Starnitzki) was recorded in the Domnowitz Schoppenbuch (as transcribed by Meitzen) as Lucas Posnansky and Lucas Posnansken (pages 277-8, XIII. 1575. 20 April and 7 May) and as Lucasz Posznanszki (page 278, item XV. 1587. 9. Mai). An earlier member of that family, Miculay Posnansky, was documented in 1523 at the village Vyest (Gross Ujeschütz) in the book by Heinrich Grüger.

Domnowitz was undergoing economic development by transformation from Polish Law to German Law at the time when Blasius Czirnisko purchased his farmstead there in 1584. In 1410, Domnowitz was a typical Polish village comprised of eight plots of land (Dzedzinen) where the farmers were serfs, working the land for the feudal lord. The farmers paid rent to the landlord in the form of money, grain, honey and wagon wheels. The Polish households were organized in the dzedzina system (undivided brothers) with three generations living together - with the grandfathers (Dzed) passing on the head of household on to their grandsons. The property of the households did not include the buildings or land. The Dukes of Münsterberg-Öls (Heinrich III and his brother Karl II) began the transformation of Domnowitz (and neighboring villages such as Schickwitz) in 1575. A 1587 litigation document (signed on the 9th of May by the Karl II) between the Abbess Margareth of the Trebnitz Stift and the farmers of Domnowitz (including Lucasz Posznanski) was discussed by Wilhelm Starnitzki (below).

Domnowitz organized as eight plots of land (Dzedzinen) prior to German Law.

Economic development of Domnowitz from 1410 to 1821.

This change of ownership had its own prehistory. Documents show that the selling of the property owned by Poßnansky fulfilled a debt to the Trebnitz Cloister Stift. He was repeatedly in serious conflict with the criminal law several times and had made himself unpopular with the territorial landlord, the Trebnitz Cloister. Poßnansky's situation was made particularly even more unpopular because of ongoing legal proceedings against the farming community, for their illegal profits from the clearing of woodland belonging to the cloister. The farmers were found guilty by a ducal judgment and had to pay retroactive interest payments for 19 previous years of land rental to the Stift. I infer the information concerning the litigious matter of the Trebnitz cloister against the farming community of Domnowitz and the farmer Lukas Poßnansky, from the transcription of significant archives by August Meitzen as published in his Documents of Silesian Villages (Codex diplomaticus Silesiae, Volume 4), which was published at Breslau in 1860/63.

Concerning Lukas Poßnansky, the ducal judgment determined that his widow (Herr Poßnansky had in the meantime deceased) had “to compensate for the mischief and the impropriety of the man” to the Stift by paying the sum of 200 Marks from the sale of his property. The first 140 Marks of the land purchased by Blasius Czirnisko on 14 April 1584 would be deposited in favor of the Stift. The other 60 Marks would be paid to the Stift in annual payments of 10 Marks from the estate of Poßnansky. Upon deposit of the total amount of 200 Marks, the widow Poßnansky was relieved of all liability to the buyer - the new owner Blasius Czirnisko. The Stift took over and represented any further demands or claims made by the buyer Czirnisko.

The area of the property bought by Blasius was defined in the contract as: “it is more or less, as was measured on the instruction of Her Grace the Abbess.” This indefinite area specification and the reference to the measuring arranged by the Stift relate to the previously mentioned illegal appropriation of property from the forests owned by the Stift.

The wars of the last centuries often interrupted in equal measure the events and days of those inhabitants of Germanengrund. Mixed with those events was their dependency on the monastery at Trebnitz, including standard agreements for compulsory manual labor services, labor performed with draught animals (horses or oxen), such as plowing and moving wagons, grain and honey interest, field-tithing and so on. In the old documents we read the names of the local residents, who were connected with the Sternitzke family history by marriages, such as: Becker, Bessog, Gorstelle, Jonitz (Junietz, Juntz), Knur, Koschmieder, Krause (Krusche), Kubiga (Kubicke, Kubitzka), Labitzke, Latun, Majonke (Majuntke), Messner, Meissner, Mohaupt, Munder, Nitschke, Rudel, Sille, Skor, Sorelle, and others.

Blasius Czirnisko - Personal Information

Blasius also eventually held the position of mayor at his new residence at Domnowitz, though not as the hereditary mayor (Erbscholz) - such as one that was appointed only later - but nevertheless Blasius was the appointed Setzscholz.

Notes by JWS:

In chapter 5, Wilhelm Starnitzki recorded the years Blasius Czirnisko held the office of Gerichtsscholz of Domnowitz as 1584 to 1608. Blasius was probably appointed as the Setzscholz by the Abbess at Trebnitz, who was Margaretha von Lüttwitz from 1574 to 1602 (Bach, page 214).

The office of Scholz for the village of Domnowitz became a hereditary office (Erbscholz) by order of the Abbess Elisabeth Pietrowskin, on the 3rd of July in 1615. This would have been around the time of the death of Blasius Czirnisko. Wilhelm Starnitzki recorded Jakob Tzernitzke (Szernitzke, Scierniski) as the Erbscholz of Domnowitz from 1617 to 1639. That information conflicts with the list of *Scholz*en identified by Karl Sille (see his list below), who listed Jacob Ritter as the Erbscholz of Domnowitz in 1615 and 1622. Perhaps Jakob Tzernitzke was the son-in-law of Jacob Ritter and was the Erbscholz from 1622 to 1639.

Karl Sille identified the following early mayors of Domnowitz:

- 1594, Blasius Czirnisko the Setzscholz,
- 1615, Jacob Ritter the first real Erbscholz (as identified by August Meitzen),
- 1622, Jacob Ritter,
- 1650, 1653, 1655 and 1656, Friedrich Böhm (see the note below),
- 1663, Georg Sille (the Elder, a son of Girge Sille from Groß Kaschutz),
- until 1670, Heinrich Böhm,
- after 1670, George Sille (the Younger, a son of Hans Sille from Groß Kaschutz),
- 1670 to 1715, Heinrich Sille (a son of George Sille the Younger),
- 1715, Daniel Sille (a son of George Sille the Younger),
- about 1750, Johann Heinrich Sille (a son of Daniel Sille),
- 1784, David Sille (see the note below regarding David Sylle),
- about 1820, Johann Gottlieb Sille, and
- 1866, David Sille (until the legal abolishment of the Erbscholz office by community leaders in 1872, presumably replaced by an elected office).

Marina Böhma (Böhm) was baptized at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 19th of March in 1656. She was the daughter of the Scholz of Domnowitz Friderico Böhma (Friedrich Böhm) and his wife Catharina (née Scierniskowna) Böhma. The -owna suffix indicates Catharina was not married prior to her marriage to Friedrich Böhm. Catharina's father's surname was Sciernisko.

The Schlesische Provinzialblätter for August of 1800 listed the Gerichtsscholz of Domnowitz as David Sylle.

In this capacity Blasius was entrusted with the functions of the lower jurisdiction and administration of the village. As Scholz, Blasius was mentioned several times in official documents and other old documents, including one from an official act on 22 September 1594 (see the Schöppenbuch of Domnowitz below), where he appeared with two village elders and the two court councilmen concerning the will of a farmer named Vieczek Skora.

Below is shown the original text from the source: Codex diplomaticus Silesiae, printed at Breslau in 1863, Volume 4, page 282. It is presented in its original language and diction, as it was recorded on page 43 in the Schöppenbuch for the villages Ujeschütz, Domnowitz and others.

Notes by JWS:

A Schöppenbuch was a book maintained by village administrators to document agreements and contracts (such as land sales, wills, guardianships, etc.). Several villages (including Ujeschütz and Domnowitz) had one centralized Schöppenbuch, probably due to the fact that the owner of these villages was the Stift at Trebnitz. There are many pages from the Schöppenbuch of Ujeschütz and Domnowitz included in Volume 4 of the Codex diplomaticus Silesiae. Page 282 is a good example to show how those agreements were documented, and it shows how much the German language has changed in 400 years. Prior to translation into English (included below), the original text was translated for me into modern German by Mrs. Solveig (Sternitzky) Opitz from Leipzig, Germany.

In this case Mr. Hans Tschammer (from the village of Sabor in Glogau County, now called Zabornia) appeared before the Domnowitz village officials at the behest of an aged Mr. Skorasz, to document a property transfer from father to son. One of the officials at that proceeding was Blasien Czirniskzko (who was recorded as Blasius Zierniŕko, Szernischko and Szernitzke in Domnowitz property transfer records), an ancestor of Wilhelm Starnitzki. This is occurring in a type of purchase option, paid to the other heirs prior to the father's death. The discussion concerning the inheritance sounds like justification for the low cost of the purchase.

Translation:

Document XVI. 1594. 22 September.

Schöppenbuch for the villages Ujeschütz, Domnowitz, and others, page 54.

The honorable Hans Tschammer, the hard worker of Sabor from Borgkwicz, on urgent request of, and representing Mr. Vieczegk Skorasz, a farmer of Domnowitz who could not appear personally in front of this office because of his advanced age, appeared at the village Domnowitz before the following persons.

Blasien Czirniszko (Scholzen, village mayor), Jakob Klozegk and Lukasz Kubigen (village elders), also Pavel Janiez and Jan Koschmiedern (members of the small claims court) as proxies and as members of the court, were requested to hear the best and certain testimony of Mr. Vieczegk Skora: today he is a very old and weak man, and can no longer administer and maintain his property of 2 Hufen and 12 Morgen, and his dear son Augustin Skorasz, who remained with his father, always took care of economic matters. Through his past care and diligence for the property, the son has provided all necessary care for his father. Therefore, nobody will inherit the property more justly than his son Augustin after the father's death.

The property in Domnowitz with all accessories, grain, cattle, house and farmland is to be sold to the before mentioned son Augustin and his inheritors for 300 Schwere (heavy) Marks.

The following payments were agreed upon: next St. Martin's Day (11 November) 100 Schwere Marks and next Pentecost 50 Schwere Marks. This cash will be paid to the other children of Vieczegk Skorasz. Next Pentecost and thereafter annually on the same date, Augustin is to pay 15 Schwere Marks of the inherited cash up to the remaining payment of the pending 150 Schwere Marks. Beyond that, Augustin is to give his brother Jan Skorasz 30 Schwere Marks, 3 horses, 1 one-year old foal, 18 sheep and a fitted wagon, of the inheritance on St. Martin's Day (11 November). Additionally, he must give his father food and drink, the necessary clothing supplies and 3 Groschen of all profits (hereafter from the title).

Confirmed on the 22nd of September in 1594.

Note by Wilhelm Starnitzki:

According to the contract of 26 April 1596, the brothers and sisters demanded their mother's portion, because their mother had died before the sale. Additionally, they estimated the value of the property sold to Augustin at much more, at about 700 Schwere Marks. According to the will of the brothers and sisters, Augustin was not to receive a share of this cash, since Augustin was the youngest child. However due to the legal and other extracts they conceded 30 Marks to him, which he was allowed to keep for himself.

Blasius sold his property that he had taken over from Lukas Poßnansky after Blasius had managed it for 27 years, to his son Jakob for about 3100 Marks. The size of the property is indicated as 4 ½ Hufen and 3 Morgen.

Notes by JWS:

The property transfer occurred on the 15th of April in 1611. The table of Domnowitz property transfers (see below) shows Blasius Szernitzke sold his Bauergut (farmstead) to his son Jakob Szernitzke.

Blasius celebrated a second marriage in 1596, and he died around 1616. We know the names of the children from both marriages from the settlement agreement of his second wife (Anna) with the children from his first marriage. The descendants table given below contains the names of those children. Also given below is a table listing the Sternitzke property transfers in Domnowitz after 1584.

Earliest Sternitzke Family at Domnowitz (Germanengrund)

The years of birth and death, as well as information about their lifespan, for all of the people listed here are estimated. The family members are listed in the same order in which they were shown on page 123 of the old Schöppenbuch for Domnowitz.

Note by JWS:

I have added the last names as they were identified in the Domnowitz property transfers (included further below) and other records, to illustrate the variations of the family name recorded for Blasius and his children. I have also added Wilhelm's Stammliste Nummers (Ancestor List Numbers) for cross referencing this table with other tables.

Notes by JWS:

Regarding Blasius Tschernißke (c.1544-c.1615, SN22): See the discussion regarding conflicting year of death information in Chapter 5, Directory of all Village Magistrates (or Mayors) and Members of the Courts from the House of Sternitzke, the End of Chapter Notes and Additional Information by JWS: George Tschirnitzke (SN1) and Blasius Tschernißke (SN22).

Regarding Paul Czierniske: The village Deutkowe, as written by Wilhelm, has not been found in other references. It may have been either Donkawe or Duchowe, two villages in Militsch County. Donkawe was renamed as Freihufen in 1937, and now named Dunkowa. Duchowe was renamed as Weinberge in 1936, and is now known as Duchowo.

Regarding Simon Scziernisko (1574-after 1668): Dobrtowitz was a village in Militsch County. It was renamed as Gutfelde in 1936 and is now known as Dobrosławice. Simon Scziernisko from Dobrtowitz was a baptism sponsor at the Powitzko Catholic church on the 12th of April in 1609. He married Hedwig Klubrowna before 1611. Margreta, the daughter of Simon Scziernisko and Hedwig (née Klubrowna) Scziernisko from Dobrtowitz, was baptized at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 9th of June in 1611. Simon Scziernisko from Dobrtowitz was listed as a baptism sponsor on the 10th of June in 1668 at the Catholic church in Powitzko. See Book III, Chapter 6, Village of Dobrtowitz in Militsch County the end of chapter notes: the Family of Simon Scziernisko and Hedwig (née Klubrowna) Scziernisko, 1609 to 1689 Dobiertowitz.

Regarding Hans Ziernitschke: See the end of chapter notes: the Birth, Marriage and Family of Johann (Hans) Ziernitschke (1575-1655), 1584 to 1655 Domnowitz.

Regarding Blasius Tschernißke the Elder and Blasius the Younger I: Blasius Tschernißky the Younger I (1578-1614) was one of the sons of Blasius Tschernißke the Elder.

Regarding Mattes Szernischko (1605-c.1675) and his mother Anna: Mattes is the German short form of Matthias. The English version is Matthew. The original manuscript written by Wilhelm Starnitzki listed 1605 as the year of birth for Mattes. The records from the Catholic Church at Powitzko show Mateus Scziernisko the son of Blaseus Scziernisko and his wife Anna, was baptized on the 9th of February in 1610. Mateus is similar to the Polish name Mateusz, a variation of Matthew.

Blasius the Elder died in 1615. Anna Scziernisken, the widow of Blasev Sczierniske from Domnowitz married Hans Dicke at the Powitzko Catholic Church on the 7th of July in 1616. Hans Dicke was the son of the Scholz (mayor) Martin Dicke from Haubitz.

Regarding Jakob Szernitzke and Blasius the Younger II: Blasius Scziernisko the Younger II (1616-after 1651) was the son of Jakob Scziernisko (1584-c.1641, SN262) and his wife Catarina (Wenzel) Scziernisken. Jakob married Catarina Wenzel at Powitzko on the 6th of July in 1613. Their son Blasius Scziernisko was baptized on the 15th of January in 1616 at the Catholic Church in Powitzko. See the end of chapter notes: the Birth, Marriage and Family of Jakob Szernitzke (1585-c.1641, SN262), 1584 to 1691 Domnowitz.

Regarding Georg Ziernißko (1589-c.1649): See the Family of Georg Scziernißke and Vefie Scziernißke, 1589 to 1653 Domnowitz.

Regarding Lorenz Scziernisko (1582-1652, SN350): Lorenz Scziernisko from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 25th of January in 1609, and on the 4th of July in 1610. In many cases the properties were transferred from father to son, or from a husband to his widow. Whenever possible, I included the identified Sternitzke family members' lineage in my notes following each transaction. Photographs of some of the properties in Domnowitz (taken by my wife and myself in 2008) are shown below. Blasius the Elder purchased the rural farmstead at Domnowitz from Lucas Poßnansky in 1584. After 27 years of owning the property, Blasius the Elder sold the property to his son Jakob in 1611. Jakob sold part of the property in 1615. | | |

Jakob was a Bauer (farmer), an Erbscholz (hereditary community leader or mayor), a Kaufzeuge (a court official witness for property agreements), Vormund (guardian), and a Bürge (guarantor of security or bonds) at Domnowitz from 1617 to 1639. Jakob (1584-c.1641, SN262) sold part of his property to Andreas Maionka in 1615. That part included a Baustelle , a site for construction of a farmstead. Johann/Hans paid a sales tax of 20 Marks and 40 Groschen (2.08%) to the Trebnitz Cloister for the purchase in 1601. See the end of chapter notes: Codex Diplomaticus Silesia, Volume IV . Johann/Hans Ziernitschke (1575-1655) gave part of his property to his son Gregor Tschiernisko (c.1619-c.1730). That property was a Baustelle , a site for constructing a new farmstead. Gregor (c.1619-c.1730) sold part (or all) of his property to Jakob Czurilla in 1639. This Baustelle was probably 1 Hufen in size, because Johann/Hans (1575-1655) purchased a Bauergut with 3 Hufen of land in 1601, but the property transfer in 1650 shows the Bauergut included only 2 Hufen of land. Wilhelm Starnitzki did not list a money amount associated with that transfer. This leads me to believe Friedrich (c.1744-after 1811) was the father of Gottlieb (c.1774-c.1819). | | |

Again, no money was listed with that transaction. Perhaps Gottlieb Sternitzke was the son of Friedrich Sternitzke, and Christiane (née Gramatte) Sternitzke was Gottlieb's mother (and Friedrich's widow). A legal dispute regarding the 1811 property transfer may have been the reason for the property transfer in 1813, or the 1813 transfer may have been a correction to the transfer record book. | | |

Karl Sille's notes from the Grundbuch beim Amtsgericht Trebnitz showed Bauergut Grundstück Nr. 26 was owned prior to 1837 by Gottlieb and Christiane Ruschig. Anna Rosina (née Sternitzke) Scholz may have been the daughter of Friedrich Sternitzke (c.1744-after 1811 and Christiane (née Gramatte) Sternitzke-Ruschig. | Notes by JWS: This Martin Sterniske (junior, c.1801-after 1845) was probably a son of Martin Sternitzke (senior, c.1762-c.1801). Martin (junior) would have been a brother of Gottlieb Sternitzke (Sterniske, c.1800-after 1881) who also was the son of Martin (senior). In 1893, Carl (the son) was employed as a Wurstmacher (sausagemaker) in Breslau, and he lived at Mathiasstraße 58 (6 blocks northeast of the University Bridge, now Jedności Narodowej Street). Carl Skor (the son) married Auguste Luise Pauline Werft at Breslau on the 1st of April in 1893. Carl Skor (the father) was a Bauergutbesitzer (farmstead owner) at Domnowitz at the time of his son's 1893 wedding. Susanna (née Sternitzke) Skor had died at Domnowitz prior to the wedding. Handwritten notes on the marriage record show that Carl Skor (the son) died at Breslau in 1928. He was the son of Georg Sternisky (c.1739-before 1809) and Elisabeth (née Nitschke) Sternisky. Johann Sterniske was baptized at Pawellau on the 10th of January in 1765. Johann purchased a Bauergut und Kretscham (farmstead and inn) in Domnowitz from Hans Skora in 1785. Johann married Maria Skor at Kainowe on the 24th of January in 1786. Johann (1765-1806) purchased Bauergut Grundstück Nr. 38 in 1805 from his father Georg Sternitzke (c.1739-before 1809). | Notes by JWS: Johann Sterniske (1801-1833), the son of Johann Sterniske (1765-1806), was born on the 27th of August in 1801 and he was baptized at Kainowe on the 30th of August in 1801. He married Johanna Christiane Schlange on the 18th of January in 1825. He followed his father as the owner of Bauerguts und Kretschams at Domnowitz. Johann died on the 25th of January in 1833 from Brustkrankheit (pneumonia). This property purchase is rather curious. I do not know why the seller of the property was listed as a question mark, when the buyer was listed as the son of the previous owner. The son of Johann Sterniske (1801-1833) would have only been about 12 years old when the property was transferred to him in 1813. This property transfer was only 8 years after his father purchased the property in 1805. The word Hinzuworben indicates an additional section of farmland was added to the original house and farmland (for the price of 50 Silesian Talers). This payment was much less than what the property was worth in 1805 (722 Silesian Thalers). It is possible that Johann (1801-1833) inherited the property. Source: | | |

| Notes by JWS: Wilhelm Starnitzki noted that Johann Sterniske was born around 1840, the son of the previous owner Johann Sterniske . The previous owner Johann Sterniske (1801-1833) died on the 25 th of January in 1833, so the subject of this property transfer was probably born around 1833. His mother, Johanna Christiane (née Schlange) Sterniske , died at Domnowitz on the 12 th of April in 1870 (the year of this property transfer). Friedrich Sterniske (1873-after 1938) the son of Johann Sterniske (c.1833-after 1908) was born in 1873 and took ownership of this property in 1903. At that time, the property was a Freigärtnerstelle . See the next property record. The 1908 Trebnitz County Address Book listed a Domnowitz Auszügler (retired farmer) named Johann Sternitzke . He was not listed in the later Trebnitz County address books. The 1912 marriage record of Friedrich Wilhelm Hermann Sternitzke (see the next property record) listed his parents as the Auszügler (pensioner) Johann Sternitzke and his wife Elisabeth (née Mohaupt) Sternitzke . Elisabeth died before Friedrich 's wedding in 1912. Johann was still living at Domnowitz when his younger son was married in 1913. | Notes by JWS: Friedrich Wilhelm Hermann Sternitzke (1873-after 1938) was born on the 29 th of May in 1873 at Domnowitz in Trebnitz County. He was the son of Johann Sternitzke and his wife Elisabeth (née Mohaupt) Sternitzke . The Auszügler (pensioner) Johann Sternitzke was still living at Domnowitz before his son's wedding in 1912. The Freigärtner Friedrich Wilhelm Hermann Sternitzke married Martha Emma Okrob on the 15 th of October in 1912. The 1908 Trebnitz County Address Book listed the Freigärtner Fritz Sternitzke and the Auszügler Johann Sternitzke as residents at Domnowitz. The 1937/38 and the 1942 Trebnitz County address book listed the Freigärtner Friedrich Sternitzke as a resident of Germanengrund (Domnowitz). | Notes by JWS: Johann Sternitzke and Daniel Sternitzke were probably brothers. Daniel Sternitzke married Rosina Matzke . Their son David Sternitzkÿ was born at Pawellau around 1816. He was a Protestant. David Sternitzkÿ married Elisabeth Linke from Weidenhof in Breslau County. David 's parents, the Bauer (farmer) Daniel Sternitzkÿ and Anna Rosina (née Matzke) Sternitzkÿ died at Domnowitz. | | |

In 1883, the Lohngärtner David Sternitzkÿ lived at Weidenhof. A Lohngärtner was an agricultural day laborer with a house and small garden. He died at the age of 67 years old on the 16th of August in 1883 at the Kloster der Barmherzigen Brüder in Breslau at Klosterstrasse 57/59. That was a hospital operated by the Catholic order officially named the Hospitaller Order of the Brothers of Saint John of God.

Sille and Sternitzke Marriages in Trebnitz County

The editor of Wilhelm Starnitzki's manuscript was Karl Hans Sille (1897-1993) who was born at Schickwitz in Trebnitz County. See his history below, under Generation X.

Karl Sille found many variations in the spelling his family name. It was spelled Schilla, Schilda and Schila in records from 1575. Other versions of the name before 1800 included: Zila in 1609, Ziela in 1610, Scziala in 1610, Zilen in 1610, Zielen in 1613, Schilka in 1614, Zilka in 1615, Zilken in 1616, Schyla in 1617, Zielka in 1617, Zielo in 1617, Ziele in 1626, Szilla in 1628, Zilowa in 1638, Zyla from 1640 to 1666, Sylen in 1648, Sylina in 1648, Sille from 1650 to 1685, Sylle from 1652 to 1780, Zaiale in 1653, Syla in 1653, Zylina in 1662, Zilina in 1666, Sillin from 1672 to 1714, Zielly in 1675 and Syllin from 1686 to 1783. Many other versions of Sille followed these early versions.

The genealogical monographs written by Karl Sille included the histories of the families who were related to the Sille family through marriages in Trebnitz County: Bartsch, Böhm, Garbsch, Gnerlich, Gorstelle, Hübner, Kluge, Kotschote, Krause, Küpfer, Küpke, Labitzke, Lachmann, Majüntke, Mücke, Nitschke, Quicker, Riedel, Ritter, Ruschig, Schoschnick, Schmüde, Sebrantke, Sternitzke, Tischer, Viertel, Wüttke and many other families.

Karl Sille identified two major branches of the Sille family in Trebnitz County in the 16th Century. One branch of the family was a line of Kretschmers (innkeepers) at Domnowitz and the other branch were Erbscholzen (hereditary mayors) at Groß Kaschütz and Domnowitz. The following brief history of the Sille family focuses only on the ancestors of Karl Sille and the five known marriages between the Sille Erbscholzen branch and the Sternitzke (Tschernißke, Sterniske) families.

There was a sixth known marriage between the Sille and the Sternitzke family. Hermann Sternitzke and his wife Berta (née Sille) Sternitzke purchased Bauergut Nr. 18 at Domnowitz in 1888. Berta (née Sille) Sternitzke was not listed in the Karl Sille's manuscript regarding his family, though he listed her in the table of Domnowitz property transfers when he edited the manuscript by Wilhelm Starnitzki. Perhaps because he concentrated on the line of the Sille family who were Scholzen of Domnowitz. Berta may have been from the line of the Sille family who were Kretschmers (innkeepers) at Domnowitz.

Hermann Sternitzke and his wife Berta (née Sille) Sternitzke were baptismal sponsors for Martha Ida Anna Sternitzke, who was born at Janischguth on the 4th of October in 1895. Martha was the daughter of Hermann Reinhold Paul Sternitzke and his wife Ida Martha Minna née Sille. See Book III, Chapter 2, Village of Janischguth in Trebnitz County: Family of Hermann Reinhold Paul Sternitzki, 1891 to 1938 Janischguth.

Sille Family (Erbscholzen Branch) Generation I

Girge (Georg) Sille was born around 1590. He died at Groß Kaschütz after 1638. Girge Sille had two sons and one daughter: Georg, Hans and Anna. Groß Kaschütz (now named Kaszyce Wielkie in Trebnitz County) was a village in Militsch County. It is about 1.5 miles west of Domnowitz and 8 miles north of the city of Trebnitz.

Generation II

Georg (der Ältere) Sille was born at Groß Koschütz before 1615. Georg (der Ältere) replaced Friedrich Böhm as the Scholz of Domnowitz in 1663. Friedrich Böhm was the husband of Catharina (née Sczierniskowna) Böhm.

Hans Sille, the younger brother of Georg (der Ältere) was born at Groß Kaschütz on the 21st of December in 1615. Hans Sille was the Erbscholz (hereditary mayor) at Groß Kaschütz after 1670. Hans died at Groß Kaschütz on the 27th of August in 1679.

Generation III

Georg (der Jüngerer) Sille (before 1650-1694) was the son of Hans Sille. Georg (der Jüngerer) was born at Groß Kaschütz before 1650. Georg (der Jüngerer) purchased the Scholtisei (office of the mayor) of Domnowitz from Heinrich Böhm in 1670.

Geörge Syla (Georg Sille) was one of the sponsors for the baptism of Hanß Sternisko at Pawellau on the 12th of April in 1691. The parents of Hanß were listed as Geörge and Maria Sternisko from Viest (Gross Ujeschütz). See Book I, Chapter 14, Friedrichskirch (Kainowe): Sternitzke Family Baptisms at Friedrichskirch (Kainowe). Hanß Sternisko and Geörge Sternisko were listed in property transfer records at Gross Ujeschütz as Johannes Sternitzke (1691-1769, SN278), the son of Georg Sternitzke (c.1650-after 1709, SN133). See the 1671, 1715 and 1755 property transfers for Bauergut 10 in Book I, Chapter 10, Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz: Sternitzke Family Property Transfers, Purchases and Sales in Ujeschütz, Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz; and the Family of Johannes Sternisko (1691-1769, SN278), 1691 to 1786 Gross Ujeschütz.

The wife of Georg (der Jüngerer) Sille was listed as Susanna Syllin on the 29th of October in 1693, in the Pawellau Church baptism record of Katharina Scherniße, the daughter of George and Maria Scherniße from Hujeschitz (Gross Ujeschütz). They were certainly the same parents of listed in the 1691 baptism record for Hanß Sternisko.

The wife of Georg (der Jüngerer) Sille was listed as Susanna Sillin on the Pawellau Church baptism record for Hedewig Sterniße on the 27th of February in 1695. The parents of Hedewig were listed as George and Maria Sterniße from Uigschitz (Gross Ujeschütz). They were certainly the same parents of listed in the 1691 and 1693 baptism records.

Georg (der Jüngerer) Sille was buried at Powitzko on the 25th of November in 1694.

Generation IV

Domnowitz Property Transfers

The property transfer records provide some details of the family of Johann (Hans) Ziernitzchke (1575-1655). Refer to the above table of property transfers for details.

Johann (Hans) Ziernitschke (1575-1655) purchased the Zorßner family Bauergut (Bauergut Grundstück Nr. 26) in Domnowitz on the 16th of September in 1601. See the discussion below: Codex Diplomaticus Silesia, Volume IV.

Johann (Hans) Ziernitschke (1575-1655) gave part of his property to his son Gregor Tschiernisko (c.1619-c.1730). That property was a Baustelle, a site for constructing a new farmstead. Gregor (c.1619-c.1730) sold part (or all) of his property to Jakob Czurilla in 1639. This Baustelle was probably 1 Hufen in size, because Johann (Hans) (1575-1655) purchased a Bauergut with 3 Hufen of land in 1601, but the property transfer in 1650 shows the Bauergut included only 2 Hufen of land.

Johann (Hans) Tschernißky (1575-1655) the son of Blasius the Elder, sold a Bauergut (farmstead) and farmland to his nephew, Blasius Tschernißky (Blasius the Younger) the son of Jakob Tschernißky around 1650. Blasius the Younger sold the property to Hans Munder on the 7th of October in 1651.

Gregor Tschernisky (c.1619-c.1730) bought the remaining 1 Hufen of his father's property from the other heirs of his father on the 25th of June in 1655. He then sold a portion of that property (a Garten) to his younger brother Hans Tschernißke (c.1619-1717, SN272) on the 25th of June in 1664. The remaining estate of Gregor Tschernisky was rented by his heirs to Daniel Mohaubt on the 3rd of November in 1714. This was a temporary arrangement for 21 years until the youngest heir, Hans came of age. Johann/Hans Sternitzke (c.1714- c.1765) the son of Gregor (c.1619-c.1730) purchased his father's property in 1736 from Daniel Mohaubt. Johann (Hans) Sternitzke died in 1765. Friedrich Sternitzke (possibly the son of Hans Sternitzke, c.1714-c.1765) purchased the property from the heirs of Hans in 1765.

A Schöppenbuch was a book maintained by village administrators to document agreements and contracts (such as land sales, wills, guardianships, etc.). Georg would have been around 22 years old in 1611. Perhaps he was mentioned in the Schöppenbuch because he purchased a property in Domnowitz and was married in 1611.

The records from the Catholic church in Powitzko provided the following information about this branch of the Sternitzke family.

Birth of son Georg Scziernißke, 1649

Georgieß Scziernißke (1649-after 1698) was baptized at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 18th of May in 1649. He was the son of Geöß Scziernißke and wife Veßie Scziernißke from Domnowitz. This was probably not the only child of their marriage, but many of the pages in Powitzko record books are unreadable. See the Family of Georg Scziernisko (1649-after 1698) and Eva (née Tetsel) Scziernisko, 1649 to 1698 Domnowitz.

Gereß Scziernißko from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 14th of February in 1649.

Veßie Cziernißkin from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 8th of August in 1649. Veßie (or Vessie) is a German diminutive form of the Latin name Vespa.

Gezöß Cziernißke from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 12th of August in 1649. He probably died shortly after this event.

Veßla Scziernißken from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 22nd of November in 1651.

Weßin Scziernißken from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 4th of February in 1651.

Margreta Scziernisken from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor on the 26th of September in 1610 at the Catholic church in Powitzko. I have not identified this woman in the family history. She was not Margreta Czirniszko/Scziernisken (1600-after 1624), the daughter of Blasius (the Elder) Sczierniske (c.1544-c.1615, SN22) who was only 10 years old in 1610.

He was the son of Jacobus Scziernisko and his wife Catarina (maiden name unknown) from Domnowitz. See the Birth, Marriage and Family of Jakob Szernitzke (1584-c.1641, SN262), 1584 to 1691 Domnowitz.

Marcin (Martin) Scziernisko was baptized on the 25th of October in 1637 at the Powitzko Catholic Church. Domnowitz Property Transfers
Refer to the above table of property transfers for details.

Hans Tschernißky (the son of Blasius the Elder) sold a Bauergut (farmstead) and farmland to his nephew, Blasius Tschernißky (Blasius the Younger) the son of Jakob Tschernißky around 1650. Blasius the Younger sold the property to Hans Munder on the 7th of October in 1651.

Burial of daughter Marina Scziernisko (1652-1655)

Blozek (Blasius) Scziernisko may have married a second time. Blasÿ Scziernisko and Eva (née Suzelowna) Scziernisko from Domnowitz had a daughter name Marina. Marina died on the 5th of April in 1655 at the age of 3 years old. She was buried at Powitzko on the 6th of April in 1655. She was born around 1652. The -owna suffix means it was Eva's maiden name. Her father's surname was probably Suzel.

Burial of Eva Tschernißkin, 1706

Eva Tschernißkin from Domnowitz was buried at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 2nd of April in 1706.

Powitzko Church Records 1717 to 1741

There were several Powitzko church records that listed Ursula Scierniskowa from Domnowitz as a baptism sponsor during the period the wife of Georg Sciernisko was living at Domnowitz (before 1661 to 1687). There was another Ursula Scierniskowa who lived at Domnowitz during that period. It is impossible from the records to identify which Ursula was recorded in the records. See the Family of Gregor Sciernisko (c.1619-c.1730) and Ursula (née Beim) Sciernisko, 1653 to 1735 Domnowitz.

There are several records from the Catholic church in Powitzko that are related to the family of Daniel Sciernisko (senior, 1661-1723) who was the son of Georg Sciernisko (1639-1701).

Daniel Sciernisko from Domnowitz was a wedding witness at Powitzko on the 19th of January in 1717. He was a baptism sponsor at Powitzko on the 3rd of September in 1717 and on the 10th of May in 1718. This was probably Daniel Sciernisko (junior, c.1700-after 1741).

Maria Scierniskowa from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor at Powitzko on the 1st of September in 1718. The -kowa suffix indicates Maria was married to a Mr. Sciernisko. She was probably the wife of Daniel Sciernisko (junior, c.1700-after 1741). See the 1741 baptism of George Schiernißke.

Daniel Sciernisko from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor at Powitzko on the 1st of March, the 20th of August and the 22nd of September in 1720. He was also a baptism sponsor at Powitzko on the 11th of May in 1721. This was probably Daniel Sciernisko (junior).

Daniel Sciernisko (junior) the Coloni filius (son of the farmer) Danielis Sciernisko from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor on the 29th of June in 1722. Daniel (the son) was probably born before 1700.

This record and the previous record indicate Daniel Sciernisko (senior) died between the 28th of February and 25th of March in 1723.

The Colonus (farmer) Daniel Sciernisko (junior) from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor at Powitzko on the 15th of August in 1724. The inquilini (tenant farmer or agricultural day laborer) Daniel Sciernisko (junior) was a baptism sponsor at Powitzko on the 24th of May in 1725.

Powitzko Church Records 1731 to 1757
Related to Hanß Schiernißke (c.1712-1757)

There were several records from the Catholic church related to Hanß Schiernißke (c.1712-1757), the grandson of Georg Sciernisko (1639-1701). Hanß Schiernißke was a son of Daniel Schiernißke (senior) and a brother of Daniel Sciernisko (junior) and Adam Sciernisko. The year of birth of Hanß Schiernißke (c.1712-1757) was calculated from his age (45 years old) when he was buried at Powitzko on the 25th of October in 1757.

Hanß Schiernißke married Maria Schiernißkin around 1737. They were cousins. The 1738 baptism record for their son Johannes and the 1740 baptism record for their daughter Susanna recorded Maria's maiden name as Schiernißkin. Maria was born around 1719, based on her age of 37 years old when she was buried on the 6th of November in 1756. Hanß and Maria were Lutherans and belonged to the church at Pawellau. Maria may have been a sister of Eva Schiernißkin, the daughter of the Pauer (farmer) Christoph Schierniske from Pawellau. See the 1731 baptism record of Hanß Marcus, discussed below.

Hanß Marcus, the son of the Haußman George Marcus and his wife Maria (née Fischerin) Marcus, was baptized at Powitzko on the 31st of May in 1731. See Book II, Chapter 4: The Return of the Pawellau Protestant Church in 1708 and its Reconstruction (1708 - 1709).

Johannes Schiernißke was baptized on the 2nd of June in 1738 at the Powitzko catholic church. Johannes was the son the Bauer (farmer) Hanß Schiernißke and his wife Maria (née Schiernißkin) Schiernißke from Domnowitz. Johanes Schiernisko, the son of the Bauer Hanß Schiernisko from Domnowitz was buried on the 2nd of August in 1741 at the Catholic church in Powitzko.

Maria Schiernißke the wife of the Bauer (farmer) Hanß Schiernißke from Domnowitz was a baptism sponsor at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 22nd of January in 1745.

Maria Scirnißcko the wife of the Bauer (farmer) Hanß Scirnißcko from Domnowitz was buried on the 6th of November in 1756. She was a Lutheran and died at the age of 37 years old. She was born around 1719. She was probably buried at Pawellau, but her burial was recorded at the Catholic church in Powitzko.

Susanna Sciernisko married Hanß Mohaubt at Pawellau on the 20th of November in 1757. Other Records from the Catholic Church in Powitzko, 1653 to 1735

The records illustrate the male and female variations of the Sternitzke family name during that period of time.

There were several Powitzko church records that listed Ursula Scierniskowa from Domnowitz as a baptism sponsor during the period when another Ursula, the wife of Georg Sciernisko (1639-1701) was living at Domnowitz (before 1661 to 1687). A third Ursula Tscherniskin also lived at Domnowitz from around 1697 to after 1709. She was the second wife of Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-1714). Ancestry Tree of Else Marta Meta Labitzke

Karl Sille's monograph number 26, the Ahnenliste von Else Marta Meta Labitzke, included the ancestry of the Bauer (farmer) Gregor Sternitzke from Domnowitz. Karl estimated Gregor was born at Domnowitz around 1660 and died at Domnowitz before 1714. See Book III, Chapter 2, Village of Janischguth in Trebnitz County: the Family of Hermann Reinhold Paul Sternitzki (1865-1938, SN252), 1891 to 1938 Janischguth for the ancestor tree of Else Marta Meta Labitzke.

Birth of Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-1714)

Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-1714) was the second son of Johann Sciernisko (1610-1671, SN273) and Johann's first of three wives. Johann Sternitzke was born at Domnowitz. He bought Bauergut 10 in 1660 at Ujeschütz from his brother-in-law Michael Nadlitzke. Johann's two sons (Georg and Gregor) were born at Domnowitz before the family moved to Gross Ujeschütz. The name of their mother See Book I, Chapter 6: The Ancestors and Descendants of Wilhelm Starnitzki.

Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-1714) was the younger brother of Georg Sternitzke (c.1650-1709, SN133), so Gregor did not inherit the family farmstead in Gross Ujeschütz. He apparently moved to Domnowitz, because the Powitzko Catholic church records listed him as a Pauer/Bauer (farmer) from Domnowitz in the records for his children and in his 1714 burial record.

Marriages of Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-1714)

Karl Sille's monograph number 26 shows that Gregor married Maria Kollewe around 1687, and he then married Ursula Sebranke around 1700. He did not provide the sources of his information. The first name of Gregor's first wife does not correspond with the Powitzko Catholic church baptism records for their children. The wife of Gregor was listed as Eva in a baptism record from 1685.

Germans typically had two or more forenames. One forename (the Rufname) was used for everyday use by friends and family. The Rufname was usually underlined in official records where person's full names were listed. The forenames of the first wife of Gregor may have been Eva Maria, or Maria Eva.

Book I, Chapter 15, Briesche, Sternitzke Family Personal Data for Briesche: the Family of Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-after 1698, SN204) included data regarding the children of Gregor Sternitzke (c.1655-after 1698, SN204) and his wife Eva. Gregor (SN204) may have been Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-1714).

The forename of the second wife of Gregor was listed as Ursula on baptism records from 1697 to 1709, which corresponds with Karl Sille's monograph.

Gregor may have had a third wife, named Hedwig Sternitzke who was named as a widow of Gregor Sternitzke in a property transfer at Ujeschütz on the 15th of January in 1740. Or, it may have been another case of multiple forenames for the same person. Ursula and Hedwig may have been the same woman - named Ursula Hedwig or Hedwig Ursula. See the discussion below regarding other records from the Catholic church in Powitzko, 1699 to 1738.

Baptism of son George Schernißke, 1685

George Schzernisko (1685-c.1739) was baptized on the 24th of May in 1685 at the Catholic church in Powitzko. He was the son of Gregor Schzernisko and his wife Eva from Domnowitz.

Karl Sille's monograph number 26 only listed the one child of Gregor Sternisky who was also an ancestor of Else Marta Meta Labitzke. That child was listed as Georg Sternisky, who also was a Bauer in Domnowitz. Karl Sille estimated that Georg Sternisky was born at Domnowitz between 1690 and 1700, and Georg died before 1764. The wife of Georg was not identified in that monograph, but she was identified as Catharina Syllin in a later monograph written by Karl Sille. See the Family of Georg Sternitzke (1685-c.1739) and Catharina (née Sylle) Sternitzke, 1685 to 1755 Domnowitz.

Baptism of son Daniel Tschernißko, 1697

Daniel Tschernißko (1697-after 1762, SN49) was baptized at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 3rd of April in 1697. He was the son of Greger Tschernißko and his wife Ursula from Domnowitz. See Chapter 15, Briesche, Sternitzke Family Personal Data for Briesche: the Family of Daniel Sterniske (1697-after 1762, SN49).

Baptism and Burial of daughter Eva Tschernißko (1699-1699)

Eva Tschernißko (1699-1699) was baptized at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 2nd of July in 1699. She was the daughter of Gregor Tschernißko and his wife Ursula from Domnowitz. Eva Schernißkin, from Domnowitz was buried at Powitzko on the 8th of November in 1699.

Baptism of son George Tschernißko, 1702

George Tschernißko (1702-after 1738) was baptized at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 6th of August in 1702. He was the son of Greger Tschernißko and his wife Ursula from Domnowitz.

Baptism of son Thomas Schierniske, 1704

Tomaß (Thomas) Schierniske (1704-unknown) was baptized at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 23rd of December in 1704. He was the son of Griger Schierniske and wife Ursula from Domnowitz.

Baptism of son Hans Tscherniske, 1709

Hanß (Hans, Johannes) Tscherniske (1709-c.1802) was baptized at Powitzko on the 3rd of November in 1709 at the Catholic Church in Powitzko. He was the son of Greger Tscherniske and his wife Ursula from Domnowitz.

Property Transfer in Domnowitz listed in this Chapter (1726)

Georg Sternitzke (1685-c.1739) bought the Nitschke family Bauergut at Domnowitz on the 20th of May in 1726 from Georg Labitzke, for 1000 Schlesische Talers.

Property Transfers in Ujeschütz listed in Chapter 10 Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz (1616 to 1920)

Gregor Tzernisky (c.1580-1678, SN200) bought Bauergut (farmstead) 10 in Gross Ujeschütz from Christoph Hentschel on the 12th of March in 1616, for 500 Schwere (heavy) Marks.

Gregor Sternitzke (c.1655-1714) from (Gross) Ujeschütz bought an unidentified property in Gross Ujeschütz from Baltzer Krause on the 27th of April in 1709. No purchase price was listed. Gregor was born at Domnowitz and he died there according to his burial record. But he was a resident of Gross Ujeschütz from 1660 until his move to Domnowitz (prior to the baptism of his first son in 1685). That 1709 purchase may have been for farmland between Domnowitz and Ujeschütz. The villages were less than two miles apart and separated only by farmland.

Family of Georg Sciernisko (c.1710-c.1731) and Hedwig (née Carna) Sciernisko 1728 to 1732 Domnowitz

Family of Jacob Schoßnick and Catharina (née Scierniskin) Schoßnick 1728 to 1738 Domnowitz

Jacob Sosnik /Schoßnick (c.1693-after 1738) was an innkeeper and a farmer at Domnowitz. His surname was listed as Sosnik in a 1729 Latin baptism record, but as Schoßnick and Schosnik in later baptism records written in German. He married Catharina Scierniskin around 1728. Her surname was listed as Scierniskin and Schiernißkin in baptism records. Catharina Scierniskin was probably Katharina Schernißke (1693-unknown) the daughter of Georg (George, Geörge) Sternisko, Sternißke, Sterniske, Schernißke, Sternitzke (c.1650-1709, SN133) from Gross Ujeschütz. See the Family of Georg Sternitzke (c.1650-1709, SN133), 1671 to 1723 Gross Ujeschütz.

The lineage of Katharine Schernißke was: George (c.1510-c.1574, SN1) - Blasius (c.1544-c.1615, SN22) - Gregor (c.1580-1678, SN200) - Johann (1610-1672, SN273) – Georg (c.1650-1709, SN133) – Katharine (1693-after 1738).

The source for the marriage and descendants of Maria Schoschnick (1733-after 1774) and Andrew Labitzky was Karl Sille's manuscript DSHI 100 Sille 026. I am assuming the Maria Schoschnick identified by Karl Sille is the Maria Schosnik identified in the 1733 baptism record from the Catholic church in Powitzko. The following Sosnik/Schoßnick family tree is based on that assumption, using the known generation numbers of George Sternitzke (Gen.V-76.) and his daughter Katharina (Gen.VI-102.) as a framework for numbering the generations.

Gen.VIIa. Johann Sosnik (1729-unknown).

Gen.VIIb. George Schoßnick (1731-unknown).

Gen.VIIc. Maria Schosnik (1733-after 1774). Married Andrew Labitzky before 1774.

Gen.VIIIa. Maria Labitzky (1774-after 1809). Married Gen.VIII-200. Daniel Sterniski (1774-after 1812) at Kainowe on 13 November 1795.

Gen.VIIId. Friedrich Schoßnick (1738-unknown).

The lineage of Daniel Sterniski (1774-after 1812) was: George (c.1510-c.1574, SN1) - Blasius (c.1544-c.1615, SN22) - Gregor (c.1580-1678, SN200) - Johann (1610-1672, SN273) - Jakob (c.1659-1728, SN264) - Heinrich (1697-1763) - Andreas (1736-1805) - Daniel (1774-after 1812). So, Maria Labitzky and her husband Daniel Sterniski had the same great-great-great-grandfather Johann Tschernißke/Sternitzke/Sciernisko (1610-1672, SN273) making them 3rd cousins.

Children of Jacob Sosnik/Schoschnick and Catharina (née Scierniskin/Schiernißkin) Sosnik/Schoßnick

Joannes (Johann) Sosnik was baptized at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 23rd of June in 1729. He was the son of the Cauponis (Latin for innkeeper) Jacobi (Jacob) Sosnik and Catharina (née Scierniskin) Sosnik from Domnowitz.

George Schoßnick was baptized at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 5th of April in 1731. He was the son of the Pauer (farmer) Jacob Schoßnick and Catharina (née Scierniskin) Schoßnick from Domnowitz.

Maria Schosnik was baptized on the 16th of December in 1733 at the Catholic church in Powitzko. She was the daughter of the Pauer (farmer) Jacob Schosnik and his wife Catharina (née Schiernißkin) Schosnik from Domnowitz. Maria Schoschnick married the Bauer (farmer) Andreas Labitzky before 1774. Their daughter, Maria Labitzky was born on the 8th of January in 1774 at Gross Ujeschütz. Maria Labitzky married the Bauer (farmer) Daniel Sterniski at Kainowe on the 3rd of November 1795. Daniel was born on the 10th of February in 1774 at Gross Ujeschütz, the son of the Bauer Andreas Sterniske and Maria (née Gumke/Gunke) Sterniske.

Friedrich Schoßnick was baptized on the 31st of August in 1738 at the Catholic church in Powitzko. He was the son of the Bauer (farmer) Jacob Schoßnick and his wife Catharina (née Schiernißkin) Schoßnick from Domnowitz.

Burial of Elisabet (née Stillerazin) Schiernißkin 1736 Domnowitz

Elisabet (née Stillerazin) Schiernißkin (c.1695-1736) from Domnowitz was buried at Powitzko on the 6th of February 1736. She was listed as a Lutheran in the record book for the Powitzko Catholic Church. Her age was listed as 41 years old, so she was born around 1695.

Elisabet Stillerazin's maiden name may have been a variation of the male family name Stiller. The standard female form of the Stiller name would have been Stillerin. There were much earlier members of the Stiller family who associated with the Sternitzke family at Domnowitz.

- Anna Stillerin was a baptism sponsor for Henricg (Heinrich) Sciernisko, the son of Gregoris Sciernisko and Ursula (née Beimowna) Sciernisko from Domnowitz, who was baptized on the 7th of May in 1656.

Susanne Sterniske (c.1806-after 1829) was born around 1806. She married Karl Sternitzke (1806-after 1835, SN342 & SN344) before 1829. Wilhelm Starnitzki assigned two Stammliste numbers to Karl Sternitzke because Karl appeared in two branches of the Sternitzke family tree due to this marriage. Karl Sternitzke was the son of the Freigärtner Christoph Sternitzke (1765-1821, SN47) from Briesche. Bäckergeselle Friedrich Starnitzke
From Damnowitz,
1815 City of Breslau

Emilie Augustine Marie Kesselbauer was born at Breslau on the 10th of March in 1815. She was the daughter of the Bäckergeselle (journeyman baker) Friedrich Kesselbauer and Johanne Beate (née Weintzigen) Kesselbauer. They were residents of the Breslau and lived at house number 1595 in the Neumarckt district. The child was baptized at the St. Marie Magdalena Protestant Church in Breslau on the 18th of March in 1815. The baptism sponsors were: the Kaufmann daughter Jungfrau (single woman) Emilie Theodore Tschirschnitz, the Buchdrucker (printer) daughter Jungfrau Auguste Adelheide Amilie Zimmermann, and the Bäckergeselle (journeyman baker) Friedrich Starnitzke from Damnowitz. The baptism record was completed by the midwife Frau Helena Lungmos.

Damnowitz was one spelling variation for the village Domnowitz in Trebnitz County. The Bäckergeselle (journeyman baker) Friedrich Starnitzke was probably the same man who was identified as the Bäcker (baker) Friedrich Sternitzki (1786-1848) in 1817. See Book III, Chapter 1, Breslau County in the Breslau District, City of Breslau: the Bäckermeister Sternitzke Family of Goldene Radegasse 5, 1817 to 1871 City of Breslau.

Georg Sternitzki/Sternitzke I, II and III
19th Century Domnowitz

The Domnowitz property transfer table, Breslau church records and Breslau civil records provide some confusing data regarding three men named Georg Sternitzki or Georg Sternitzke. All three were residents of Domnowitz and had children who were born at Domnowitz. Their children moved to Breslau where civil records reported events in their lives with several variations of the Sternitzke family name. I subtracted 30 years from the birth dates of the first known child of each man to determine the estimated birth dates (and the numbering I, II and III) for the three men named Georg.

Georg I
Georg Sternitzki (circa 1822-before 1894)

The history of the Domnowitz Stellenbesitzers (property owners) Georg Sternitzki and his wife Susanna (née Heller) Sternitzki is known through the records of their children: Daniel Adam Erdmann Sternitzki (1850-1872), Wilhelm Sternitzki (1852-1894) and Johann Hermann Georg Sternitzki (1857- 1903). Both brothers were born at Domnowitz in Trebnitz County and died at Breslau. Several variations of the family name were recorded in Breslau records of the brothers: Sternitzky in 1878 and 1879, Sternitzki from 1881 to 1903, Starnitzke in 1881, Sternitzkÿ in 1886, Sternitzke in 1888.

The unmarried Stellmachersgelle (journeyman wheelwright) Daniel Adam Erdmann Sternitzki (1850-1872) died at the city hospital in Linden (near Hanover), on the 6th of May in 1872. He died at the age of 22 years and 19 days old, so he was born on the 17th of April in 1850. He was buried at the Sankt Martin church cemetery in Hannover (Prussia) on the 9th of May in 1872. His burial record listed his parents as the Freigärtner Georg Sternitzki and his wife Susanna (née Heller) Sternitzki who lived at Damnowitz (Domnowitz) in the Militsch parish.

The Müllergeselle (journeyman miller) Wilhelm Sternitzki (1852-1894) died at the Breslau Allerheiligen Hospital on the 3rd of June in 1894 at the age of 41 years and 10 months (according to the civil record). The St. Elisabeth death record book listed him as Müller and shows that he died at the age of 41 years and 11 months old. That would place his estimated birth date at around July or August in 1852. His parents preceded him in death. They were identified on his civil death record as the deceased Stellenbesitzers (property owners) Georg Sternitzki and his wife Susanna (née Heller) Sternitzki from Domnowitz.

The Breslau Müller (miller) Johann Hermann Georg Sternitzki (1857- 1903) married the Jungfrau Caroline Weber at the St. Bernhardin Protestant Church in Breslau on the 16th of January in 1886. Georg Sternitzki was the son of the Stellenbesitzer (property owner) Georg Sternitzki. According to the church marriage record, the groom was 28 years old at the time, so he was probably born in 1857.

See below: the Family of Georg Sternitzki and Susanna (née Heller) Sternitzki, 1852 Domnowitz to 1903 Breslau. Also see Book III, Chapter 1: the Brothers Wilhelm Sternitzki and Johann Hermann Georg Sternitzki and Johanna Karoline Augusta (née Weber) Sternitzki, 1878 to 1939 City of Breslau.

Georg II
Georg Sternitzke (circa 1828-before 1887)

The history of the Stellenbesitzer Georg Sternitzke and his wife Anna Rosina (née Sternitzke) Sternitzke is known through the records of their daughter. Their daughter, Anna Rosina Sternitzke was born at Domnowitz in 1858. Anna's 1887 marriage record shows that she was the daughter of the Stellenbesitzer (property owner) Georg Sternitzke who died before her wedding. The death record for Anna Rosina (née Sternitzke) Mauer reported she was the daughter of the Stellenbesitzer Georg Sternitzke and his wife Anna Rosina (née Sternitzke) Sternitzke who both died at Domnowitz. See the Marriage and Family of Anna (née Sternitzke) Mauer, 1887 to 1930 City of Breslau.

Georg III
Georg Sternitzke/Sternitzki (c.1840-after 24 January 1896)

Georg Sternitzke (c.1840-after 24 January 1896) purchased Häuslerstelle Nr. 63 in 1842. The property was transferred (not sold) to Anna Rosina (née Reinsch) Sternitzke in 1870. That property was transferred to Karl Meßner and his wife Pauline (née Sternitzke) Meßner in 1892. Normally, that would indicate the father Georg died in 1870 (and his wife received the property) and then his wife Anna Rosina died in 1892 (and then her daughter Pauline received the property). The 1896 civil marriage record for August Hermann Sternitzki contradicts those assumptions.

August Hermann Sternitzki (1870-1939) was born at Domnowitz in Trebnitz County on the 2nd of June in 1870. He was the son of the Landwirth (farmer) Georg Sternitzki and his wife Rosina (née Reinsch) Sternitzki. His parents were still living at Domnowitz in January of 1896 according to the civil marriage record of August Hermann Sternitzki. His civil death record listed him as August Hermann Sternitzke. The civil death record of August Hermann Sternitzke confirmed the names of his parents: the Landwirths Georg Sternitzke and his wife Rosina (née Reinsch) Sternitzke who last lived at Domnowitz.

See below: the Family of Georg Sternitzki and Rosina (née Reinsch) Sternitzki, 1870 Domnowitz to 1896 Breslau. Also see Book III, Chapter 1: the Marriage, Family and Death of August Hermann Sternitzki, 1896 to 1939 City of Breslau.

Georg I, II or III
Baptismal Sponsor Georg Sternitzki, 1882

The Stellenbesitzer Georg Sternitzki from Domnowitz was one of the baptismal sponsors for Johann Eduard Reinhold Horn. Family of Johann Sternitzke/Sternitzkÿ and Susanne (née Krause) Sternitzke/Sternitzkÿ 1827 Domnowitz to 1892 Berlin

The history of Johann Sternitzke/Sternitzkÿ and his wife Susanne (née Krause) Sternitzke/Sternitzkÿ is only known from the marriage records and the death record of their son Wilhelm Sternitzke/Sternitzkÿ (1827-1892). The marriage record of Wilhelm's first marriage (in 1850 at Berlin) listed his father as the Bauer (farmer) Sternitzke who died at Domnowitz before that marriage. The record of Wilhelm's second marriage (in 1875 at Berlin) listed his parents as the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Johann Sternitzkÿ and Susanne (née Krause) Sternitzkÿ who both died at Domnowitz. The record of Wilhelm's death (in 1892 at Berlin) listed his parents as the Arbeiter (laborer) Johann Sternitzkÿ and Susanne (née Krause) Sternitzkÿ who both died at Domnowitz. Wilhelm's death record was completed by a hospital administrator, so it was probably incorrect in listing Johann as an Arbeiter. The marriage records were probably more accurate in describing Johann as a farmer.

From those records it is assumed that Johann Sternitzke and his wife were born around 1800. They were probably married around 1826 at Kainowe. They both died at Domnowitz between 1827 and 1850.

The title of this section was based on the years of birth and death of Wilhelm Sternitzke/Sternitzkÿ, whose family history continued after his death at Berlin. Birth of Wilhelm Sternitzke/Sternitzkÿ, 1827 Domnowitz

Based on his age listed on his two marriage records and his death record, Wilhelm Sternitzke was born in 1827 at Domnowitz in the Kainowo parish. The 1850 marriage record did not identify his mother, and his father was only listed as the Bauer (farmer) Sternitzke who had died at Domnowitz prior to Wilhelm's marriage. Wilhelm's father and mother were identified in the 1875 record of Wilhelm's second marriage, and in Wilhelm's 1892 death record. He was the son of the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Johann Sternitzkÿ and Susanne (née Krause) Sternitzkÿ who both died at Domnowitz.

First Marriage of Wilhelm Sternitzke/Sternitzkÿ, 1850 Berlin

In 1850, Wilhelm Sternitzke was an Unteroffizier und Schutzmann (lance sergeant and policeman) in the 10th Infantry Regiment at Berlin. On the 10th of November in 1850, he married Henriette Auguste Kern at the Protestant Garrison Church in Berlin. Wilhelm Sternitzke was 23 years old. The age of his wife was not listed on the marriage record. The church record shows that the bride was the daughter of the Gärtner Johann Gottfried Kern from Ottendorf in Silesia. Meyers Gazetteer listed four villages named Ottendorf in Silesia. The Ottendorf village closest to Trebnitz County was in Gross Wartenberg County in the Breslau District.

The death record for Henriette Auguste (née Kern) Sternitzke/Sternitzki shows that she was born in 1824. She died at the age of 42 years old, on the 26th of January in 1867 and she was buried at the Sankt Jakobi Protestant church in Berlin on the 29th of January. Her death record listed her as Henriette Auguste (née Kern) Sternitzki the wife of a Briefträger (letter carrier) named Sternitzki.

Second Marriage of Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ, 1875 Berlin

According to his second marriage record, Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ was born around 1827 at Domnowitz in Trebnitz County. The record listed his parents as the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Johann Sternitzkÿ and Susanne (née Krause) Sternitzkÿ, who had both died at before the wedding.

In 1875, the Arbeiter (laborer) Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ married the widow Louise Emilie (née Werdermann) Donn in Berlin on the 4th of November in 1875. They were both listed as Protestant on the civil marriage record. They were both 48 years old and were living in Berlin at Bergstraße 80. Emilie was born around 1827 at the village Schönholz in Oberbarnim County (northeast of Berlin). She was the daughter of the Arbeiter Johann Friedrich Werdermann and his wife Karoline Christiane (née Schneider) Werdermann who had both died before the 1875 wedding. Prior to their marriage Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ and the widow Emilie Donn were listed as witnesses for the 1874 wedding of Wilhelm's oldest son Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ.

Louise Emilie (née Werdermann) Donn had two sons who were born before her 1875 marriage to Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ. Julius Gustav Friedrich Donn was born on the 16th of November in 1854. Julius kept his father surname. Carl Wilhelm Werdermann - Sternitzkÿ was born on the 11th of March in 1861 at Berlin. He was probably born out of wedlock and was given his mother's maiden name as his surname. Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ probably adopted Carl Wilhelm Werdermann in 1875. Carl Wilhelm's 1883 marriage record listed his parents as Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ and Emilie Louise (née Werdermann) Sternitzkÿ.

Birth, Marriage and Family of son

Emil Bruno Sternitzki/Sternitzkÿ, 1849, 1874 to 1954

According to his church and civil marriage records, Emil Bruno Sternitzki/Sternitzkÿ was born on the 22nd of November in 1849. The church record listed him as the Schuhmacher (shoemaker) Emil Bruno Sternitzki, the 25 years old son of the Arbeitsmann (laborer) Wilhelm Sternitzki. Emil married Caroline Louise Emilie Bertha Tändler on the 13th of December in 1874 at the Protestant church Philippus-Apostel-Kirche in Berlin. This was the first marriage for both of them. The bride was born on the 3rd of May in 1854, the second daughter of the deceased Arbeitsmann Friedrich Wilhelm Hermann Tändler, who had died at Berlin prior to this wedding. A note on the church record shows that the bride had given birth to an illegitimate child on the 3rd of July in 1874, and the child was baptized on the 13th of December in 1874. That child was Louise Auguste Emma Sternitzkÿ.

The civil record for that marriage listed additional, and a few different details. The groom was listed as Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ, the son of the Postbote (mailman) Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ and Henriette Auguste (née Kern) Sternitzkÿ. The civil marriage record failed to show that the groom's mother had died in 1867 (prior to this wedding). It shows the father's and the groom's address as Bergstraße No. 80 in Berlin. The record shows the groom was born at Ottendorf. Ottendorf in Silesia was identified as the location of the Emil's grandfather Johann Gottfried Kern. See the 1850 marriage of Wilhelm Sternitzke above. Emil's parents were married at Berlin almost one year after Emil's birth. It is possible that Wilhelm was stationed at a military base in Silesia where he met Emil's mother. He was then stationed in Berlin in 1850 where he married Emil's mother.

The groom and the bride were both Protestants. The bride's mother was listed as Sophie Caroline Louise (née Günther) Tändler. The wedding witnesses were the groom's father, the 47 years old Postbote (mailman) Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ and the widow Emilie Donn, who was 46 years old and also lived at Bergstraße No. 80. Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ married Emilie Donn on the 4th of November in 1875.

There was also a handwritten note on the civil marriage record, granting paternity of his bride's three children: Wilhelm Emil Paul Tändler who was born on the 28th of January in 1871, Emil Fritz Hermann Tändler who was born on the 29th of March in 1872, and Louise Auguste Emma Tändler who was born on the 3rd of July in 1874.

Emil Paul Wilhelm Tendler-Sternitzkÿ was born on the 28th of January in 1871 at Berlin. He was baptized on the 2nd of April in 1872 at the St. Elisabeth Protestant Church in Berlin. The child was illegitimate. His mother was listed as Caroline Luise Emilie Bertha Tendler. A note was later added to the baptism record, stating the child was adopted by Emil Bruno Sternitzky on the 13th of December in 1874. The Arbeiter Emil Paul Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ married the Arbeiterin Johanne Ernestine Bertha Steffen on the 26th of January in 1895 at Berlin. They were both Protestant. The groom was the son of the Arbeiter Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ who was a resident at Frauenstraße Nr. 11 in Stettin and the late Karoline Luise Emilie Bertha (née Tendler) Sternitzkÿ who had died at Berlin. The bride was born on the 7th of July in 1871 at Neu Bielawe in Freistadt County, Silesia. The bride was the daughter of the Arbeiter Johann Ernst Gottlieb Steffen who lived at Neusalz an Der Oder, and his deceased wife Johanne Dorothea Steffen who had died at Neusalz an Der Oder. The wedding witnesses were the 32 years old Glaser Johann Heise and the 45 years old Arbeiter Emil Sternitzkÿ. Johann Heise was the groom's uncle and the husband of Marie Julie Louise (née Sternitzkÿ) Heise (see below). Emil Sternitzkÿ was the groom's father.

Emil Paul Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ and Johanne Ernestine Bertha (née Steffen) Sternitzkÿ had four children:

- Lucie Erna Emilie Sternitzkÿ (1895-1983) was born at Rixdorf (now a Southeastern suburb of Berlin called Berlin-Neukölln) on the 24th of March in 1895. Her parents lived at Jägerstraße Nr. 51 at that time. A note on her birth record shows that she died on the 17th of March in 1983 at Winsen (Aller) which is a town in Lower Saxony. The Kontoristin (clerk) Lucie Erna Emilie Sternitzkÿ married the Uhrmacher (watchmaker) Bernhard Schulz at Berlin on the 27th of May in 1920. Her parents were still living at Berlin at that time. Her father signed the marriage record as a witness.

- Wallÿ Ella Gertrud Sternitzkÿ (1897-1937) was born at Rixdorf (Berlin) on the 15th of June in 1897. Her father signed the birth record as Paul Sternitzkÿ. A note on her birth record shows Wallÿ died in 1937. She married Willÿ Arthur Max Märzke on the 26th of January in 1920. Willÿ was a Vicefeldwebel (senior sergeant) in the Prussian Army at Berlin. The bride and the groom were both Protestant. Wallÿ (née Sternitzkÿ) Märzke died at a hospital in Berlin-Neukölln on the 8th of March in 1937, at the age of 39 years old. Her husband was the Kaufmann (merchant) Willi Artur Max Märzke.
- Gertrud Erna Elisabeth Sternitzkÿ (1899-after 1935) was born at Berlin on the 2nd of August 1899. The family lived at Prinz-Handjery-Strasse Nr. 55 at that time. The father Paul Sternitzkÿ signed the birth record. The 1935 Berlin address book listed the Stenotypist (shorthand typist) Gertrud Sternitzky. She lived at Oranienstraße 68. I assume Sternitzky was her maiden name and she was not married, because the book listed other female residents as Frau, widow or included their maiden names.
- Hertha Hedwig Bertha Sternitzkÿ (1901-after 1935) was born at Rixdorf (now Berlin-Neukölln) on the 8th of October in 1901. The family lived at Prinz-Handjery-Strasse Nr. 26 at that time. The father Paul Sternitzkÿ signed the birth record. The Fabrikarbeiterin (factory worker) Hertha Hedwig Bertha Sternitzkÿ married the Fabrikarbeiter Walter Christian Otto Rosenkranz on the 4th of November 1922 at Berlin. The 51 years old Arbeiter Paul Sternitzkÿ was a wedding witness. He lived at Kopfstraße 23 in Berlin-Neukölln. Two notes were added later to the second page of the marriage record: a daughter was born in Berlin in 1927, and a son was born at Berlin in 1929.

Johanne Ernestine Berta (née Steffen) Sternitzky (1871-1954) was a resident of Kopfstraße 23 in the Neukölln borough of Berlin in 1954. She was the widow of the Arbeiter Emil Paul Wilhelm Sternitzky. She died on the 26th of January in 1954 at the Städtischen Bürgerhaus (hospital) in Berlin-Charlottenburg.

Emil Fritz Hermann Tändler-Sternitzkÿ was born on the 29th of March in 1872 according to a note on his parent's marriage record. He died at the Augusta Hospital in Berlin on the 15th of June in 1876. The death record shows the child was 4 years, 2 months and 21 days old when he died. That yields a calculated birth date of the 25th of March in 1872. The death record shows he was the son of the Schuhmacher (shoemaker) Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ and Emilie (née Taendler) Sternitzkÿ, who lived in Berlin at Ackerstraße No. 42. The father signed the death record as Emil Sternitzkÿ.

Louise Auguste Emma Tändler-Sternitzkÿ was born on the 3rd of July in 1874. She was baptized on the 13th of December in 1874, at the Philippus-Apostel Protestant Church in Berlin. The baptism record listed her as born illegitimate, but because of her adoption, her parents were listed as the Schuhmacher (shoemaker) Emil Bruno Sternitzki and his wife Caroline Louise Emilie Bertha (née Tändler) Sternitzki. They lived at Schiffbauerdamm Nr. 7 in Berlin. The baptism sponsors were: the Arbeitsmann Sternitzki, the Buchhalter Donn and Fräulein Emma Sternitzki. Louise Emilie Emma Sternitzkÿ died on the 6th of June in 1876 at the age of 1 year, 11 months and 3 days. The middle name Emilie of the child is different from the name Auguste listed on the baptism record, but the birth dates match. The death was reported by her father, the Schuhmacher Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ, who signed the record as Emil Sternitzky. The child's mother was listed as Emilie (née Taendler) Sternitzkÿ. The family was living at Ackerstraße No. 42 in Berlin at that time.

Max Bruno Sternitzkÿ was born at Berlin on the 17th of September in 1875. His parents were listed as the Schuhmacher Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ and Emilie (née Tändler) Sternitzkÿ. The family was living at Ackerstraße No. 42 in Berlin at that time. The father signed the birth record as Emil Sternitzky. Max Bruno Sternitzkÿ died at Berlin on the 25th of June in 1876 at the age of 9 months and 8 days old. His death was reported by his mother, who signed the death record as Emilie Sternitzky. The family was living at Ackerstraße No. 42 in Berlin at that time.

Richard Sternitzkÿ was born at Berlin on the 7th of December in 1876. He was the son of the Schuhmacher Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ and Emilie (née Taendler) Sternitzkÿ. The family was living at Ackerstraße No. 45 in Berlin at that time. The Arbeiter (laborer) Richard Sternitzkÿ married Alwine Luise Wilhelmine Below on the 18th of August in 1900 at Stettin in Pomerania. The groom was living at Ulrichstraße No. 10 in the Bredow suburb of Stettin. The groom and the bride were Protestant. The birth information (date, place of birth, and parent's names) match the birth record for Richard Sternitzkÿ from Berlin. His mother had died previously at Berlin. His father was listed on the first page of the marriage record as the Schuhmacher Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ who was living in Stettin, but the 50 years old Rohrlager (pipe fitter, plumber) Emil Sternitzkÿ was listed as a wedding witness on the second page. Emil lived at Splittstrasse No. 8a in Stettin. A note on the first page of the marriage record shows that the couple divorced on the 3rd of August in 1919 at Stettin. The Bauarbeiter (construction laborer) Richard Sternitzkÿ then married the widowed Näherin (seamstress) Martha Pauline Auguste (née Böttcher) Sonntag at Berlin on the 14th of June in 1920. The bride and groom were Protestants and residents of Selchower Straße 27 the Neukölln suburb of Berlin. The marriage record shows that the groom's parents died before this wedding. The Schuhmacher Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ had died at Stettin. Emilie Luise Karoline Berta (née Tändler) Sternitzkÿ had died at Berlin. There are notes on both pages of the marriage record. A note on page one shows the groom Richard Sternitzkÿ died on the 12th of February in 1941 at Landsberg an der Warthe (located northeast of Frankfurt an der Oder). Landsberg is now named Gorzów Wielkopolski, Poland). Notes on page two show that Richard and his second wife had a son who was born at Berlin-Neukölln on the 17th of June in 1914, and died at Berlin-Neukölln in 1941. The death record for the Schneider (tailor) Paul Fritz Sternitzky was born on the 17th of June in 1914 at Neukölln. He died on the 21st of January in 1941. He was the son of the Arbeiter Richard Sternitzky and Martha Pauline Auguste (née Böttcher) Sternitzky. Richard, Martha and their son were residents of Neukölln at Selchower Straße 27. Martha signed her son's death record. His father died on the 12th of February in 1941. The widow Martha Pauline Auguste (née Böttcher) Sternitzky died on the 20th of February in 1954 at the age of 74 years old, at Selchower Straße 27. Her death record shows she was born on the 3rd of October in 1879 at Zechendorf in Deutsch Kron County, West Prussia.

Klara Sophie Sternitzkÿ was born at Berlin on the 28th of January in 1878. She died at Berlin on the 6th of March in 1879. She was the daughter of the Schuhmacher (shoemaker) Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ and Emilie Louise Karoline Bertha (née Tändler) Sternitzkÿ who lived at Ackerstraße 45 in Berlin. The father signed the birth record as Emil Sternitzky. The mother signed the death record as Emilie Sternitzky.

Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ was born on the 2nd of July in 1879 at Berlin. He was the son of the Schuhmacher (shoemaker) Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ and Caroline Emilie Louise Bertha (née Tändler) Sternitzkÿ who lived at Ackerstraße 45 in Berlin. Emilie Sternitzky signed the birth record. In 1879, the Maschinenheizer (boiler stoker) Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ was a resident at Friedrichstraße 8 in Weissensee (northeast from Berlin). He married the widow Auguste Wilhelmine (née Kretzschmar) Dreher at Berlin on the 27th of July in 1906. The marriage record shows that Wilhelm's parents died before that date: the Schuhmacher Emil Sternitzkÿ had died at Stettin, Emilie Sternitzkÿ had died at Berlin. A note on the first page of the marriage record states that Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ and Wilhelmine (née Kretzschmar) Sternitzkÿ were divorced at Stettin on the 14th of July in 1913. The Arbeiter Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ was living at Pelzerstraße 26 in Stettin in 1914. He married the widowed Arbeiterin Emma Luise Auguste (née Reinke) Feÿ at Stettin on the 25th of July in 1914. The 1914 marriage record listed his father as the Rohrlager (pipe fitter, plumber) Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ who had died at Stettin. Wilhelm's second marriage also ended in a divorce on the 20th of October in 1940 at Stettin.

Gustav Sternitzkÿ was born in Berlin on the 20th of December in 1880. He was the son of the Schuhmacher (shoemaker) Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ and Caroline Emilie Louise Bertha (née Tändler) Sternitzkÿ who lived at Ackerstraße 45 in Berlin. Emil Sternitzky signed the birth record. Gustav Sternitzkÿ died at Berlin on the 13th of December in 1881. The death record was signed by Emilie (née Tändler) Sternitzkÿ.

Caroline Emilie Louise (née Tändler) Sternitzkÿ died at Berlin on the 16th of March in 1882, at the age of 27 years, 10 months and 13 days. Her death reported by her husband, the Schuhmacher Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ, who signed the death record as Emil Sternitzky. She died at their home at Ackerstraße Nr. 45 in Berlin. Her parents were listed as the deceased Handelsmann (merchant) Wilhelm Tändler and his deceased wife Louise (née Gunther) Tändler. Emil Bruno Sternitzkÿ moved to Stettin after his wife Emilie died. He was a resident at Stettin on the 26th of January in 1895. He died at Stettin between the 18th of August in 1900 and the 27th of July in 1906.

He was listed as the son of the late Arbeiter Friedrich Donn and Luise Emilie (née Werdemann) who was the widow of the Kassenbote (cash courier) Sternitzkÿ. The bride was born on the 2nd of April in 1853, the daughter of the Zimmerman (carpenter) August Feuerlein and Wilhelmine (née Kneip) Feuerlein who had both died at Berlin.

The Arbeiter Julius Donn died at Dalldorf on the 22nd of May in 1904. He died at the age of 49 years and 6 months old. He was a Protestant who lived at Bergstraße 80 in Berlin. His death record shows he was formerly married to Franziska (née Feuerstein) Donn. The names of his parents were not known. His death was reported by the Städtische Irrenanstalt zu Dalldorf (municipal mental asylum at Dalldorf). Dalldorf was renamed as Wittenau in the Reinickendorf borough of Berlin.

Birth, Marriage and Death of daughter
Marie Julie Louise Sternitzkÿ/Starnitzkÿ (1859-1900)

Marie Julie Louise Sternitzkÿ was born on the 1st of February in 1859, and she was baptized on the 6th of February in 1859 at the Charité Church attached to the Charité Hospital in Berlin. The baptism record shows the child was born at Tillendorf (which doesn't match the place of birth listed on a later marriage record). She was the daughter of the Maschinenheizer (boiler stoker) Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ and Henriette Auguste (née Kern) Sternitzkÿ who lived at Prenzlauer Str. Nr. 53/54.

In 1887, the Arbeiterin (laborer) Marie Julie Louise Sternitzkÿ was living at Dresdenerstraße 57 in Berlin. She married Johann Friedrich Wilhelm Heise at Berlin on the 22nd of August in 1887. The marriage record shows Louise was born at Berlin on the 1st of February in 1859. She was 28 years old. Her father, the Maschinenheizer (boiler stoker) Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ was living in Berlin, but her mother Henriette Auguste (née Kern) Sternitzkÿ had died at Berlin.

The Glaser (glazier) Johann Friedrich Wilhelm Heise was 24 years old. He was born on the 16th of October in 1862 at Schwedt in Angermünde County. He was the son of the Arbeiter (laborer) Gottfried Heise and Luise (née Kurka) Heise, who had both previously died at Schwedt an der Oder. The bride and the groom were both Protestant.

Luise (née Starnitzkÿ) Heise died at Berlin on the 8th of February in 1900. She was 41 years old. Her death was reported by the director at a hospital in the Moabit neighborhood in the Mitte borough of Berlin. Her name was recorded by the hospital director as Starnitzkÿ, and her father was recorded as the Arbeiter Wilhelm Starnitzkÿ. A note in the margin was later made by the civil registry office showing the Starnitzkÿ name was a mistake should have been written as Starnitzkÿ. Her mother was listed as Auguste (née Kern) Starnitzkÿ. Both of her parents were listed as deceased. Her husband was listed as the Arbeiter Hans Heise, who lived at Bergstraße house number 4.

Birth, Marriage, Family and Death of son
Carl Wilhelm Werdermann-Starnitzkÿ (1861-1901)

The original record of the birth of Carl Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ (1861-1901) was not available for review online. The summary of that record listed him as Carl Wilhelm Werdermann or Sternitzky. He was probably an illegitimate son of Emilie Louise (née Werdermann) Donn, and was given his mother's maiden name for his surname. He was probably adopted by Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ in 1875.

The Arbeiter (laborer) Carl Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ married the Arbeiterin Auguste Johanna Elisabeth Lämmer on the 13th of October in 1883 at Berlin. They were both Protestants. The groom was 22 years old and lived at Bergstraße No. 80 in Berlin with his parents: the Kassenboten (cash courier) Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ and Emilie Louise (née Werdermann) Sternitzkÿ. The marriage record shows that groom was born on the 11th of March in 1861 in Berlin. The bride was 21 years old. She was born on the 9th of September in 1862 at Berlin. She was the daughter of Johanne Marie Lämmer who became the widow of the Arbeiter Kalähne, and then she died at Berlin before this wedding

Carl Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ and his wife Auguste Johanna Elisabeth Lämmer had four children:

- Frida Elisabeth Emilie Sternitzkÿ (c.1882-1889) was born around 1882 at Berlin. She died on the 29th of August in 1889 at the age of 7 years old. The Arbeiter Carl Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ and his wife lived at Bergstraße 80. The father signed the death record as Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ.
- Anna Helene Alma Sternitzkÿ (1883-1884) was born in Berlin on the 12th of December in 1883. A midwife spelled the family name as Sternitzky, and she signed the birth record. The child died on the 25th of August in 1884. The child's mother signed the death record as Elisabeth Sternitzkÿ geboren (née) Lämmer. The Arbeiter Carl Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ and his wife lived at Bergstraße 80.

- Helene Betty Charlotte Sternitzkÿ (1891-1943) was born on the 7th of July in 1891 at Berlin. Her father signed the birth record as Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ. The family lived at Bergstraße 80 in 1891. The 26 years old Buchhalterin (accountant) Helene Betti Charlotte Sternitzkÿ married the Grenadier Eugen Oskar Walter at Berlin on the 7th of December in 1917. Charlotte was living at Invalidenstraße 143 in Berlin. She was a Protestant. Charlotte's father was listed as the deceased Lagerist (warehouseman) Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ. Oskar was born on the 6th of October in 1879, the son of the deceased Kaufmann (merchant) Franz Walter and his deceased wife Hedwig (née Kaupowitz) Walter from Charlottenburg. Oskar was a Catholic. The 24 years old Postespedient (postal agent) Adolf Sternitzkÿ from Berlin was a wedding witness. Charlotte Betti Helene (née Sternitzkÿ) Walter died in her home at Fasenenstrasse 68 in Charlottenburg on the 12th of January in 1943. Charlottenburg was a neighborhood in the Charlottenburg-Wilmersdorf borough of Berlin. The death record was signed by her husband, the Kaufmann Oskar Walter.
- Adolf Willy Hermann Sternitzkÿ (1894-unknown) was born at Berlin on the 19th of February in 1894. He was born in the family home at Bergstraße 80. His parents were listed as Protestant. His birth record was signed by his father Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ.

Carl Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ (1861-1901) died at Berlin on the 15th of September in 1901, at the age 40 years old. His death record listed him as the Hausdiener (house servant) Wilhelm Sternitzki. His wife was listed as Auguste Johanna Elisabeth (née Lömmer) Sternitzki. They lived at Prenzlauer Allee 34 in Berlin. His parents were listed as the Kassenbote (cash courier) Wilhelm Sternitzki and Emilie (née Werdermann) Sternitzki, who had both died in Berlin.

Death of Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ (1827-1892)

The death record of Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ shows that he was born at Domnowitz in Trebnitz County. He was the son of the late Arbeiter (laborer) Johann Sternitzkÿ and the late Susanne (née Krause) Sternitzkÿ who both died at Domnowitz.

Wilhelm was a Protestant who lived at Bergstraße 80 in Berlin. He was married to Emilie (née Werdermann) Sternitzkÿ.

The Arbeiter Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ died at the age of 64 years old on the 11th of March in 1892 at a hospital in the Moabit neighborhood in the Mitte borough of Berlin. Based on his age listed on his marriage records, he would have turned 65 between that date and November, so his calculated year of birth was 1827.

Death of Luise Emilie (née Werdermann) Sternitzkÿ (1827-1898)

Luise Emilie (née Werdermann) Sternitzkÿ died at the St. Hedwig Krankenhaus (hospital) in Berlin on 9th of June in 1898. She was a Protestant. She died at the age of 70 years and 8 months old, so her calculated birthdate was around the 9th of October in 1827. She was born at Schönholz in Ober-Barnim County. She was the daughter of the Arbeiter (laborer) Johann Friedrich Werdermann and Karolina Christiane (née Schneider) Werdermann, who both previously died at Schönholz. Luise Emilie (née Werdermann) Sternitzkÿ was the widow of the Arbeiter Wilhelm Sternitzkÿ. Prior to her death, she lived at Ackerstraße 150/151.

Sternitzke and Riedel Families 1842 to 1863 Domnowitz

The 1842 property purchase by Wilhelm Sterniske (Hausgrundstück Nr. 45) included a note by Wilhelm Starnitzki that listed Johanna Riedel as the owner of that property in 1850. The histories of the Riedel and Sternitzke families continued together after members of both families emigrated from Trebnitz County (in Silesia) to Clark County (in Wisconsin, USA). The Friedrich and Helena Sternitzke family emigrated from Klein Ujeschütz (in Trebnitz County) in 1840, with four children: Karl, Susanna, Gottlieb and Wilhelm. Both Friedrich and Helena were born at Klein Ujeschütz; Friedrich in 1806, and Helena in 1812. They initially lived in Milwaukee and then owned a farm near Milwaukee until they settled in Clark County, Wisconsin in 1856.

Christian and Anna (Stinizcki) Riedel emigrated in 1863 from Schlasing [Schlesien, Silesia] with four sons: Robert, August, Frederick and Daniel. Christian Riedel was born in 1806, and became a farmer and wagon-maker in Silesia. He married Anna Stinizcki [Sternitzke], the daughter of a tailor in the town of Dumnovitz [Domnowitz, Trebnitz County]. This branch of the Riedel family initially settled on free farm land in Illinois (now within the Chicago city limits), and moved to Clark County, Wisconsin in 1873. A separate Riedel family was already living in Clark County when the Christian Riedel family settled there. David Riedel and his family emigrated from Silesia to Wisconsin in 1865 and settled in Clark County in 1872.

Birth, Marriage and Family of Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke 1849 Domnowitz, 1875 to 1876 Schmiedefeld, 1877 to 1883 Pomerania, 1904 to 1941 Breslau

Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke was born at Domnowitz on the 11th of March in 1849. He was the son of the Domnowitz Freistellenbesitzer Johann Sternitzke. Friedrich was probably a brother of Christiane Ernestine Sternitzke whose father was listed as the Freistellen-auszüglers (free property owner and retired farmer) Johann Sternitzke from Domnowitz on the record of Christiane's wedding in 1873. The marriage of the Breslau Weichensteller (railroad switchman) Johann Julius Hahn and Christiane Ernestine Sternitzke at Kainowe was attested (certified) at the St. Elisabeth Protestant Church in Breslau. The record from the St. Elisabeth Church does not identify the actual marriage date. The attested marriage was recorded at St. Elisabeth in August of 1873. See Book III, Chapter 1: the Marriage and Family of Christiane Ernestine Sternitzke, 1873 to 1930 City of Breslau.

Marriage of Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke,
1875 Schmiedefeld & Breslau

In 1875, Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke was employed as a Weichensteller (railroad switchman) at Schmiedefeld in Breslau County. The village of Schmiedefeld was about 3 miles west of the city of Breslau. His father Johann Sternitzke was a former Freistellenbesitzer and an Auszügler (retired farmer) in 1875. On the 30th of August in 1875, Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke married Anna Rosina Pantke at the St. Barbara Protestant Church in Breslau. Anna Rosina Pantke was living at Schmiedefeld at the time of her wedding in 1875. She had previously lived at Breslau. The bride and the groom were both Protestants.

Anna Rosina Pantke was born on the 26th of July in 1849 at the village Fürsten Ellguth in Oels County (about 23 miles east of Breslau, now named Ligota Książęca). She was the daughter of the Postillon (coachman) Friedrich Wilhelm Pantke and Johanna (née Pirnke) Pantke from Fürsten Ellguth. The marriage record for Anna Rosina shows her father and mother had died at the village Fürsten Ellguth before the 1875 marriage of their daughter. The death record for Anna Rosina (née Pantke) Sternitzke shows her parents both died 8 miles further north at the town Bernstadt in Oels County. Bernstadt is now Bierutów, Poland. The occupation named in German as Postillon (postilion or postillion in English) is typically translated as a coachman, but is actually mean the rider who steered the carriage (cannon or caisson) by riding one of the horses pulling the carriage.

The marriage record at the St. Barbara Church shows the marriage of Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke and Anna Rosina Pantke was also recorded at the Breslau civil registry office (Standesamt I) on record number 932 in 1875.

Birth and Death of son Gustav Albert Waldemar Sternitzke,
1876 Schmiedefeld & Breslau

Gustav Albert Waldemar Sternitzke was born at Schmiedefeld (now a western suburb of Wrocław) on the 3rd of March in 1876. He was the son of the Bahnwärter (railroad signalman) Friedrich Sternitzke and his wife Rosina (née Pantke) Sternitzke.

Gustav Albert Waldemar Sternitzke was baptized at the St. Barbara Protestant Church in Breslau on the 26th of March in 1876. His parents were both Protestants. The baptismal sponsors were the Bahnwärter (railroad signalman) Friedrich Deichsel and the Weichenstellerfrau (wife of a railroad switchman) Bertha Kapst.

Gustav Albert Waldemar Sternitzke died on the 4th of April in 1876 from Krämpfen (infantile convulsions). He was buried at Schmiedefeld on the 7th of April in 1876. The burial book for the St. Barbara Protestant Church in Breslau listed his father as the *Hilfswärter*s (assistant railroad signalman) Friedrich Sternitzke.

Family of Georg Sternitzki and Susanna (née Heller) Sternitzki 1852 Domnowitz to 1903 Breslau

The history of Georg Sternitzki (senior) and his wife Susanna (née Heller) Sternitzki is known through the records of their children: Daniel Adam Erdmann Sternitzki (1850-1872), Wilhelm Sternitzki (1852-1894) and Johann Hermann Georg Sternitzki (1857- 1903).

Georg Sternitzki (senior) was a Freigärtner and a Stellenbesitzer (property owner) at Domnowitz. Georg and his wife Susanna died at Domnowitz before their son Wilhelm's death in 1894.

Birth and Death of son Daniel Adam Erdmann Sternitzki 1850 Domnowitz and 1872 Linden

The unmarried Stellmachersgeselle (journeyman wheelwright) Daniel Adam Erdmann Sternitzki (1850-1872) died at the city hospital in Linden (near Hanover), on the 6th of May in 1872. He died at the age of 22 years and 19 days old, so he was born on the 17th of April in 1850. He was buried at the Sankt Martin church cemetery in Hannover (Prussia) on the 9th of May in 1872. His burial record listed his parents as the Freigärtner Georg Sternitzki and his wife Susanna (née Heller) Sternitzki who lived at Damnowitz [Domnowitz] in the Militsch parish.

Birth and Death of son Wilhelm Sternitzki 1852 Domnowitz and 1894 Breslau

The Müllergeselle (journeyman miller) Wilhelm Sternitzki died at Breslau on the 2nd of June in 1894 at the age of 41 years and 10 months. That would place his estimated birth date as around the 2nd of August in 1852. His death record shows that Wilhelm Sternitzki was born at Domnowitz in Trebnitz County, the son of the deceased Domnowitz Stellenbesitzer (property owner) Georg Sternitzki and Susanna (née Heller) Sternitzki. The death record also shows that Wilhelm Sternitzki was unmarried and lived in Breslau at Ottostraße 5 (now Kazimierza Jagiellończyka Street, north of the University Bridge).

See the birth and death record for his brother Johann Hermann Georg Sternitzki (discussed below) and in Book III, Chapter 1: the Brothers Wilhelm Sternitzki and Johann Hermann Georg Sternitzki and Johanna Karoline Augusta (née Weber) Sternitzki, 1878 to 1939 City of Breslau.

Birth, Family and Death of son
Johann Hermann Georg Sternitzki,
 1856 Domnowitz to 1939 Breslau

The Müller (miller) Johann Hermann Georg Sternitzki died at his home in Breslau at Gneisenaustraße 17 (two blocks north of Sand Island, now gen. Józefa Bema Street) on the 2nd of June 1903. He was 46 years and 10 months old when he died, which would place his birthdate around the 2nd of August in 1856. His death record shows that he was the son of the Domnowitz Stellenbesitzers (property owners) Georg Sternitzki (senior) and Susanna (née Heller) Sternitzki.

Georg's death record listed his religion as alt-lutherischer (Old Lutheran). His death was reported by his wife Johanna Karolina Augusta (née Weber) Sternitzki, who signed the death record as Karolina Sternitzki geboren Weber.

Baptismal Sponsor Georg Sternitzki (senior), 1882

The Stellenbesitzer Georg Sternitzki from Domnowitz was one of the baptismal sponsors for Johann Eduard Reinhold Horn. The baby was born on the 26th of February in 1882, the son of the Arbeiter (laborer) Johann Horn and his wife Anna (née Fröhlich) Horn who lived in the village of Rosenthal. The baby was baptized at the Elftausend Jungfrauen Protestant Church in Breslau on the 12th of March in 1882. The other baptismal sponsors were: Bertha Kurtz the daughter of the Schuhmacher (shoemaker) Julius Kurtz in Festenberg, and Susanna Bährholt the widow of the Gasamstaltsarbeiter (gas station laborer) Ernst Bährholt. This Georg Sternitzki could have been one of three men with that name who lived at Domnowitz around that time. See Book I, Chapter 9 Germanengrund (Domnowitz): Georg Sternitzki/Sternitzke I, II and III, 19th Century Domnowitz.

Baptismal Sponsor Georg Sternitzki (junior) 1886

On the 5th of September in 1886, the Breslau Müller Georg Sternitzki was one of the baptismal sponsors for Carl Paul Heinrich Weber, the son of Heinrich Weber and his wife Marie (née Schüssler) Weber. The child was born on the 10th of August in 1886, and was baptized at the Elftausend Jungfrauen Protestant Church in Breslau. Heinrich Weber was employed as a Strohhutpresser (straw hat presser) and lived in Breslau at Bismarkstraße 10. The other sponsors were: the Breslau Dienstmädchen (maid servant) Louise Weber and the Breslau Köchin Anna Weber.

Birth and Death of granddaughter Ida Sternitzki (1888-1894)

Ida Sternitzki was born in Breslau on the 20th of January in 1888 and died on the 24th of May in 1894. The death record for Ida listed her parents as the Müller (miller) Georg Sternitzki (junior) and his wife Karoline (née Weber) Sternitzki. In 1894, they lived in Breslau at Bartschstraße 7 (now Barycka Street, one block north of the Botanical Gardens). The 1891 and 1897 Breslau address books listed the Müller (miller) Georg Sternitzki as living at Bartschstraße 7 IV (fourth floor, now Barycka Street, one block north of the Botanical Gardens).

Wedding Witness Georg Sternitzki (junior) 1896 Breslau

Johann Hermann Georg Sternitzki was a witness at the wedding of August Hermann Sternitzki to Anna Rosina Weber on the 24th of January in 1896. At that time Georg Sternitzki (junior) was a 39 year old Arbeiter (laborer) still living at Bartschstraße 7 (the same address identified on his daughter's death record in 1894).

August Hermann Sternitzki was also an Old Lutheran who was born at Domnowitz. His parents were identified on his marriage record as the Domnowitz Landwirth (farmer) Georg Sternitzki and his wife Rosina (née Reinsch) Sternitzki who were both living at Domnowitz in 1896 (and therefore could not have been the parents of Wilhelm Sternitzki and Johann Hermann Georg Sternitzki, who died before Wilhelm's death in 1894). See Book III, Chapter 1: the Marriage, Family and Death of August Hermann Sternitzki, 1896 to 1939 City of Breslau.

Second Marriage and Death of the Widow
Johanna Karolina Augusta (née Weber) Sternitzki

Johanna Karoline Augusta (née Weber) Sternitzki, the widow of the Müller (miller) Johann Hermann Georg Sternitzki, married the Breslau Maschinist Johann Karl August Vogel in a civil ceremony on the 13th of November in 1908. They were married in a church ceremony at the Elftausend Jungfrauen Protestant Church on the 6th of August in 1910. The bride was listed as the widow Caroline (née Weber) Sternitzke. The civil and church records show that they both lived at Gneisenaustraße 17 in 1908 and 1910. The civil record for that marriage shows that Karoline was born on the 10th of January in 1859 at Eichgrund in Öls County. She was the daughter of the Arbeiter (laborer) Karl Weber, who died in Breslau and his wife Elisabeth (née Strecker) Weber, who in 1908 was already deceased and last resided at Kreuzburg. The names of Karolina's parents are significant because they prove that Karolina née Weber) Sternitzki was a sister to Anna Rosina Weber (who married August Hermann Sternitzki in 1896).

An attachment (dated 16 February 1939) to the 1908 civil marriage record shows that Johanna Karolina Augusta (née Weber) Vogel died on the 30th of January in 1939, as recorded in Sterbebuch Nr. 155 of 1939 at the Standesamt Breslau III.

See Book III, Chapter 1: the Brothers Wilhelm Sternitzki and Johann Hermann Georg Sternitzki and Johanna Karoline Augusta (née Weber) Sternitzki, 1878 to 1939 City of Breslau.

His father bought the property in 1870. A Freigärtner Friedrich Sternitzke was listed as living at Domnowitz (Germanengrund) in the 1937/38 Trebnitz County book of residents (see below).

The Auszügler Johann Sternitzke listed in 1908 may have been the Johann Sterniske who bought Hausgrundstück Nr. 4 in 1870, and sold it to his son Friedrich Sterniske (1870-after 1903) in 1903.

Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz

During the 17th and 18th Centuries our family was probably most represented in two localities not far from Domnowitz: Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz. From 1202 to 1238 the Piast Duke Heinrich I the Bearded, the husband of Saint Hedwig, had continued the settlement of Germanic colonists in Silesia, which had begun under his predecessor. Germanic settlements were created next to the old Slavic communities. By the year 1300, approx. 1500 German villages had been created in Silesia. In Trebnitz County the villages of Lossen, Schawoine, Schlottau, and somewhat later also the village Ujeschütz, were founded and subjected to German Law.

Notes by JWS:

Duke Heinrich I of Silesia was a member of the Piast Dynasty, the first ruling family in Poland. He was called Henry the Bearded because after 1209 he grew his beard in the fashion of the Cistercian lay brothers. In 1209, the duke and his wife took vows of chastity before the Bishop of Breslau, and Hedwig began to spend much of her time at the abbey of Trebnitz. After the death of her husband in 1238, Hedwig moved into the abbey of Trebnitz and spent most of her wealth performing humanitarian deeds. Saint Hedwig was canonized in 1267, and she is honored as the patroness of Silesia.

The year 1371 marks a milestone in the history of the settlement of Ujeschütz. In that year Katharine I, the Abbess of Trebnitz, sold the cloister's Ujeschütz estate, containing twenty small Hufen, as part of the colonial settlement enterprise of a Lokator named Stanislaus, thus granting the settlement to be developed as a village under German Law.

Notes by JWS:

The document discussed above, dated the 1st of January in 1371, was transcribed and published in Wilhelm Haeusler's Urkundensammlung zur Geschichte des Fürstentums Öls. Breslau: 1883, page 160.

Twenty Hufen was farmland equal in size to about 340 acres in the United States. During the period when the Silesian nobility was encouraging German colonists to settle in Silesia, a nobleman would appoint a Locator, an entrepreneur, who would in return for two to four Hufen, recruit German settlers, establish a village under German Law, and would become the Scholz of that village. The plural of Lokator was locatores (in Latin) and Lokatoren (in German). Some sources name the Lokator as the Siedelmeister (the leader of the settlers).

Today, both Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz are situated in the northern part of Trebnitz County. Both places belong to an area, which in the Middle Ages bore the name Sessovo, which was sparsely settled and largely covered by forests. The area around Ujeschütz must have been closely covered with forest and heath because the so-called forest villages of Lahse, Perschnitz, Klein Graben and Ujeschütz were obligated to deliver large quantities of honey to the Trebnitz monastery, as payment of interest. Since no artificial beekeeping is known to exist at that time, the honey supplies indicate the presence of many forests and heaths.

In a document from the year 1224, Duke Heinrich transferred the village Ujeschütz “including the beekeepers”, that is - including the persons who were responsible for the beekeeping, to the Stift of Trebnitz.

Notes by JWS:

Gross Ujeschütz (Large Ujeschütz) and Klein Ujeschütz (Small Ujeschütz) were villages in Trebnitz County, located about ten miles north of Trebnitz. Gross Ujeschütz had a population of 493 in 1939. It is now named Ujeździec Wielki. Klein Ujeschütz had a population of 88 in 1939. It is now named Ujeździec Mały. During our 2008 visit to Ujeździec Wielki, my wife and I visited the local school administrator and one teacher. I asked them what the name of their village meant. They said the word ujeździec meant “at the place to tame wild horses”. The modern name for the village is probably related to the modern Polish word for rider: jeździec. The modern name for the village may have been selected, not as a translation of any of the previous names for the village, but as a known modern Polish word that was similar to the earlier versions of the name (listed below).

Heinrich Adamy identified an earlier name for this village as Ujeysce, which he translated as Erfüllung des Versprechens (in English: fulfilling a promise). Wielke Ujeysce was the name of Gross Ujeschütz in 1845. But, Konstantin Damroth (in 1896) identified several earlier variations of the village names and determined that Ujeschütz was a corruption of the words Ujeszdek, or more correctly Ujeździk. This is consistent with the name of another Silesian village, Ujeździec in Nysa County (German: Neisse or Neiße) near the border with the Czech Republic. The Czech word Újezd, used in the names of many former Bohemian villages, translates to “around-ridden”. This Czech word means the same as the Polish word Ujazd (Latin: circuitio or circumequitatio) referring to the custom in the Middle Ages by which a nobleman would designate the boundary of an area (such as a new village or a collection of farms) by ceremonially riding its boundary. In Czech, jezdec means (a rider) and the Ú denotes “at the”, which again is related to a location marked by the rider. Richard Hoffmann wrote that the practice of Ujazd passed from Bohemia (or Moravia) to the Silesian dukes around 1100, with the first documented Ujazd occurring around 1149.

The evolution of the name for this village is intriguing, especially when (according to Dr. Sepp) the German suffix -schütz (meaning protective) is represented in Slavic languages as -cic or -czyk. Some of the variations were probably due to misspellings, followed by the Germanization of an original Slavic word, and probably a substitution of a Germanic-Slavic hybrid word with a similar sounding Polish word. The original basis for the village name was the identification of the boundaries of an area of land for settlement, development and collection of rent (a portion of the production by the villagers: honey, wax, grain, produce, etc.). In return, the feudal lord promised protection – perhaps this was the promise referred to by Heinrich Adamy.

Ujeschütz was mentioned as “Uyesdicz, in the Sessovo forest district” in a document dated the 28th of May in the year 1223. Sessovo was a forest district, owned by the Catholic Cloister at Trebnitz that included the villages: Deutsch Hammer, Polnisch Hammer, Katholisch Hammer, Gross Biadauschke, Klein Biadauschke, Parnitze and Ujeschütz. The Lokator Stanislaus and his son Laurentius were early (and probably the first) Scholzen of Ujeschütz.

Other variations for the villages Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz included; Ujezdec and Uiesdek (for Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz, 1224), Ujeszczecz (1236), Uyesdcz (1266), Ugesdez (1267), Vyesczczecz (1371), Uyasch (1400 & 1410), Ujasch (1410), Uges and Ujis (1431), Oyeszdzwtz (1449) and Oygest (1475). The Trebnitzer Rechnungsbuch of 1523-1524 included other variations of the name of village Gross Ujeschütz: Ujast, Uyest and Vyast. Later variations included: Ujast (1567), Viest (1691 & 1695), Hujeschitz (1693), Uigschitz (1695), Ujeschütz (1615), Gross Hujeschütz (1709), Groß Ujeschitz (1736 & 1742), Klein Ujeschits (1742), Wielke Ujeysce (1845) and Ujazd (1896). Magno Ujest (1716), Mega Viest (1723) and Mega Ujest (1724), Majori Viest (1727) were Latin forms of Gross Ujeschütz used in records from the Catholic church in Powitzko.

In deed books from 1410, Gross Ujeschütz was identified as Ujasch. At the beginning of the 16th Century it was called Ujast, and in church books of the 16th Century it was listed as Hujeschütz. The community Klein Ujeschütz, 3 kilometers north of Gross Ujeschütz, neither appears in the informative property deed book of 1410 from the Trebnitz monastery, nor is it mentioned as being associated with the Häuslers (cottage owners and day-laborers). The establishment of Klein Ujeschütz must have occurred at a later time. In a marriage book of Pawellau (Paulskirch), Klein Ujeschütz is listed as “Viest”. In 1697 and 1702, the place was listed as New Ujeschütz. In 1718 it emerged with today’s name, Klein Ujeschütz, when it appeared beside Gross Ujeschütz in a brewery deed book concerning the Principality of Öls, documenting gifts given to the Trebnitz monastery, given at Vienna on 23 June 1718.

The oldest well-known ancestor of the line from Ujeschütz - my direct ancestor through eight generations - was born at the time of the Thirty-Years War [1618-1648]. From our knowledge of his personal conditions, we know only that he was not present at the time of the marriage ceremony of his son Adam (on the 23rd of October in 1703) at Schlottau. At that time, the church at Schlottau was in Catholic possession and therefore had a Catholic clergyman (see the above discussion regarding “Church Conditions”). The wedding ceremony was entered in the church book, by the Catholic priest, in Latin like all church actions were written at that time. The entry reads:

*1703, 23 Oktobris.: Honestus famulus Adam
relictus filius post Adam Sciernisko, natione ex Viesic, cum honesta famula Anna, Matthiae Meißner filia, ex Briezie.*

The Latin words indicated here by underlining are translated as: “surviving son of Adam Sciernisko, born in Ujeschütz”. Adam Sciernisko, the father of the groom was called thus in the church book entry for his son Adam, and had died before 1703. Adam, the son, was described as a famulus, an agricultural helper (from the Latin word “famuli”; the German word is Gesinde).

Notes and translation by JWS:

The wedding on the 23rd of October in 1703 was for Adam Tschernißke (1671-1749, SN1) and Anna Meißner. His father (shown above as Adam Sciernisko) was Johann Sciernisko (1610-1672, SN273) as was explained below. See the table titled The Ancestors and Descendants of Wilhelm Starnitzki in Chapter 6 of this book, and the Abstammungsnachweiß für Gotthold Sternitzke in Friedrichskirch in Chapter 14. Also see Chapter 15, Briesche, Sternitzke Family Personal Data for Briesche: Family of Adam Tschernißke (1671-1749, SN1).

Gesinde is a German word for young servants hired as gooseherds or shepherds when young (age 6 or 7) and later as farm workers. Viesic was apparently the Latin form of Ujeschütz (also listed as Viest in a marriage book from Schlottau, as mentioned above). This entry also shows that the bride, Anna the daughter of Matthias Meißner, was from the nearby village Briesche (and the Latinized versions of Matthias and Briesche are Matthiae and Briezie). A full translation of the above marriage record would then be:

23rd of October 1703: The respectable farm worker Adam, a surviving son of Adam Sciernisko, from the village Ujeschütz, to the respectable farm worker Anna, daughter of Matthias Meißner, from the village Briesche.

After checking all other available resources, the following correction to the church book entry is required: when comparing related entries in the Schöppenbüchern with previously well-known members in my family tree, I noticed a discrepancy which I cannot ignore as a conscientious chronicler. The clergyman who made the church book entry must have erred in regard to the father's name, because his name was Johann. When reading the 17th and 18th century Schöppenbüchern of the community Ujeschütz (the place of birth of the “younger Adam”), I found that in property documents concerning the Sciernisko family, the first name Adam occurs only in documents from around the turn of the 17th Century. On the other hand, the names Johann (Hans) and George were represented very often in Ujeschütz during that time. The name “Adam” occurs in the records only once (in Ujeschütz) in the second half of the 17th Century. But this Adam is the second son from the third marriage of the free-farmer Johann (Hans) Sciernisko (1610-1672, SN273) in Ujeschütz. The examination and comparison of the well-known circumstances concerning this “Adam” make it certain to me that there could not have been another person named Adam in Ujeschütz in the same period.

The aforementioned Hans Sciernisko, or as was written in this case Tschernißke, was married three times. He left eleven children: five sons and six daughters. Adam (1671-1749, SN1) was the eleventh child – the last one. From a purchase document from the year 1679 it follows that Adam, and his brothers Jakob and Michel, were still minors in 1679, because all three had a common guardian at that time. This is verified from his known age at the time of his death. Adam died in 1749 at the age of 78 years, so he must have been born around 1671. So, in 1679 his age was 8 years. Jakob Sciernisko (c.1659-1728, SN264) was listed as a witness of Adam's marriage in 1703. This is certainly the Jakob mentioned above, a step-brother of Adam from the second marriage of their father. After considering everything, it may be assumed with certainty that the father of Adam was not also called Adam, but probably Hans. It could have been a mistake made by the clergyman in 1703, or possibly a mistake in the reading by Pastor Malich. The wedding was recorded in the Latin language. The Latin form for Johannes is Joannes, and sometimes shortened to Joann. If this form is indistinctly written, it could have been possibly misinterpreted.

Property Transfer Records for Gross and Klein Ujeschütz

I was able to identify detailed statements concerning our family and the ownership structure in the communities of Gross and Klein Ujeschütz from detailed personal research I performed at the Trebnitz Land Register Office. The interesting result of this research is arranged and presented in the following property transfer report.

Notes by JWS:

Wilhelm Starnitzki or his editor Karl Sille presented the following property transfers as a chronological history for each piece of property in both villages: Groß Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz. These groupings were based on individual pages from the Erbhöferolle des Amtsgerichts Trebnitz (inherited farm records at the Trebnitz District Court office). Perhaps the two villages were considered one village because they had adjoining fields. These groupings by property clearly show the family relationships through inheritances and purchases within the family.

For definitions of the German words used for the Silesian money, see Book I: Chapter 7, Silesian Money in the 16th, 17th and 18th Centuries. For definitions of the German words used for the property types, see the property definitions listed in Chapter 9, Germanengrund (Domnowitz): Sternitzke Family Property Purchases and Sales in Domnowitz (Germanengrund) 1584 to 1925. The following additional German terms are translated as follows:

Land Measurements Before 1755:

1 Hufe = 30 Morgen = 17.3387 Hektar

1 Hube = 26.5 Hektar (provided by Wilhelm Starnitzki below)

1 Morgen = 300 Quadratrueten (Square Ruten) = 0.577955 Hektar

1 Quadratruete = 19.2652 Square Miles

Land Measurements After 1755 (Magdeburg System for measurement):

1 Hufe = 30 Morgen = 7.6597 ha

1 Morgen = 180 Quadratrueten(square-Ruten) = 25.5322 ar

1 ar = 100 square meters

Land Measurements After 1813 (Prussian System for measurement):

1 Hube = 30 Morgen = 5.531 ha

1 ha = Hektar = hectare (about 2.47 acres)

Abbreviations used for Village names:

D = Domnowitz

G = Germanengrund (named Domnowitz from 1936 to after WWII)

They were married 21 years earlier, at Trebnitz on the 19th of April in 1831. So, Susanna may have not inherited Bauergut 10 until the year she transferred it to her husband. The only odd exception was in 1855. Gottfried Sternitzke from Parnitze was listed as the owner of Bauergut 10 when he purchased Ackerland in Gross Ujeschütz on the 29th of September in 1855. This Gottfried may have been the Gottfried Sterniske (who was born in 1821) the son of Christian Sterniske (c.1790-c.1844, SN30). Bauergut 10 apparently remained within the Kotschote family from 1786 to 1852. In 1852, Susanne (née Kotschote) Sterniski sold Bauergut 10 to her husband Gottlieb Sterniski (1809-1854), son of Daniel Sterniski (1774-after 1812).

Daniel Sternitzke (c.1755-c.1817) and Daniel Sterniski (1774-after 1812) shared the same great-great-grandfather Johann Tschernißke (1610-1672, SN273). See the end of chapter notes.

Gottlieb Sterniski (1809-1854) was also the owner of Bauergut 16. He received it from his father Daniel Sterniski (1774-after 1812) on the 22nd of March in 1831. They were cousins to the previous owners of Bauergut 10. See the property transfer history of Bauergut 16 below.

The lineage of Daniel Sterniski (1774-after 1812) and his son Gottlieb Sterniski (1809-1854) was: George (c.1510-c.1574, SN1) - Blasius (c.1544-c.1615, SN22) - Gregor (c.1580-1678, SN200) - Johann (1610-1672, SN273) - Jakob (c.1659-1728, SN264) - Heinrich (1697-1763) - Andreas (1736-1805) - Daniel (1774-after 1812) - Gottlieb (1809-1854).

Parnitze was a village about one kilometer south of Gross Ujeschütz. This transaction is a copy of the one listed below. I copied it here because it documented the ownership of Bauergut 10 in 1855.

This Gottfried may have been the Gottfried Sterniske (who was born in 1821) the son of Christian Sterniske (c.1790-c.1844, SN30). See Chapter 15, Briesche, Sternitzke Family Personal Data for Briesche: the Family of Christian Sterniske (c.1790-c.1844, SN30).

Daniel Sterniski (1774-after 1812) was a Bauer (farmer) born at Gross Ujeschütz on the 10th of February in 1774, the son of Andreas Sterniske (1736-1805) and Maria (née Gumke) Sterniski. Daniel was baptized at Kainowe on the 13th of February in 1774. Daniel Sterniski (1774-after 1812) married Maria Labitzky on the 3rd of November in 1795 at the Protestant church in Kainowe. Maria Labitzky was born at Gross Ujeschütz on the 8th of January in 1774. Maria was the daughter of the Bauer Andreas Labitzky and Maria (née Schoschnick) Labitzky. Maria Labitzky was a descendant of Catharina (née Scierniskin) Schoßnick. Maria Labitzky and her husband Daniel Sterniski had the same great-great-great-grandfather Johann Tschernißke/ Sternitzke / Sciernisko (1610-1672, SN273), making them 3rd cousins. See the Family of Jacob Schoßnick and Catharina (née Scierniskin) Schoßnick, 1728 to 1738 Domnowitz.

Daniel Sterniski (1774-after 1812) purchased additional properties on the 17th of May in 1812 (see below).

Karl Sille listed Maria's name as Maria Labitzky-Micknas. She may have married a Mr. Micknas after the death of Daniel Sterniski. Micknas was a common family name in Trebnitz County. See the Family of Robert Theodor Sternitzke, 1889 to 1892 Pawellau. Theodor's second wife was Johanna née Micknass. Also see the Marriage of Johanna Ernestine (née Micknass) Sternitzke, 19 May 1913 City of Breslau.

Wilhelm Starnitzki or Karl Sille identified this Adolf as Adolf I. Sternitzke, the son of Ernst and Anna Sternitzke (on pages 45 and 46 of the original manuscript). Page 47 of the manuscript listed an Adolf II. Sternitzke the son of Wilhelm Sternitzke. See the discussion regarding property transfers of Bauergut 19. So, the middle initials of these two men were not I or II.

I believe the Starnitzki or Sille made an error on the record. Or, perhaps the original record they reviewed had the error. I believe this property was Bauergut 10, not Bauergut 20. Bauergut 10 (with a taxable area of 49 hektars) in Gross Ujeschütz was owned in 1926 and 1930 by Adolf Sternitzke (c.1863-after 1930), the son of Ernst Gottlieb Sternitzky and Anna Susanna (née Tilgner) Sternitzky. He was listed as Ad. Sternitzke I in the 1926 and 1930 address books. Bauergut 10 had an assessed value of 861 Marks in 1926 and 1930.

Bauergut 20 (with a taxable area of 66 hektars) was owned by Bruno Zappe in 1937. The property size for Bauergut 20 does not match the property size listed in the above description.

Ad. Sternitzke II (the son of Wilhelm and Rosina Sternitzke) was listed as owning property number 19 in 1926 and 1930. See the note below regarding the 19 November 1920 purchase of Bauergut 19 by Adolf Sternitzke (the son of Wilhelm Sternitzke).

Michael Sternitzke (c.1720-1788, SN377) received the Kretscham in Klein Ujeschütz from Maria Sternitzke . No money amount was specified which supports the theory Maria was his wife. She was formerly the widow Gramatte . Michael held the Kretscham from the 15 th of September in 1752 until it was sold to Daniel Gramatte for 900 Schlesisches Thalers . Daniel Gramatte was probably Maria 's son from her first marriage. Michael Sternitzke was the Erbscholz at Klein Ujeschütz from 1752 to 1778. Maria Sternitzke was the baptism sponsor for Daniel Freitag in 1769 at the Protestant Church in Kainowe. Daniel purchased Bauergut 10 in Gross Ujeschütz in February of 1786 and sold it in April of that year. | Notes by JWS: The question mark was not an addition by me. It was written this way in the original manuscript. Perhaps Friedrich received the house from the estate of his father Daniel, who had bought the house from David Krusche in 1800. The date listed here may not have been the date of purchase. It may have been when the tax records were updated at the city of Trebnitz. I believe this Friedrich Sternitzke was my great-great-great grandfather, and that the Daniel Sternitzke listed above in 1800 and 1809 was his father. The biography of Friedrich Sternitzke shows his father died when Friedrich was 11 years old (around 1817). The lineage for Friedrich would then be: George (c.1510-c.1574, SN1) - Blasius (c.1544-c.1615, SN22) - Gregor (c.1580-1678, SN200) - Johann (1610-1672, SN273) - Georg (c.1650-1709, SN133) - Johannes (1691-1769, SN278) - Johannes (c.1725-1779, SN287) - Daniel (c.1755-c.1817) - Friedrich (1806-1901). Friedrich was born at Klein Ujeschütz on the 26th of September in 1806, and married Helena Dietz in 1831. Friedrich bought Haus Nr. 11 one month before his 26th birthday. The first child of Friedrich and Helena Sternitzke was Karl Friedrich Sternitzke who born on 5 May 1832 at Klein Ujeschütz. Friedrich Sternitzke and his family emigrated to the U.S.A. in 1840 (explaining his sale of this property to David Tischer shown next). Friedrich and Helena Sternitzke are discussed further at the end of this chapter. Sternitzky (1839-1924) and Carl Robert Sternitzky (1844-1917) who were born at Klein Ujeschütz and emigrated to Illinois in 1862. Daniel Sternitzke (1812-1893) and his wife Helene (née Kitchke) Sternitzke (1814-1881) emigrated on the 31st of July in 1865, on the ship named New York. Other variations of Georg's surname were: Sterniski, Schernißeke, Sternißeke, Sterniske and Sternisko. Georg was born at Domnowitz, before his father bought Bauergut 10 at Gross Ujeschütz in 1660. Georg became the owner of his father's Bauergut 10 in 1671. The Bauer (farmer) Georg was a Gerichtsmann (member of the court) at Gross Ujeschütz from 1698 to 1701. See the 1671 and the 1715 property transfers for Bauergut 10 in Book I, Chapter 10, Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz: Sternitzke Family Property Transfers, Purchases and Sales in Ujeschütz, Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz.

Marriages and Death of Georg Sternitzke

According to the baptism records of their children, Georg Sterniski married Maria (maiden name unknown) around 1691. Maria apparently died after the 1695 baptism of their daughter Hedwig. Georg then married Hedwig (maiden name unknown) because the property transfer of Bauergut 10 in Gross Ujeschütz listed Hedwig (maiden name unknown) as the widow of Georg Sternitzke. She sold the Bauergut to her step-son Johannes (Hans) Sternitzke (1691-1769, SN278) on the 3rd of October in 1715.

Wilhelm Sternitzki listed the year of death for Georg Sternitzke as 1709 in his Directory of Village Magistrates (or Mayors) and Members of the Courts from the House of Sternitzke.

Known Children of Georg and Maria Sternitzke

Hanß (Johannes) Sterniski/Sternisko was baptized at the Protestant Church at Pawellau on the 12th of April in 1691. The baptism register listed his parents as Geörg and Maria Sterniski. The baptism record listed the parents as George and Maria Sternisko from Viest (Ujeschütz). See below: the Family of Johannes Sternisko (1691-1769, SN278), 1691 to 1786 Gross Ujeschütz.

Katharina Sternisko/Scherniße was baptized at the Protestant Church at Pawellau on the 29th of October in 1693. The baptism registry book at the Pawellau church listed the parents' names as Georg and Maria Sternisko, while the actual baptism book listed their names as George and Maria Scherniße. The baptism was later recorded at the Kainowe Church, with the father's name recorded as George Scherniße. Catharina Sciernisken married Jacob Schoßnick before 1728. The baptism records of their children are discussed at the Family of Jacob Schoßnick and Catharina (née Scierniskin) Schoßnick, 1728 to 1738 Domnowitz.

Hedewig Sternisko/Scherniße was baptized at the Protestant Church at Pawellau on the 27th of February in 1695. The baptism registry book at the Pawellau church listed the parents' name as Georg and Maria Sternisko, while the actual baptism book listed the names as George and Maria Scherniße. The copy of the record at the Kainowe church listed the family name as Sterniske, but did not list the first names of the parents.

Georg Sciernisko (junior, c.1700-after 1757) the surviving son of the late farmer Georg Sciernisko from Groß Ujeschütz married Susanna Nitzke, the surviving daughter of Matthiae Nitzke from Domnowitz. They were married at Powitzko on the 2nd of November in 1723. See the Family of Georg Sciernisko (c.1700-after 1757) and Susanna (née Nitzke) Sciernisko, 1723 to 1757 Domnowitz.

Wilhelm Starnitzki listed the father of Gregor Sterniske (c.1706-1769, SN209) as "nicht bekannt" (unknown) in his Directory of Village Magistrates (or Mayors) and Members of the Courts from the House of Sternitzke. Gregor was probably a son of Georg Sterniße

(c.1650-1709, SN133), a Gerichtsmann at Gross Ujeschütz from 1698 to 1701. The Freigärtner (free owner of a small farm) Gregor was the Gerichtsscholz (court appointed mayor) of Kainowe until 1754.

Birth and Death of son
Michael Sternitzke (c.1720-1788, SN377)

Wilhelm Sternitzki listed the years of the birth and death for Michael Sternitzke (c.1720-1788, SN377) in his Directory of Village Magistrates (or Mayors) and Members of the Courts from the House of Sternitzke. The name of Michael's mother is not known. Michael was employed as a Kretschmer (innkeeper) and held the office of Erbscholz (hereditary mayor) at Klein Ujeschütz from 1752 to 1778. The Kretscham (inn) at Klein Ujeschütz was transferred from Maria Sternitzke (the former widow Gramatte) in 1752. Maria was probably the wife of Michael in 1752. Michael sold the inn to Daniel Gramatte in 1778. Daniel Gramatte was probably Maria's son from her first marriage.

Birth and Death of son Johannes Sternitzke (c.1725-1779, SN287)

Wilhelm Sternitzki listed the years of the birth and death for Johannes Sternitzke (junior, c.1725-1779, SN287) in his Directory of Village Magistrates (or Mayors) and Members of the Courts from the House of Sternitzke. Johannes (junior) bought Bauergut 10 (farmstead) in Gross Ujeschütz on the 17th of September in 1755, so he was probably born around 1725. Johannes (junior) was employed as a Bauer (farmer) and served as a Gerichtsgeschworener (a court juror) at Gross Ujeschütz around 1774. His son, Daniel Sternitzke (c.1755-1817) bought Bauergut 10 on the 13th of February in 1786. Daniel sold Bauergut 10 to Anton Kotschote on the 18th of April in 1786. Daniel married Helene Garbsch around 1800. Daniel bought Haus number 11 in Klein Ujeschütz from David Krusche on the 11th of May in 1800. Daniel bought the Freigärtnerstelle number 1 in Klein Ujeschütz from his father-in-law Daniel Garbsch on the 30th of May in 1809. See the End of Chapter Notes and Additional Information by JWS: Hypothetical History of the Daniel Sternitzke (c.1755-c.1817) Family, c.1755 to 1865.

Wedding Witness Joannes Sciernisko, 1727

Joannes (Johann) Sciernisko (senior), the Scultetus (Scholz, mayor) of Majori Viest (Groß Ujeschütz), was a witness at the wedding of Georgius Langner, and the widow Maria (née Stober) Gazary. The groom was the son of the Coloni (farmer) Georgy Langner from Majori Viest. The bride was the widow of Mattha Gazary from Gahlhäuser in Trebnitz County. Gahlhäuser was a village north of Domnowitz. The other witness was the Colonus (farmer) Andreas Stach from Groß Ujeschütz. The wedding took place on the 19th of October in 1727 at the Catholic church in Powitzko.

Wedding Witness Hanß Schiernißke, 1736 and 1742

The Pauer (farmer) Hanß Schiernißke from Groß Ujeschütz (Ujeschütz) was a wedding witness for Christoph Langner and Hedwig Honnig at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 5th of February in 1736. Christoph Langner was the surviving son of the Pauer George Langner in Groß Ujeschütz. The bride was the daughter of George Honnig, a Kretschmer and Pauer (innkeeper and farmer) from Domnowitz.

The Bauer (farmer) Hanß Sciernißke from Groß Ujeschütz (Ujeschütz) was a wedding witness for Thomas Gramatte and Susanna Priëß at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 27th of May in 1742. Thomas Gramatte was the surviving son of Daniel Gramatte who was a former Scholz (mayor) of Klein Ujeschütz. Susanna Priëß was the daughter of Caspar Priëß, who was the Scholtz of Powitzko. The Bauer George Zaßkolek from Powitzko was also a witness at that wedding in 1742.

1698 Klein Ujeschütz

The information regarding Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-after 1698, SN204) and his family comes from the records from the Catholic church in Schawoine in Trebnitz County. Wilhelm Starnitzki recorded the information in Book I, Chapter 15, Briesche, Sternitzke Family Personal Data for Briesche: the Family of Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-after 1698, SN204).

The badly damaged record book for the 1675 to 1707 births and marriages at the Catholic Church at Schawoine was available on the Internet in 2017. These were the same records discussed by Wilhelm Starnitzki in Chapter 2 of his manuscript. See Book I, Chapter 2: Church Books and General Church Conditions in Trebnitz County. Because of the poor quality of the records, only a few additional details were found during a review of those online records. See Book III, Chapter 2, Village of Schawoine in Trebnitz County: Records at the Schawoine Catholic Church 1675 to 1707, Gregor Sciernisko Family.

Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-after 1698, SN204) was born around 1655. His place of birth and the names of his parents are unknown. Gregor married Eva (last name unknown) before 1686. The 1685 baptism record for their first son (George) at the Catholic church in Powitzko listed Gregor Schzernisko and his wife Eva as residents of Domnowitz. Gregor Sciernisko was occupied as a Hirt (herdsman) at Briesche when their children were baptized from 1690 to 1695 at the Catholic church in Schawoine.

Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-after 1698, SN204) lived at the same time as Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-1714) who was born at Domnowitz. This second Gregor was the son of Johann (Hans, Johannes, Adam) Tschernißke, Sternitzke, Sciernisko (1610-1672, SN273) who lived at Domnowitz and Gross Ujeschütz. The two Gregors could have been the same person. See the Family of Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-1714), c.1655 to 1762 Domnowitz.

Children of Gregor Sciernisko and Eva Sciernisko

Georg Sciernisko, the son of Gregor Sciernisko and Eva Sciernisko was born in 1686 according to the manuscript by Wilhelm Starnitzki. The quality of the online Schawoine records were too damaged to identify Georg's baptism record. The baptism records at the Catholic Church in Powitzko listed the baptism of George Schzernisko on the 24th of May in 1685. His parents were listed as Gregor Schzernisko and his wife Eva from Domnowitz.

Maria Sciernisko, the daughter of Gregor Sciernisko and Eva Sciernisko was born in 1690. She was baptized at the Catholic church in Schawoine on the 24th of March in 1690. The review of the online record of that baptism shows Maria's godparents were Eva Minkin, Anna Fannigin and Joannes Tirnuche.

Katharina Sciernisko, the daughter of Gregor Sciernisko and Eva Sciernisko was born in 1692. The quality of the online Schawoine records were too damaged to identify Katharina's baptism record.

Eva Sciernisko and Adam Sciernisko may have been twin children of Gregor Sciernisko and Eva Sciernisko. In his manuscript Wilhelm Starnitzki wrote only one year of birth (1695) for both children in his table of Sternitzke Family Personal Data for Briesche. Or, Eva could have been born at the beginning of 1695, and Adam could have been born in December of 1695. The quality of the online record is too poor to identify the first name (or names) of the Sciernisko child baptized in December of 1695 at Schawoine. The names of the parents were listed as Gregorius Sciernisko and his wife Eva from Brizie (Briesche).

Baptism Sponsor Gregor Sciernisko, 1696

Gregoriy Sciernisko was the godfather for the baptism of Andreas Hein at the Catholic church in Schawoine on the 10th of March in 1696. The child's parents were Christophory Hein and Ursula Hein.

Baptism Sponsor Eva Sciernisko, 1698

Move to Klein Ujeschütz, 1698

Wilhelm Starnitzki's table of Sternitzke Family Personal Data for Briesche included a note stating Gregor Sternitzke (c.1655-after 1698, SN204) and his family moved to Klein Ujeschütz in 1698. He was employed as a Freigärtner there. Wilhelm's property transfer table for Klein Ujeschütz did not include a record of a property transfer for Gregor Sternitzke around 1698.

Marriage of Georg Sciernisko and Anna Scierniskin 1716 Gross Ujeschütz, Domnowitz

The widower Georgius Sciernisko from Magno Ujest (Gross Ujeschütz) married Anna Scierniskin at the Catholic church in Powitzko on the 10th of November in 1716. Anna was born around 1698, based on her marriage in 1716. Anna Scierniskin was the daughter of the hortulanus (Gärtner) Georgi Sciernisko from Domnowitz. See the Family of Georg and Susanna Tschernisko, 1669 to 1728 Domnowitz. The wedding witnesses were Gregorius Haubitz and Andreas Kendzie.

Hypothetical History of the Daniel Sternitzke (c.1755-c.1817) Family c.1755 to 1865

This hypothetical history is based on property records in Silesia and the known histories of emigrants from Silesia to the United States. It is unreliable to base family trees on property records without seeing the original property records and without supporting birth, marriage and death records. It is not known if the property transfers were due to the deaths of the previous owners. It is also not known if the dates were transfers of ownership or if the records were records of ownership for tax purposes. It appears as if the dates do not reflect the date of sale, but the date when the court or tax records were updated at the city of Trebnitz. In some cases, the property transfers were dated well after the seller emigrated.

The following timeline of events outlines the events supporting this hypothetical history of the Daniel Sternitzke family. Details of those events are listed below the timeline.

- Around 1755. Daniel Sternitzke (senior) was born at Gross Ujeschütz. He was the son of Johannes Sternitzke (c.1725-1779, SN287).
- 1800. Daniel Sternitzke (senior) bought house number 11 at Klein Ujeschütz. Daniel (senior) probably married Helene Garbsch around that time.
- 1803. Gottlieb Sternitzke was born. He was probably the son of Daniel Sternitzke (senior).
- 1806. Friedrich Sternitzke was born at Klein Ujeschütz. He was probably the son of Daniel (senior).
- 1809. Daniel Sternitzke (senior) bought the Freigärtnerstelle number 1 in Klein Ujeschütz from his father-in-law Daniel Garbsch.
- 1812. Daniel Sternitzke (junior) was born at Klein Ujeschütz. He was the son of Daniel (senior).
- Around 1817. Daniel Sternitzke (senior), the father of Friedrich Sternitzke died when Friedrich was 11 years old. Gottlieb was around 14 years old. Daniel (junior) was around 5 years old.
- Around 1830. Gottlieb Sternitzke married Helene Friedrich. Their daughter Susanna Helene Sternitzke was born in September of 1831 at Silesia. Their second daughter Anna Rosina Sternitzke was born at Chicago in January of 1835.
- 1831. Friedrich Sternitzke married Helene Dietz.
- 1832. Friedrich Sternitzke purchased house number 11 in Klein Ujeschütz. This was the year that Friedrich's son, Karl was born at Klein Ujeschütz. This may have been the year that his brother Gottlieb Sternitzke emigrated to Illinois.
- Around 1838. Daniel Sternitzke (junior) married Helen Kitchke around 1838. Their first son William (probably originally named Wilhelm) was born at Klein Ujeschütz on the 8th of June in 1839.
- 1840. David Tischer purchased house number 11 in Klein Ujeschütz from Friedrich Sternitzke. The Friedrich Sternitzke family emigrated to the United States.
- 1841. Daniel Sternitzke (junior) from Klein Ujeschütz was listed as the owner of the Freigärtnerstelle number 1. He was the son of Daniel Sternitzke (senior) who bought the property in 1809.
- 1865. Daniel Sternitzke (junior) sold the Freigärtnerstelle number 1 to the Kothe family. The Daniel (junior) Sternitzke family emigrated to the United States.

Daniel Sternitzke (senior, c.1755-c.1817)

Daniel Sternitzke (c.1755-after 1786) was the son of Johannes Sternitzke (c.1725-1779, SN287). The lineage of Johann and Daniel was: George (c.1510-c.1574, SN1) - Blasius (c.1544-c.1615, SN22) - Gregor (c.1580-1678, SN200) - Johann (1610-1672, SN273) - Georg (c.1650-1709, SN133) - Johannes (1691-1769, SN278) - Johannes (c.1725-1779, SN287) - Daniel (c.1755-c.1817).

Daniel purchased Bauergut 10 in Gross Ujeschütz on the 13th of February in 1786. He paid 1800 Schlesisches Thalers, which was much less than it was worth. He probably bought the property from the other heirs of his father. Daniel sold that property to Anton Kotschote on the 18th of April of that year for 3000 Schlesisches Thalers.

Daniel Sternitzke (c.1755-c.1817) purchased Haus Nr. 11 in Klein Ujeschütz for 470 Thalers from David Krusche on the 11th of May in 1800.

Daniel Sternitzke (c.1755-1817) purchased the Freigärtnerstelle Nr. 1 in Klein Ujeschütz for 200 Schlesisches Thalers on the 30th of May in 1809. The low cost was probably because Daniel Sternitzke's wife, Helene (née Garbsch) Sternitzke was the daughter of the previous owner, Daniel Garbsch. Jakob Knur was listed as a Zeitbesitzer of that property transfer, which may have meant he rented the property from Daniel Garbsch prior to the transfer in 1809.

No records have been found regarding the death of Daniel Sternitzke (senior) or the death of his wife Helene (née Garbsch) Sternitzke. The biography of Friedrich Sternitzke shows his father died when Friedrich was 11 years old (around 1817). The properties of Daniel (senior) may have passed to his wife Helene at that time because all three sons were minors.

Gottlieb Sternitzke (1803-1866)

Gottlieb Sternitzke was born on the 21st of December in 1803. He was probably the son of Daniel Sternitzke (c.1755-c.1817) and Helene (née Garbsch) Sternitzke. Gottlieb Sternitzke married Helene Friedrich around 1830. Their daughter Susanna Helene Sternitzke was born in September of 1831 at Silesia. Their second daughter Anna Rosina Sternitzke was born at Chicago in January of 1835. The Gottlieb Sternitzke family probably emigrated to the U.S.A. in 1832. A grandson of Gottlieb Sternitzke (1803-1866) married a granddaughter of Friedrich Sternitzke (1806-1901). See below: Gottlieb Sternitzke (1803-1866) Emigration From Silesia To Proviso Township, Dupage County, Illinois around 1832.

Friedrich Sternitzke (1806-1901)

Friedrich Sternitzke was born at Klein Ujeschütz on the 26th of October in 1806. Friedrich married Helena Dietz around 1831, after serving in the Prussian Army. Friedrich Sternitzke (1806-1901) was listed as the owner of Haus Nr. 11 on the 14th of September in 1832. Wilhelm Starnitzki or the editor (Karl Sille) of his manuscript listed the heirs of Krusche (?) as the sellers of that property in 1832. The question mark was placed after Krusche family name in the Sternitzki/Sille manuscript. Friedrich bought Haus Nr. 11 one month before his 26th birthday. The first child of Friedrich and Helena Sternitzke was Karl Friedrich Sternitzke who born on 5 May 1832 at Klein Ujeschütz. Friedrich and Helena Sternitzke had three more children who were born at Klein Ujeschütz.

Friedrich Sternitzke and his family emigrated to the U.S.A. on the 24th of June in 1840 (explaining his sale of this property to David Tischler). David Tischler was listed as the owner of Haus Nr. 11 on the 9th of October in 1840. See below: Friedrich Karl Sternitzke (1806-1901) Emigration from Klein Ujeschütz, Trebnitz County, Silesia To Lynn Township, Clark County, Wisconsin in 1840.

Daniel Sternitzke (junior, 1812-1893) was born around February of 1812. That date was based on his age 81 years and 7 months old) when he died on the 18th of September in 1893.

Daniel married Helene Kitchke (1814-1881) around 1838. Their first son William (probably originally named Wilhelm) was born at Klein Ujeschütz on the 8th of June in 1839. Their second son Carl Robert was born on the 6th of September in 1844 at Klein Ujeschütz.

Daniel Sternitzke (junior) from Klein Ujeschütz was listed as the owner of the Freigärtnerstelle 1 on the 21st of December in 1841. He was the son of Daniel Sternitzke (senior) who bought the property in 1809. He may have received this property after the death of his mother.

Daniel and Helene Sternitzke had five more children who were born at Klein Ujeschütz: Wilhelm (c.1845), Helene (c.1849), Robert (c.1845), Caroline (c.1851) and Christoph (c.1855). The two oldest sons William F. Sternitzke and Carl Robert Sternitzke emigrated to the U.S.A. in 1862.

Daniel Sternitzke (junior) sold the Freigärtnerstelle 1 to the Kothe family in 1865. Daniel Sternitzke (junior) and his family emigrated on the 31st of July in 1865 to the U.S.A. See below: Wilhelm F. Sternitzky (1839-1924), Carl Robert Sternitzky (1844-1917), Emigration From Klein Ujeschütz, Trebnitz County, Silesia To Lyons Township, Cook County, Illinois in 1862.

Birth and Death of Daniel Sternitzki c.1792 Ujeschütz, 1811 Berlin

Daniel Sternitzki was a Grenadier in the 3rd Company of the 1st West Prussian Grenadier Battalion at Berlin. He was a Catholic and he was not married. He died at Berlin on the 11th of October in 1811, and he was buried at the garrison church cemetery on the 14th of October in 1811. His death was recorded in the garrison Protestant church record book. His death record listed his age as 19 years old, so he was born around 1792. His place of birth was listed as Ujeschütz in Silesia. The cause of death was listed as Hitzigefieber (heat fever).

Gottlieb Sternitzke (1803-1866)
Emigration From Silesia
To Proviso Township, Dupage County, Illinois around 1842

Christian Puscheck Family

The history of this Gottlieb Sternitzke family is known through their shared history with the Christian Puscheck family in Wisconsin. Christian Puscheck was born around 1800 at Kurwitz, near Luzine in Trebnitz County Silesia. His wife, Anna Rosina (née Huebsch) Puscheck was born on the 2nd of November in 1800 at Luzine. Christian, Anna and their five children emigrated to Proviso Township, Cook County, Illinois in 1839. Christian Puscheck and Gottlieb Sternitzky were charter members of the Immanuel Lutheran Church at Hillside in Proviso Township in 1858. Carl G. Puscheck (the son of Christian Puscheck) married Susanna Helene Sternitzky (the daughter of Gottlieb Sternitzky) in 1854.

Gottlieb Sternitzke (1803-1866) was born on the 21st of December in 1803, in Silesia. He was probably the son of Daniel Sternitzke (c.1755-c.1817) and Helene (née Garbsch) Sternitzke from Klein Ujeschütz. Gottlieb Sternitzke married Helene Friedrich (c.1811-1861) in Silesia. They emigrated sometime after the birth of their daughter Susanna in Silesia (in September of 1831) and before Susanna's birth on the 26th of January in 1835 at Chicago. Gottlieb and Helene had three daughters: Susanna Helene, Anna Rosanna and Christine. No sons have been identified. Gottlieb died on the 19th of August in 1866. His wife, Helene died on the 22nd of February in 1861. They were buried at Immanuel Lutheran Cemetery at Hillside, Proviso Township, Cook County in Illinois.

Birth and Family of daughter Susanna Helene Sternitzky

Susanna Helene Sternitzky was born on the 11th of September of 1831 in Silesia. Susanna died on the 8th of January in 1910 and was buried at the Immanuel Lutheran Cemetery at Hillside, Proviso Township, Cook County in Illinois.

Susanna married Carl G. Puscheck on the 2nd of May in 1854, at the Zion Lutheran Church in Bensenville, Dupage County, Illinois. Carl G. Puscheck was born on the 18th of August in 1827 at Schleingem, Prussia (probably a transcription error of Schlesinger = Silesian). Carl died on the 29th of December in 1886 at Proviso Township, Illinois. Carl Puscheck was the son of Christian Puscheck and Anna (née Huebsch) Puscheck.

Carl and Susanna had eight children. The names and years of birth for their children were: Charles (1855), Elizabeth (1858), Anna (1860), Emma (1863), Susanna (1865), Gustav (1867), Lydia (1869) and Helen (1871). Gustav Puscheck (1867-1928) married Mathilda W. Sternitzky in 1894. See the discussion and chart below.

Birth and Family of daughter Anna Rosanna Sternitzky

Anna Rosanna Sternitzky was born on the 26th of January in 1835 at Chicago. Anna died on the 20th of October in 1916. She married her brother-in-law, Friedrich Wilhelm Pusheck around 1859. Friedrich was born on the 15th of October in 1832. He was the son of Christian Pusheck and Anna (née Huebsch) Pusheck.

Friedrich Wilhelm Pusheck died on the 16th of October of 1898 in Chicago. Anna and Friedrich were buried at the Wunder Cemetery, at North Clark Street in Chicago. Their grocery store on Wells Street was destroyed by the 1871 Chicago Fire. Friedrich and Anna had four children (listed with years of birth): Charles (1859), Anna R. (1862), William Henry (1865) and Emelie (1867).

Birth and Family of daughter Christiane Sternitzky

Christiane Sternitzke was born on the 6th of August in 1840 at Chicago. Christiane Sternitzky married Johann Adolph Alexander Ullrich at Chicago, Illinois on the 23rd of November in 1862. Johann Adolph Alexander Ullrich was born on the 16th of October in 1832 at Muhlhausen, Prussia. The online birth records do not list the first names of their children, but the name of one son was identified in another source (by Ralph Pusheck) as Adolf Karl Ferdinand Ulrich, born on the 28th of March in 1865. Adolf Ulrich married Helen Emma Wilhelmine Rosina Pusheck on the 4th of August in 1895 in Immanuel Lutheran Church, at Hillside, Illinois. Helen Pusheck was born on the 14th of February in 1867, at Proviso Township. The dates of births for the other children of Johann (Alexander) and Christine Ulrich were: a son on 27 September 1872, a son on 30 March 1875, a son on 2 July 1877 and a daughter on 22 March 1882. The variations in the spelling of Christine's surname in the birth records are interesting: Stanitzka, Stonetziki, and Sterintzky. The Stanitzka variation is the female form of the Stanitzky and Stanitzke surnames found in records from Silesia and Posen.

The congregation of the Immanuel Lutheran Church was formed in 1858 at Hillside, Illinois. One of the initial members was listed as G. Sternitsky. Prior to formation of the Immanuel Lutheran Church, he was a member of the Zion Lutheran Church at Bensenville, Illinois.

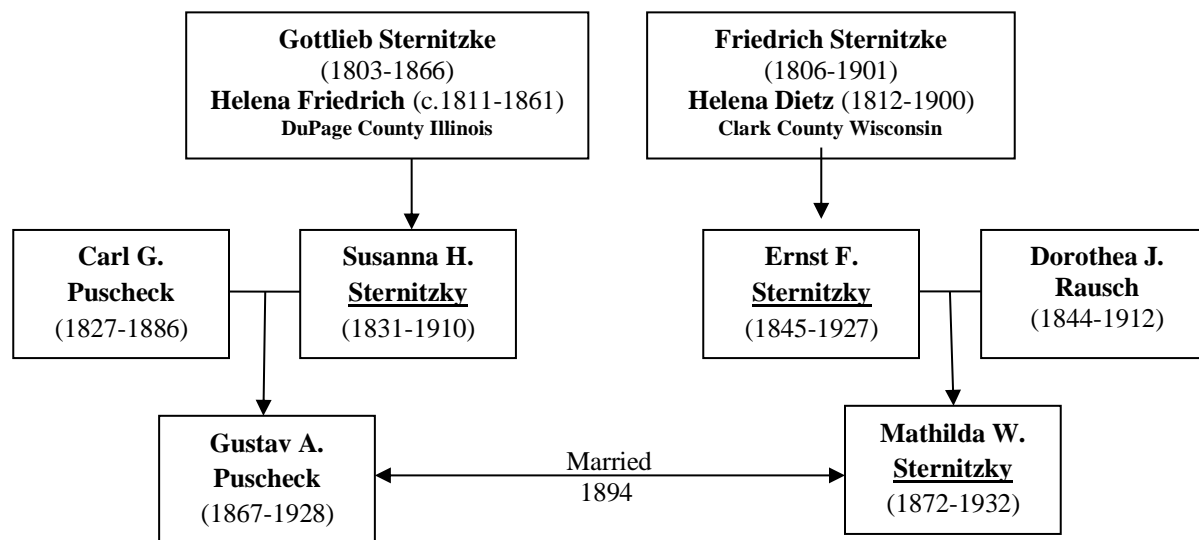

Relationship Between the Illinois and Wisconsin Sternitzke Families

The relationship between this Gottlieb Sternitzke family group and the following Friedrich Sternitzke family group of Lynn Township (Clark County, Wisconsin) was a mystery and a source of confusion (because of identical names) for many years. The original Sternitzke and the later Sternitzky surname variations were used by both family groups. Both groups had mothers named Helene Sternitzke, with daughters named Susanna Helena Sternitzke. There were also men named Gottlieb Sternitzky in both groups. The two groups were connected by marriage in 1894, as shown by the diagram below.

Members from both Sternitzke family groups believe that Gottlieb Sternitzke (1803-1866) and Friedrich Sternitzke (1806-1901) were brothers, but no documents have been found to prove or disprove that possibility. But that belief is supported by the later connection between these two family groups, with the marriage of Gustav Puscheck and Mathilda Sternitzky on the 7th of November in 1894.

Gustav Adolph Gottlieb Puscheck was born on the 15th of February in 1867. He died on the 21st of May in 1928. Matilda Wilhelmine Sternitzky was born on the 22nd of January in 1872. She died on the 12th of January in 1932. Gustav and Mathilda Puscheck were buried at the Zion Cemetery at Granton, Wisconsin.

Friedrich Karl Sternitzke (1806-1901) Emigration from Klein Ujeschütz, Trebnitz County, Silesia To Lynn Township, Clark County, Wisconsin in 1840

During the years 1835 to 1854 many old Lutheran families separated from the Prussian state church, and emigrated to Russia, Canada, Australia, and the United States of America. These families were called Separatists. Wilhelm Iwan's two volume German study titled Die altlutherische Auswanderung um die Mitte des 19. Jahrhunderts (The Old Lutheran Emigration Around the Middle of the Nineteenth Century) included a list of emigrants from villages in Trebnitz County (including Zantkau, Schlottau, Luzine, Schawoine and Klein Ujeschütz). Clifford Neal Smith translated Wilhelm Iwan's work and published it as The Nineteenth-Century Emigration of 'Old Lutherans' from Eastern Germany (Mainly Pomerania and Lower Silesia) to Australia, Canada, and the United States. Both books listed the following Sternitzke family emigrants from Trebnitz County 1840:

Helene Sternitzke, born Vietz, age 28, wife

Karl Sternitzke, age 8, son

Susanna Helene Sternitzke, age 6, daughter

Gottlieb Sternitzke, age 3, son

Wilhelm August Sternitzke, age ½, son

Smith translated Friedrich's occupation as houseowner. Wilhelm Iwan's book shows Friedrich was listed as a Häusler (a cottage owner and day-laborer). Iwan's book listed Wilhelm Sternitzke's age as 1/3, not the ½ year shown by Smith.

These family members were also identified on the passenger list of the sailing ship Washington that arrived in New York City from Hamburg on the 16th of September in 1840. From New York the family traveled to Buffalo (New York) and then to Milwaukee where they founded the Sternitzky family (my own) in Wisconsin.

The property transfers that took place for Friedrich Sternitzke in 1832 and 1840 were documented in Chapter 10: Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz of the Wilhelm Starnitzki manuscript. A following timeline of events suggests that the parents of Friedrich Sternitzke were Daniel Sternitzke (senior) and Helene (née Garbsch) Sternitzke. The records also suggest Daniel Sternitzke (junior) was Friedrich's brother.

- 11 May 1800. Daniel Sternitzke (senior) from Klein Ujeschütz bought house number 11 from David Krusche.
- 26 September 1806. Friedrich Sternitzke was born at Klein Ujeschütz.
- 30 May 1809. Daniel Sternitzke (senior) from Klein Ujeschütz bought the Freigärtnerstelle 1 from his father-in-law Daniel Garbsch. Daniel Sternitzke was married to Helene Garbsch.
- Around 1817. The father of Friedrich Sternitzke died (see the biography below). Friedrich Sternitzke was 11 years old.
- 14 September 1832. Friedrich Sternitzke purchased house number 11 in Klein Ujeschütz from the heirs of Krusche family. This was the year that Friedrich's son, Karl Sternitzke was born at Klein Ujeschütz.
- 9 October 1840. David Tischer purchased house number 11 in Klein Ujeschütz from Friedrich Sternitzke. This was the year that Friedrich Sternitzke emigrated to the United States.
- 21 December 1841. Daniel Sternitzke (junior) from Klein Ujeschütz was the owner of the Freigärtnerstelle 1. He was the son of Daniel Sternitzke (senior) who bought the property in 1809.
- 1865. Daniel Sternitzke (junior) sold the Freigärtnerstelle 1 to the Kothe family.

The following biography of Friedrich Sternitzky is from the History of Clark County (Wisconsin).

“Frederick Sternitzky, one of the pioneers of Lynn Township, now deceased, was born in Klein Ujeschuetz, Germany, Oct. 26, 1806. His father died when Frederick was 11 years old, and the latter grew up and became a laborer. About 1831 he married Helena Dietz, who was born July 13, 1813, and for some years he continued to reside in Germany, where four children were born to him; Charles, Gottlieb (or James), Susan and William. On June 24, 1840, the family left Germany for America, where they landed after a three months' passage in a sailing vessel. Mr. Sternitzky had no particular place in view when he came, merely wishing to establish a new home in a country of wider opportunities. His first location was at Buffalo, N. Y., but in the following spring he came west to Milwaukee, Wis., and there, or in that vicinity followed the occupation of laborer on farms or otherwise until 1856. While residing there his family was increased by the birth of six more children, John, Ernest, Wilhelmina, Henry, Edward and Albert, the last mentioned of whom, however, died young.

In 1856, in company with the Yankee and Kleinschmidt families, Mr. Sternitzky, with his own family, set out for Clark County, driving with a four-ox team and bringing with him two cows and a few household goods. The trip occupied three weeks and for the last three miles the party had to cut their way through the woods, arriving at last at the site of what is now Lynn Village. They located on a tract of 200 acres in Section 8, the oldest son, Charles, buying the land from the Government. Eighty acres of this tract lying in the village of Lynn became the family homestead. Here Mr. Sternitzky built a log house of two rooms, 18 by 28 feet, making his own split shingles and floors and sawing lumber with a rip saw. Their nearest neighbor was two miles away by trail, and Neillsville, Black River Falls and Sparta were their trading posts. From Neillsville supplies had to be carried on the back to the farm. There Mr. Sternitzky made his home for the rest of his life, becoming in time one of the prominent citizens of the township.

In religious faith he was a German Lutheran and services were often held in his log house. He also helped to establish the church of that denomination in Grant Township. In his early days he had served in Poland as a soldier in the Germany army, but was a quiet home-like man, of thoroughly honest character, and of great patience in times of trouble and adversity. His life was prolonged to the advanced age of 95 years, terminating Oct. 25, 1901. His wife died Feb. 20, 1900.”

The history of the Friedrich and Helena Sternitzke family was documented in two books by Lorraine Nowak and Lila Schmitz (listed below). The brief details of their lives are as follows:

- Friedrich Karl Sternitzke was born at Klein Ujeschütz on the 26th of October in 1806. He married Helene (Dietz or Vietz) on the 26th of October in 1831. He was known as Frederick Sternitzky in Wisconsin. Friedrich died on the 25th of October in 1901. Other variations of Frederick's surname found in documents include: Staneske, Starnitzki, Starntzki, Steirnetz, Steinscksky, Stemskie, Sternisky and Sternitzki.
- Helene (Dietz or Vietz) Sternitzke was born at Klein Ujeschütz on the 13th of July in 1812. She died at Lynn, Wisconsin on the 21st of February in 1900. The uncertainty in her maiden name may have been due to the similarity in the handwritten D and V in the old German handwriting. Other variations of her maiden name found in family records included: Veize, Veitz and Vitzey.

The regiment was still camped at Savannah on April 6, 1862, when the battle of Shiloh began. William was wounded at the Battle of Shilo (at Pittsburg Landing); shot through the left forearm on April 7, 1862. William was discharged, with a disability, as a Corporal on July 24, 1862, from Hamburg, Tennessee. William married Theresa Brenner at St. Louis Missouri on the 16th of March in 1863. Recollections of Gotthold Sternitzke Regarding:
The Friedrich Sternitzke and Helene (née Dietz) Sternitzke family from Klein Ujeschütz and
The Friedrich Sternitzke and his wife Marie (née Hübner) Sternitzke family from Gross Ujeschütz

In 2008, Gotthold Sternitzke (1919-2017) of Wendelstein, Germany, provided his documented lineage (the Abstammungsnachweiß für Gotthold Sternitzke in Friedrichskirch) to Wilfried Hübner. Subsequent telephone conversations and letters between Gotthold and Wilfried, and between Gotthold and Margarete (née Runge) Reiter, revealed some a very interesting family history.

Gotthold Sternitzke was born in 1919 at Friedrichskirch (Kainowe, Trebnitz County) where he lived until the Second World War. Karl Friedrich Wilhelm Starnitzki (1864-1948) was Gotthold's uncle. Their friendship began in 1928 when Wilhelm was a frequent guest at Friedrichskirch while researching the Sternitzke family history. At some point during the Second World War, Gotthold was captured by the Russians. He was released after the war and met with Wilhelm Starnitzki in 1947, when they prepared the ancestor chart for Gotthold (see Chapter 14: Friedrichskirch). Wilhelm Starnitzki died the next year (in 1948).

Gotthold Sternitzke had contact with Karl Sille, the editor of Wilhelm's manuscript. According to Gotthold, Robert Starnitzki, the son of the author Wilhelm Starnitzki, was not interested in genealogy and gave Wilhelm's source documents to Karl Sille. After editing Wilhelm's manuscript and depositing it at the Martin-Opitz-Bibliothek (a library at Herne, Germany), Karl Sille deposited the source documents at the Johann Gottfried Herder Institute at Marburg (Lahn) in 1991. I reviewed those documents at the Herder Institute in 2011.

Gotthold Sternitzke wrote a short history of the villages Gross and Klein Ujeschütz which Margarete (née Runge) Reiter published in the Kreis Trebnitzer Heimatzeitung (Trebnitz County Homeland newsletter) in 1994. Gotthold's article was based on Wilhelm Starnitzki's manuscript.

Gotthold's recollections of the history of my ancestor Friedrich Sternitzke (who emigrated from Klein Ujeschütz to the United States in 1840) are intriguing. In the telephone conversation between Gotthold and Wilfried Hübner, Gotthold recalled seeing a document - possibly the sales contract of when Friedrich Karl Sternitzke sold his house in Klein Ujeschütz to the Tischer family, before moving to the United States in 1840. In the letter from Gotthold to Wilfried Hübner, Gotthold wrote of an inquiry he had received from Denise Clark of Corvine, California, regarding the emigration of Friedrich Sternitzke and his wife Marie Hübner to the United States in 1842. The Friedrich Sternitzke who emigrated in 1840 was married to Helena Dietz. It is likely that there was a second Friedrich Sternitzke, who emigrated in 1842, but who emigrated from Gross Ujeschütz. In the telephone conversation between Gotthold and Margarete (née Runge) Reiter, Gotthold recalled that the Friedrich Sternitzke family, who emigrated from Klein Ujeschütz to the United States in 1840, were the last Sternitzke family to live at that village. But that there were nine other Sternitzke families living at Gross Ujeschütz.

In the telephone conversation between Gotthold and Margarete (née Runge) Reiter, Gotthold also recalled that Wilhelm Starnitzki had found Sternitzke family history that dated as far back as 1413! That information does not appear in Wilhelm Starnitzki's manuscript, nor was it found in Karl Sille's source documents at the Johann Gottfried Herder Institute at Marlburg. That information may have been part of the documentation that was lost in the war, as was described in Wilhelm Starnitzki's manuscript.

Daniel Sternisky 1814 Klein Ujeschütz

Daniel Sternisky from Klein Ujeschütz wrote a letter to his brother Friedrich Sternisky in 1814. Friedrich was probably serving in the Silesian contingent of the Prussian Army. He may have still been in France following the Battle of Paris in March of 1814. In this 1814 letter, Daniel mentions their father was still alive. Daniel's letter was published in the Schlesische Provinzialblätter as the "Beitrag zur Charakteristik des Schlesischen Landmanns" (Concerning the Characteristic of the Silesian Countryman).

This Daniel Sternisky could not have been the Freigärtner Daniel Sternitzke (c.1755-c.1817) because his father Johannes Sternitzke (c.1725-1779, SN287) died in 1779 according to the table in Chapter 5: Directory of all Village Magistrates (or Mayors) and Members of the Courts from the House of Sternitzke. I have not identified who this Daniel Sterniske was.

The translation below was made by Julian Sternitzke on the 12th of April in 2017.

Concerning the Characteristic of the Silesian Countryman

The postal service at Trebnitz received the following folded letter (without an envelope) to dispatch during the course of August of 1814.

My dear brother!

It has been 8 days, since we received your letter and it was about time that we had a word from you. Our father, who is still sick since Christmas was already heartbroken and I was plagued by all kinds of dark thoughts and had to believe that something unpleasant happened to you. I think you can imagine the joy when your letter arrived. "Thank God!" father said, "He is still alive and my many prayers were not all for naught!"

We read the letter and many tears ran down our cheeks, tears of joy and tears of gratitude to our good, almighty, protective heavenly father. All that makes our situation so grim was forgotten, for our FRIEDRICH was still there, our hope and our solace for the upcoming years of age and weakness. Alas, my dear brother! God did help you until this point, be assured, he will help you further. I and our father lie on our knees to summon God's blessing for you; and we know that our God is merciful and won't let our biddings go unnoticed. You should pray most diligent too and stay on Gods path. Remember what I told you when we bid our farewells and the sacred promise you made under tears. Yes, my brother! Stay devout and be just, so you will be blessed. If someone is trying to seduce you and wicked lust and desire stirs in you, think of your poor parents and think of how they raised you from earliest youth to be a pious servant of God, so that one day, they would have the pleasure to see you walk staunchly on Gods path and on Judgment Day to the right of the throne of God. O my dear brother! You have been a faithful brother and your parents delight in you! Do not dash our hopes in you; your fathers pleading and your brothers tears hopefully triumph over the temptations and mockery of corrupt, wicked people.

You will easily believe me, that you are always on my mind and in my thoughts I'm always with you and accompany you wherever you go and this is the most precious joy for my heart, if I spot you praying to your God or in the company of your brave comrades, without a lewd joke, a bad word, a curse or blasphemy from your lips and finally, when you're safe and sound in your quarters, courteous and benign to your host. -- Look my dear brother! These thoughts are quite often on my mind and when they are, they fill me with some sort of pride to be your brother and to know about your upbringing. Alas, my dear brother! I hope to not have to be ashamed of you when we may stand before our heavenly judge. Of course, your current status exposes you to great temptations; but that just gives you more opportunities to show your Christianity and to plant seeds that will bear delightful fruit in eternity. Think of how you can affect your comrades through sheer kindness of speech and your good Christian example. How often will you have the opportunity to earn Gods favor by having patience while under the strain of your profession, through hospitable deeds for those in need, by Christian abstinence from illicit profits and by other virtues? If you take these opportunities and if you come home in peace one day I might see, if I am still alive, how far you progressed in your true Christianity! Now then my brother! Let your current profession be a school to you to practice true Christianity. Make sure that you gather as much goodness as possible and bring it back home with you. And now receive my brotherly blessing and the added blessing of your father again, may the Lord always be with you, may he keep your body and soul healthy and finally take you back to your father's homestead to our pleasure. Wishing and begging for that from God on every single day

Your faithful father, brother and sister.

Friedrich Sternitzki
c.1818 Ujeschütz to 1863 Ujeschütz, 1863 Illinois

The Segelschiff (sailing ship) Keppler left Hamburg, Germany, on the 1st of May in 1863. According to the Castle Garden immigration records, the ship arrived in New York City on the 20th of June in 1863. Several residents of Ujeschütz emigrated on that ship.

The Castle Garden record shows the 45 years old Landmann (farmer) Friedrich Sternitzki from Ujeschütz and his family were destined for Chicago, Illinois. Friedrich Sternitzki was born at Ujeschütz around 1818. He was traveling with members of his family: his wife Maria Sternitzki (age 46, born c.1817), their sons Christian (age 26, born c.1837) and Carl (age 24, born c.1839), and their daughters Susanna (age 17, born c.1846), Caroline (age 12, born c.1851) and Anna (age 10, born c.1853). They were traveling with other passengers from Ujeschütz: the 24 years old Johanna Klein, the 42 years old Gottlieb Knuhr, his wife Helene Knuhr (age 41), their son Gottlieb (age 16), their son David (age 13) and their daughter Elisabeth (age 9).

Elisabeth Sternitzke (age 23) was also a passenger on that voyage. She was also born at Ujeschütz. But she was not listed as travelling with the Friedrich Sternitzki family. See the Birth, Emigration and Family of Elisabeth Sternitzke (1840-1881), 1840 to 1863 Ujeschütz, 1881 Iowa.

Marriage, Family and Death of daughter
Caroline Sternitzke (1851-1922)

Carrie Starnitzky married Hermann Elling at Chicago on the 1st of January in 1879. Hermann Elling was born in Germany in 1848. The bride was 27 years old (born c.1852). The groom was 30 years old (born c. 1849). They had three known children: Helene Elling (1879-1880), Robert H. Elling (1881-1973) and George Elling (1883-unknown). The birth record for George Elling (dated the 26th of November in 1883 at Chicago) listed his surname as Eling. His parents were listed as Herman Eling and Carolina (née Sternezke) Eling on his birth record.

According to her burial record Caroline (née Sternitzke) Elling, she was born in Germany on the 8th of July in 1851. She died in Chicago on the 26th of September in 1922. She was buried with her husband and two children at the Concordia Cemetery, in Forest Park, Cook County, Illinois. The tombstone for Hermann Elling shows he was born in 1848 and died in 1943.

Family of David Krause and Elisabeth (née Sternitzke) Krause c.1829 Gross Ujeschütz to 1896 Berlin

The history of the Freibauer (free farmer) David Krause and Elisabeth (née Sternitzke) Krause is only known from the 1862 marriage record and the 1896 death record of their son Carl Gottlieb Krause (c.1830-1896).

In 1862, the 32 years old Arbeiter (laborer) Carl Gottlieb Krause was living at Lange Straße 46 in Berlin, in 1862. He married Marie Luise Broecker on the 9th of June in 1862 at the Protestant church in Berlin. His marriage record shows he was the son of the Freibauer Auszügler (free farmer pensioner) David Krause who was living at Ujeschütz. Based on his age, Gottlieb was born around 1830. Marie Luise Broecker was the 34 years old daughter of the Schneidermeister (master tailor) Carl Gottlob Broecker.

The 65 years old Gasarbeiter (gas worker) Carl Gottlieb Krause died at his home at Baerwaldstraße 53 in Berlin on the 3rd of April in 1896. Based on his age he was either born in 1831, or was just short of his 66th birthday which would make 1830 his calculated year of birth. He was a Protestant. His death was reported by his wife Marie Luise (née Broecker) Krause, who signed the death record. The death record shows Gottlieb was born at Groß Ujeschütz in Trebnitz County. His parents, the Freibauer (free farmer) David Krause and Elisabeth (née Sternitzke) Krause had previously died at Groß Ujeschütz.

Based on the information from those records, David Krause probably married Elisabeth Sternitzke around 1829, or earlier. They were pensioners (retired farmers) and living at Groß Ujeschütz in 1862, so they were probably born before or around 1800. They died at Groß Ujeschütz before the 3rd of April in 1896.

Johan Gottlieb Sternitzke was born on the 24th of August in 1830 and he died on the 21st of May 1912. The property transfers for Freigärtnerstelle number 4 in Klein Ujeschütz show a Gottlieb Sternitzke was the son of Johann Sternitzke (c.1790-c.1855). The history of property transfers of Freigärtnerstelle number 4, with the dates of those property transfers is as follows:

Georg Tschernißke (4 September 1724) → Hans Prowatzke (10 November 1736) → Andreas Wuttke (18 December 1748) → Christoph Nadlitzke (5 January 1761) → Thomas Sternitzke (28 January 1769) → Georg Sternitzke (26 October 1791) → Johann Sternitzke (28 August 1829) → Gottlieb Sternitzke (28 April 1855) → Labitzke Family (18 October 1870)

Freigärtnerstelle number 4 (in Klein Ujeschütz) was owned by the Labitzke family on the 18th of October in 1870. It is not known if that was when the sale of the property occurred or if that was the date the sale was finalized. This is important because that date was three years after the Johan Gottlieb Sternitzke family emigrated to the United States.

The Hamburg passenger list that recorded the emigration of Johan Gottlieb Sternitzke listed two other pieces of information that suggest he may not have been the Gottlieb Sternitzke listed in the 1855 and the 1870 property transfers of Freigärtnerstelle number 4 (in Klein Ujeschütz). His Geburts- und Wohnort (place of birth and residence) was listed on the passenger list as Groß Ujeschütz, not Klein Ujeschütz. His occupation was listed as Arbeiter (laborer) not Freigärtner. It leads me believe Johan Gottlieb Sternitzke was a not the eldest son of a Sternitzke who lived at Groß Ujeschütz in 1830. Being a junior son, he was not in line to inherit the family property, so he emigrated to the United States. Johan Gottlieb Sternitzke may have been a son of Friedrich Sternitzke and Susanna (née Tiesler) Sternitzke from Groß Ujeschütz.

Very little is known about that branch of the Sternitzke family. See Book III: Chapter 2, the Family of Friedrich Neumann and Christiane (née Sternitzke) Neumann, 1841 to 1852 Jeschütz, 1861 Zirkwitz.

The Segelschiff (sailing ship) Eugenie left Hamburg, Germany, on the 16th of September in 1867. It arrived at New York around the middle of December of that year. Five members of the Sternitzke family were passenger numbers 20 to 24 on that voyage:

- Gottlieb Sternitzke, Arbeiter, age 37, born around 1830,
- Anna Sternitzke, Frau, age 36, born around 1831,
- Gottlieb Sternitzke, Sohn, age 14, born around 1853,
- Wilhelm Sternitzke, Sohn, age 9, born around 1858 and
- David Sternitzke, Sohn, age 7, born around 1860.

Johan Gottlieb Sternitzke married Anna Rosine Becker around 1852. Their first three children were born at Gross Ujeschütz. Their first daughter was born in 1870 at Chicago, Illinois. The family moved to Iowa later that year. Their second daughter was born in 1872 at Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Tombstone information provided the following birth and death dates. Johan Gottlieb Sternitzke died on the 25th of May in 1912. He was buried next to his wife at the North Lawn Cemetery in Fort Dodge, Iowa. Anna Rosine Becker was born on the 13th of June in 1831. She died on the 12th of September in 1907.

Birth of son Gottlieb Sternitzke (junior), c.1853

According to the 1867 passenger list, Gottlieb Sternitzke (junior) was 14 years old when the ship left Hamburg on the 16th of September in 1867. So, he was born at Groß Ujeschütz around 1853. He was not listed as living with his family on the 1880 census of Fort Dodge, Iowa. No tombstone or death record has not been found for Gottlieb Sternitzke (junior). He may have remained in Illinois when the family moved to Iowa in 1870.

Birth, Marriage, Family and Death of son William Sternitzke (1856-1942)

According to the 1867 passenger list, Wilhelm Sternitzke was 9 years old when the ship left Hamburg on the 16th of September in 1867. So, he was born at Groß Ujeschütz around 1858. His tombstone shows he was born in 1856 and he died in 1942.

Wilhelm Sternitzke was born on the 19th of November in 1856 at Groß Ujeschütz. He married Ernestine Cristine Yeager (1859-1943) on the 4th of June in 1885 at the St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church in Webster, Iowa. She was 27 years old and was born in Thuringia, Germany around 1858. She was the daughter of Johan Yaeger and Eleanor (née Weiss) Yaeger. The wedding witnesses were Ernst Weiss and Emilie Sternitzke who were married four years later. William's occupation was listed as a teamster.

William and Ernestine Sternitzke had five children who were all born at Fort Dodge, Webster County, Iowa.

- William D. Sternitzke (1886-1945) married Mary Hepperle (1896-1962) in 1930. They were buried at the North Lawn Cemetery in Fort Dodge, Iowa.
- Clara Sternitzke (c.1889-after 1910) was listed on the 1910 census of Fort Dodge as the 21 years old daughter of William and Ernestine Sternitzke.

- Albert A. Sternitzke (1892-1966) was buried at the North Lawn Cemetery in Fort Dodge, Iowa.
- Oscar Franz Sternitzke (1893-1983) married Mabel Viola Johnson (1895-1961) on the 19th of September in 1917 at Fort Dodge. They were members of the Grace Lutheran Church at Fort Dodge. They had four children.

William Sternitzke died on the 8th of May in 1942. Ernestine Cristine (née Yeager) Sternitzke (1859-1943) died in 1943. They were buried at the North Lawn Cemetery in Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Birth, Marriage, Family and Death of son
David C. Sternitzke (1860-1940)

David C. Sternitzke was born on the 8th of March in 1860 at Groß Ujeschütz. David married Katherine Kehn (1865-1938) at the St. Paul's German Evangelical Church in Webster County, Iowa, on the 26th of April in 1885. David was a farmer from Fort Dodge. Katharine was 20 years old. She was born at Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany. She was the daughter of Jacob Kehn and Katharine (née) Gunther. The wedding witnesses were Will Sternitzke and Will Kehn. David and Katherine Sternitzke had two sons.

- Henry D. Sternitzke (1889-1958) was buried at the North Lawn Cemetery in Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Emilie Elizabeth Johanna Sternitzke was born on the 30th of January in 1870 at Chicago, Illinois. Her father sold their property on the 18th of October in 1870 and the family moved to Iowa. Her first name was listed as Emilie on the 1880 census and on her tombstone. It was listed as Amelia other records.

Amelia Sternitzke married Herman Wille on the 12th of October in 1889 in Webster County, Iowa. The 1897 and 1901 birth records for their daughters Anna E. Willey and Emilie W. Willey listed their parents as Amelia (née Sternitzke) Willey and Herman Willey.

The death record for Amelia (née Sternitzke) Willey shows she was born on the 30th of January in 1870 at Chicago, Illinois. Her parents were listed as Gottlieb Sternitzke and Anna Becker. The widow Amelia (née Sternitzke) Willey died at Fort Dodge, Webster County, Iowa on the 8th of September in 1950. Her death record shows she lived at Fort Dodge for 80 years, which is consistent with the family's move from Illinois to Fort Dodge in 1870. Amelia was buried next to her husband Herman Willey (1863-1941) at the North Lawn Cemetery in Fort Dodge. Wilhelm F. Sternitzky (1839-1924) Carl Robert Sternitzky (1844-1917) Emigration From Klein Ujeschütz, Trebnitz County, Silesia To Lyons Township, Cook County, Illinois in 1862

The Bark Coriolan arrived in New York from Bremen, Germany, on the 26th of June in 1862. Among the 169 passengers were William Sternitzky and Carl Robert Sternitzky. William Sternitzky was a 22 years old farmer. Carl Robert Sternitzky was a 17-year-old farmer. Their relationship has not been identified, but they were probably brothers.

Wilhelm F. Sternitzky (1839-1924)

William F. Sternitzky was born in Klein Ujeschütz on the 8th of July in 1839, the son of Daniel Sternitzke (1812-1893) and Helen (née Kitchke) Sternitzke (1814-1881).

William F. Sternitzky arrived in New York just short of his 23rd birthday in 1862. He married Maria M. Harders on the 9th of November in 1869 at Lyonsville, Illinois. Their marriage record at the Trinity Lutheran Church at Burr Ridge (Illinois) listed William's place of birth as Klein Ujeschütz (Trebantz County, Prussia), and Gut Harezau (Holstein) as the place of birth for Maria. Gut Harezau may have been Haselau in Holstein. Maria was born on the 30th of September in 1845.

Emigration of the Daniel Sternitzky family, 1865

Daniel Sternitzke (junior, 1812-1893) and Helene (née Kitchke) Sternitzke (1814-1881) probably were the Daniel and Helene Sternitzke (ages 53 and 51) who emigrated from Germany in 1865, on the ship named New York. The ages of Daniel in 1865 and 1893 correspond with an 1812 year of birth. They emigrated from Bremen to New York with: Caroline (age 14, born c.1851), Christoph (age 10, born c.1855), Helene (age 16, born c.1849), Robert (a farmer age 20, born c.1845) and Wilhelm (a miller age 30, born c.1835). They arrived at the port of New York on the 31st of July in 1865. The transcription of the passenger list (presented at the Castle Garden website) conflicts with this theory. It listed this family as Bohemians from Austria. But the original ship arrival list shows the family emigrated from Germany. The marriage record for Carl Robert Sternitzky (see below) listed his place of birth as Klein Ujeschütz in Trebantz County.

Daniel Sternitzke [Sternitzke] died in Cook County Illinois on the 18th of September of 1893 at the age of 81 years and 7 months. Daniel was a farmer who had been born in Germany. He was buried at Willow Springs, Illinois. Based on his age when he died, he was born around the 18th of February in 1812. Daniel Sternitzke (1812-1893) and his wife and Helen (née Kitchke) Sternitzky (1814-1881) share a common tombstone in the Trinity Lutheran Cemetery in Cook County Illinois.

Marriage, Family and Death of Helena S. Sternitzke / Sternitzky / Sternitzki (1848-1812)

Helen Sternitzky married William F. Wagner in Cook County, Illinois on the 30th of June in 1872. They had three known children: Charles L. Wagner (1873-1939), Leon Wagner (1880-1881) and Leona H. Wagner (1885-1933). The 9th of June in 1873 birth record for Charles L. Wagner listed his parents as Helena (née Sternitzke) Wagner and William Wagner. The 1939 obituary for Major Charles L. Wagner listed his parents as Helen (née Sternitzki) Wagner and William Wagner.

The website for the tombstone of Helen S. (née Sternitzke) Wagner shows she was born in Germany on the 28th of January in 1848. She died at Chicago on the 26th of October in 1912. The website for the tombstone for William Friederich Wagner shows he was born in Wisconsin on the 24th of June in 1849. He died at Chicago on the 3rd of February in 1901. Helen, William and their three children were buried at the Concordia Cemetery at Forest Park, Cook County, Illinois. The photographs of Helen and William are from the Find a Grave webpages.

The record from the Evangelical Lutheran Cemetery listed his name as William Leaduck Sternitzky. Leaduck may have been a transcription error of the name Frederick. It also listed his birthplace as Breslau, Germany. It listed his parents' names as Daniel Sternitzky and Helen (née Kitchke) Sternitzky.

Carl Robert Sternitzky / Sternitzke (1844-1917)

Carl Robert Sternitzky was born on the 6th of September in 1844 in Klein Ujeschütz. He arrived in New York just short of his 17th birthday in 1862. He married Elsabe Harders (a sister of Maria M. Harders) on the 3rd of November in 1871. The marriage record listed Carl as Charles Robert Sternitzky.

Their marriage record at the Trinity Lutheran Church at Burr Ridge (Illinois) listed their places of birth as Klein Ujeschütz (Trebnitz County, Prussia) for Robert, and Gut Harezau (Holstein) for Elsabe. Elsabe (a form of Elisabeth) was born on the 10th of November in 1851.

Like William and Maria (above), Carl Robert and Elsabe also had a son named Herman. Herman's death record listed him as Herman William Sternitzke, who was born on the 17th of June in 1877 at Lyons Township, Illinois. His parents were listed as Robert and Elsabe (née Harders) Sternitzke. This Herman was also married to a woman named Martha. Herman died at age 64, on the 13th of July 1941 and was buried on the 16th of July in 1941 at Trinity Lutheran Cemetery, Lyons Township, Cook County, Illinois.

Marriage of Wally Sternitzke and Wilhelm Strauss September 1933 Groß Ujeschütz, Groß-Hammer and City of Breslau

One of the marriage record books for the St. Maria Magdalena Protestant Church in Breslau has a record dated the 28th of September in 1933. It shows that Wally Sternitzke (from Groß Ujeschütz) married the Kaufmann (merchant) Wilhelm Strauss. The church record (number 160 dated the 28th of September in 1933) is in chronological order with the other marriage records on that page. The bride and the groom were both Protestant. Their marriage was recorded at the Standesamt in Kainowe on the 28th of September in 1933 (civil record number 13). The newlyweds were residents of Groß Ujeschütz in Trebnitz County. The Breslau church record shows that the source of the data was the Protestant church at Groß-Hammer in Trebnitz County.

There were several men named Wilhelm Strauß listed in the 1931, 1934 and 1935 Breslau address books, but none of them were identified as being a Kaufmann. Perhaps the groom Wilhelm Strauß was related to one of them and was a member of the St. Maria Magdalena Protestant Church.

The 1937/38 address book for Trebnitz County listed a Bauer (farmer) named Otto Strauß who lived at Groß Ujeschütz. That book also listed the Kaufmann Heinz Strauß and the Kaufmannwitwe (widow of a merchant) Minna Strauß as residents in the city of Trebnitz.

Luzine

Near the eastern boundary of Trebnitz County is the village Luzine. In the 16th Century it was known as Luczina. In the 13th Century it belonged to the lord of the Schawoine village, who received the property as a gift in 1242, from the Duchess Hedwig of the Trebnitz cloister.

The Scholz of Luzine in the year 1297 was identified as Sieboth (“Sieboth, Schultiß von Leutzen”) as shown on page 140 of Wilhelm Haeusler’s Urkundensammlung zur Geschichte des Fürstentums Öls. The property of the Scholz was listed as three Hufen.

Notes by JWS:

Luzine was sometimes written as Lutzine. The full citation for the work referenced by Wilhelm Starnitzki: Haeusler, Wilhelm. Urkundensammlung zur Geschichte des Fürstentums Öls. Breslau: Josef Max & Comp., 1883.

Three Hufen would be equal to about 50 acres in size, three times the normal full-sized farm property.

Wilhelm Hausler’s History of the Principality of Öls identified the mayor of Zantkau in 1297 as Syboto, who became a Hofrichter (captain of the ducal royal court) in 1317. Other early mayors of Luzine included: Peter (1341), Nikolaus son of Mirko from Bukowine (1368 and 1369) and Nikolaus Mircowitz (1409 and 1410).

Haeusler, Wilhelm. Geschichte des Fürstentums Öls bis zum Aussterben der Piastischen Herzoglinie. Breslau: Josef Max & Comp., 1883. Page 377.

In 1559, the Erbscholz [hereditary mayor] of Luzine Thomas CzerniBky [Czerniszky] was mentioned as the owner of the property belonging to that office. He sold this property to his son-in-law, Christoph Kulhasse, at the price of 1000 schwere Marks, on the Wednesday after Quasimodogeniti in 1559. In the year 1559, Quasimodogeniti (the Sunday after Easter) fell on 2 April. The day of the sale, on the following Wednesday, was therefore the 5th April.

The price of goods increased in the 16th Century. Around the middle of that century, the average price of one Hufe was 200 Marks. The selling price in the year 1559 covered more than just the cost of the three Hufen of land. In the second half of the 16th Century the schwere Mark (which was comparable to the Polish schwer) was worth 48 Groschens, with one Groschen equal to 12 Hellers.

In 1572, Christoph Kulhasse (the son-in-law of Thomas CzerniBky) was listed as the Scholz of Luzine. There is evidence that our family continued to live in Luzine. In the year 1608, a farmer named Fabian Zernitschky was documented as being liable for military service as an individual who should make himself available with rifle and sidearm in the event of war.

The Erbscholz Thomas CzerniBky mentioned above might have been born around 1500, and is therefore perhaps one of the earliest members of our family mentioned in the county our family came from.

Notes by JWS:

Wilhelm Starnitzki assigned Thomas Czerniŝky with the Stammliste Nummer 410. See Chapter 5: Directory of all Village Magistrates or Mayors and Members of the Courts from the House of Sternitzke.

A Gerichtsscholz (court appointed mayor) was appointed in Luzine in 1369. Wewersko Mellik was the Luzine Scholz in 1409. Dr. Goldman's book recorded a Thomas Tschicnintzky as the Scholz and official of the local court in 1541 for the community of Luczina (Luzine, Trebnitz County). On the 6th of April in 1541, Abbess Barbara confirmed Thomas as the holder of the hereditary office of Erbscholz and granted him two mills and an inn, of which he was obliged to pay interest to the Trebnitz monastery. The modern review of Trebnitz monastery documents by the Polish historian Professor Doctor Kazimierz Bobowski identified Thomas Tschirnitzky as the mayor of Luzine who was confirmed by the Abbess Barbara. In 1568, Christopher Kuhlhaus was the Scholz of Luzine. On the 12th of September in 1582, Michael Kügler purchased a mill from the Scholz Christoph Kuhlhasen.

The surname of Thomas was recorded as Tschirminsky in a 2002 magazine (Kreis-Trebnitzer Heimatzeitung) as transcribed by Gerd Mullenheim. The 2002 publication was probably based on the 1910 book written by Theodor Ratsch.

Thomas Tschirnitzky (the Erbscholz of Luzine) may have been the brother of George Tschirnitzke (the Erbscholz of Zantkau). No sons have been identified for Thomas Tschirnitzky. His hereditary office of Erbscholz of Luzine passed to his son in law.

Fabian Zernitschky may have been a son of Paul Zernizky (c.1547-c.1615) the Erbscholz of nearby Zantkau. Paul was the son of George Tschirnitzke. Zantkau is one mile northeast of Luzine. Paul's name was recorded as Zirnisso in a 1594 military muster, as Zirniszky in a 1605 land purchase agreement and Zernizky in the same 1608 military muster that also listed Fabian Zernitschky.

The Church at Luzine 1283 to Present

An article written by Pastor Peter Merx regarding Luzine discussed the history of the history of the church at Luzine. He focused on the history of the Altlutherisch (Old Lutheran) part of the history of the church. The church at Luzine was first mentioned in a record from 1283. The congregation joined the Protestant Reformation in 1538. The church was returned to the Catholics from 1671 to 1708. The parish of the church at Luzine included the villages: Mankewitz, Probotschütz, Lückerwitz, Zantkau, Blücherwald and of course Luzine. The village of Luzine was owned by Gebhard Leberecht von Blücher (Prince von Wahlstatt) in 1814. Johann Gottlob Heinrich Schwengber (1765-1847) was the pastor in 1821. He introduced the new Prussian revisions to the liturgy in 1830. The congregation became divided with the Old Lutherans holding services in private houses and large barns. The Old Lutherans were persecuted by the civil authorities until 1840. They were then allowed to build a separate church and school in 1846.

The 1840 book by Lowenberg discussed fines, taxes and confiscation of private properties inflicted on the Old Lutherans in Prussia between 1830 and 1840. Leaders of the Old Lutheran congregations in Silesia were fined and imprisoned. The villages Ujeschütz and Luzine were mentioned in that book as locations where the oppression occurred. This religious oppression resulted in emigration of many Old Lutherans (including members of the Sternitzke family) to the United States.

The 1792 book by Leonhardi listed an Evangelical church and school at Lucine (Luzine). He listed 368 Protestant residents of the village in that year. There were 23 Bauern (farmers), 16 Gärtnern, 10 Häuslern, 2 Wassermühlen (watermills), 1 Försterei (forester office). He listed the Catholic Stift (foundation) at Trebnitz as the landlord of the village.

The church at Luzine is now named the Kościół Rzymskokatolicki pw. Najświętszego Serca Jezusa (Roman Catholic Church of Sacred Heart of Jesus).

Family of Johann Schreiber 1844 to 1859 Luzine

My personal connection to Luzine is through one of my great-great grandmothers, Johanna Dorothea Schreiber who was born at Luzine on the 6th of December in 1844. Her parents were Johann and Marie Schreiber. They emigrated to Wisconsin in 1859. On the 15th of April in 1863, Johanna Dorothea Schreiber married Johann Garbisch.

Georg Garbisch was born on the 29th of September in 1798. He married Marie Elizabeth Riedel in Silesia. Their son, Johann Garbisch was born on the 18th of May in 1836 in Silesia. The Georg and Marie Garbisch family, and the Friedrich and Helene Sternitzke family emigrated from Klein Ujeschütz to Wisconsin in 1840. Their emigration was documented in a 1943 book by Wilhelm Iwan. See Friedrich Karl Sternitzke (1806-1901) Emigration from Klein Ujeschütz, Trebnitz County, Silesia to Lynn Township, Clark County, Wisconsin in 1840.

My great-grandmother was Louise Ernestine Garbisch. She was the daughter of Johann Garbisch and Johanna (née Schreiber) Garbisch. Louise was born on the 7th of May in 1864 at Lynn Wisconsin. Louise Garbisch married my great-grandfather Albert Karl Sternitzky on the 27th of May in 1885 at Granton, Wisconsin. Albert Karl Sternitzky was born on the 10th of March in 1862 at Lynn, Wisconsin. He was the son of Karl Friedrich Sternitzky, and the grandson of Friedrich Sternitzke and Helena (née (Dietz) Sternitzke). Albert Sternitzky died on the 21st of September in 1931 at Granton, Wisconsin. Louise (née Garbisch) Sternitzky died on the 12th of January in 1921 at Granton, Wisconsin.

Pirschen

From the eastern border of Silesia to the Oder River, north from Breslau, a graceful hill country (the Katzenbirge) extends in a semi-circle opened to the north. A large number of prehistoric artifacts indicate that this region was settled very early. The region of the Trebnitzer hills is the most fruitful part of the Oder River's right bank. Here there are extensive, mighty woodlands of oak and beech along with large pine and spruce forests. The soil exhibits ferrous sources and moorlands. All of these natural advantages of this region were made usable for the recovery of illnesses in the last century.

An active bath business developed in the attractive village Skarsine, in Trebnitz County, in the first half of the 19th century; the county seat (Trebnitz) also developed into a proper health and bathing resort. The mud baths of Trebnitz still enjoy today a particularly good reputation and the spruce baths and pine needle baths there have given thousands of people improvement and relief from their suffering.

While the baths at Trebnitz with its modern facilities were until the most recent time a popular health spa for bathers and summer guests, the bath business at Skarsine already had ceased over half a century ago. The public baths are gone, but the idyllic nature of the place still make it a popular summer- and holidays place to stay for large and small city dwellers seeking recovery.

About 3 kilometers from Skarsine, in the midst of expanded fruit orchards framed by venerable several-hundred-year oak trees, is the village Pirschen. Particularly in the spring, when nature is resplendent in the dress of blooming flowers, the place is an attractive site dipped into a sea of flowers.

Notes by JWS:

Skarsine was renamed as Sauerbrunn in 1936. It had a population of 307 in 1939. It is now named Skarszyn.

Pirschen is now called Piersno. It is located southeast of the city Trzebnica (formerly Trebnitz). In 1939, Pirschen had a population of 139. See the Personal Data Table for Gross Hammer (Polnisch Hammer) for the summary of the Sternitzke family members that lived at Pirschen.

Pirschen is loosely linked with the history of our family. Here lived and worked for twenty years an ancestor of our line, Gottlieb Sternüske (1807-1848), my grandfather. A native from Polnisch Hammer, as the second son of the Freigärtner Johann Sternüske (1775- 1843), Gottlieb had to look for an occupation outside of his family circle. His older brother Christian Gottlieb Sterniske (c.1800-after 1856), being the family successor, was due to inherit the paternal Freigärtner property (see the chapter regarding Polnisch Hammer).

Notes by JWS:

Gottlieb Sternüske was born at Polnisch Hammer on the 24th of July in 1807. He was baptized Protestant on the 26th of July in 1807. Gottlieb married Johanna Elisabeth Titze on the 20th of November in 1832.

Gottlieb died on the 29th of May in 1848 at Neudorf. He was buried on the 1st of June in 1848 at Juliusburg in Oels County.

Johanna was the daughter of Johann Christoph Titze (1780-1846) and Anna Rosina née Gammert (1787-1819). Johanna was born on the 7th of March in 1813 at Pirschen, was baptized Protestant on the 11th of March 1813 at Pirschen and died on the 16th of April in 1882 at Bohrau.

Gottlieb learned the miller's trade, probably from the owner of the windmill Karl Titze, who had also owned the watermill in Pirschen since 1819. After he completed his training Gottlieb probably remained as an employee in the enterprise of his trainer.

1936 Map of Pirschen and Blüchertal (Schawoine). They are now named Piersno and Zawonia.

Gottlieb Sternüske died in the year 1848. I did not know him and therefore I must confess that my description of his early years is based on justified assumptions, based partly on what I learned from family oral history, and from what I learned by inspection of the old land register documents concerning his ownership history in Polnisch Hammer.

I learned from the land register documents of a public auction of the watermill in Pirschen to the highest bidder in the year 1826. The auction was due to an inheritance argument. It resulted in the mill property to be owned by the Gerichtsscholz (court appointed mayor) of Pirschen at that time, Johann Christoph Titze, my great-grandfather.

In the year 1832, Gottlieb Sternüske married the daughter of the owner of the mill, Johanna Elizabeth Titze. At that time Johanna was 19 years old, and Gottlieb 25 years old.

Current map showing Trebnitz, Skarsine, Pirschen and Pollentschine (now named Trzebnica, Skarszyn, Piersno and Bolescin).

Gottlieb Sternüske took over the mill in Pirschen by way of a lease. In 1842, according to the land register documents, he purchased the mill for a sum of 800 Thalers, where 650 Thalers had to be used to pay a portion of earlier debts on the mill, and interest was to be paid on the remainder of the debt until they were paid in full. The remainder of the purchase money (150 Thalers) was paid to the seller Titze, who had to pay a 4 % sales tax.

Notes by JWS:

Wilhelm Theodor Starnitzkÿ was born in 1841. He was the son the Müllermeister Gottlieb Starnitzkÿ. His father died at Neudorf near Juliusburg in Öls County. See the note below regarding the death of Gottlieb Sternitzke at Neudorf. Also, see Book III: Chapter 1, the Marriage and Family of the Schneidermeister Wilhelm Theodor Starnitzkÿ, 1867 to 1914 City of Breslau.

The watermill property included a house and a garden of about 50 acres, as well as a field of 1 hectare and 16 acres. According to the Katasterkontrolleure (tax registry) of Trebnitz in December of 1878, the total area of the mill property (yard, garden and field) totaled 2 hectares, 6 acres and 80 square meters. According to the land register records “the miller had the right to demand one large barrel of beer that was brewed from the malt grain ground at the mill”. For the maintenance of the mill pond and for the building of the wood gutter to control the run-off of surplus pond water, he received the necessary wood and the necessary people from the lord’s domain. The lawn and the fruit from the trees on the pond dam belonged to him, as well as the living wood between his garden and the border with Pollentschine, together with the alder trees in the garden up to the foot bridges.

Note by JWS:

Pollentschine, also known as Eichendorf, was a small village south of Pirschen. It had 243 inhabitants in 1939. It is now named Bolescin.

The 1838 partitioning of the lands owned by the nobility granted without remuneration the herding and grassland rights, and a 110 square-Ruten portion of the land owned by the nobility to the mill owner. But, the lord of the domain demanded extensive payments from the owner of the mill for a portion of the profits from planting on that land. These payments, not only by the miller but also by the local farmers, which had been common for centuries, were justified by the legal practices at that time.

Patrimonial jurisdiction of noble lord over his subjects within the borders of his property still existed at that time, until it was waived in 1843. A certain annoying restraint and prepossession of the subjects in relation to the court and the noble land owners always existed from those conditions. But it was not only this relationship that justified payments to the noble owner of the estate. Those payments, the so-called perpetual charges, were obligations of hereditary or property subservience, resulting from the Fürstentagbeschlüsse (Prince’s Day Resolutions) and the Gesindeordnung (Subject Orders) of 1565. Those conditions that were the foundation for and were confirmed by the Öls State Orders of 1583, 1610 and 1617.

Notes by JWS:

The Principality of Öls dates back to the 14th century. Later it became Kreis Öls, the county just east of Trebnitz County. The city of Öls is about 15 miles southeast of the city Trebnitz.

Gustav Freytag wrote: The farmer stood under the curse of bondage. The strength of the rural man was drained in all directions. He had to provide services (manual and animal powered work) to the landowner. Property transfers due to death or sale required payment of the hated Laudemium amounting to one tenth part of the purchase price. He stood with his family under personal service obligation. Liberty could only be bought by payment to the nobility. The personal constraint even went to such lengths that, as was stated like in the Dreiding of the Principality of Öls of 1652– no homeowners might remain out of the village overnight without the permission of the local authorities.

Laudemium is a legal term, possibly a carry-over from Roman Law. It describes a requirement for tenants on noble land to pay a percentage of any money received for land transfer back to the noble owner of the land.

The word Dreiding and other German words for official decision-making gatherings, have to me a fascinating history. Dreiding literally means “three-thing”. The ancient Germanic word for a public assembly to make tribal decisions and pass judgments was called a “Thing”. An assembly made three times a year would be a “Three-times a year-Thing”, or shortened to a Dreiding. During the Dreiding, the small claims court (the Gerichtskretscham) would take place, chaired by the village mayor (Scholz Vorsitzer) and attended by the village assessors (Schöffen Besitzern).

The respective owner of the mill (and therefore also our ancestor Gottlieb) had to fulfill the following requirements towards the lord of the estate:

1. to deliver the common hereditary tith: 19 bushels of corn, 1 bushel of wheat, 6/4 mixture Breslau measure,
2. to pay in cash for the garden annually 12 Silesian Thaler, and
3. other deliveries and requirements: 2 pairs of chickens, 1 Schock of eggs (60 eggs).

The chicken and egg payments were described by Gustav Freytag as the old symbols of the dependence of house and yard.

“Additionally, he must spin four pieces of flax yarn each year, whereby three pieces of each are to be paid with 3 silver Groschen coins, hay cutting in the villages Hammer and in Pirschen in order to pay wages and food as well as other subjects there; afterwards a person also is to go into the hay fields to also do common work. For the flax works, he goes with a person to the threshing grates, or alternatively he works at sowing beds of flax and turnips in the field.”

The above quoted text is taken from the 24 November 1810 Debschitz mortgage, as recorded in the land registration book at the court office in Öls.

It is clear that the benefits of personal and monetary nature, here demanded by the owner of the mill property and, as already mentioned, in significant ways also from the rest of the peasants of the village after centuries of legal habit, generally were seen as oppressive, because they had been outdated and are no longer in accord with the revenue. Discontent had grown in general, but particularly during a challenging time when the lord of the domain instituted executions against debtors, which happened frequently.

A miller was in a doubly bad position. As long as the meal coercion existed, the revenues of the millers from their business had a certain level of continuity, but that changed with the introduction of the 1845 law on the freedom of trade, which caused an increase of mill holdings and a material decrease of the previously individual firms.

It stands to reason that also our Gottlieb Sternüske was not bedded on roses. As I know from oral tradition, he had a long ongoing court conflict with the lord of the dominion of Pirschen because of the miller regulations – and probably also because of not always fulfilling his obligations. This process ended unfavorably for him. The unfavorable relationship and the pressing awareness that he was not to going to find the expected advancement prompted Gottlieb to shake the Pirschen flour dust from his feet and to search his luck at another location. He exchanged the Pirschen mill he had bought in 1842 for 800 Thalers, through an agreement on the 24th of February and the 28th of March in 1846, for the mill on property number 1 in Dobrischau, Öls County, owned by the miller Gottlieb Pohl. At that time the Pirschen mill was burdened with debts of 808 Thalers. Gottlieb Sternüske had to add 50 Thalers for the exchange, because the mill in Dobrischau had a higher value (1200 Thalers). His mortgage debt then totaled 850 Thalers.

But Gottlieb saw his hopes unfulfilled again in Dobrischau. The years 1845 and 1847 were difficult years for the entire agricultural industry. In 1847, the main food crop of Silesia, the potato, was almost completely spoiled, following after the marginally profitable harvests of the previous years. The decreasing earnings from the Pirschen mill seemed to continue for him also at Dobrischau.

A short time after the takeover of the Dobrischau mill, Gottlieb Sternüske left this property and acquired the windmill in Neudorf near Juliusburg, in Öls County. He died there in May of 1848 in the prime of a man's life, barely 41 years old, by a "tumor", as the records in church book say. It was the early end of his hard working and disappointing life. Four children, three boys and one girl grieved for their father and breadwinner. Johanna Elisabeth (nee Titze), the faithful partner and Gottlieb's companion on the path of his failures, was only 35 years old when she was widowed. She survived her husband by 34 years. She celebrated a second marriage, and died in 1882 as a widow - her second husband died years before. In Bohrau, Öls County, she had found a second homestead. Loyal friends and helpers took care of this sick and helpless woman until her death. In the home of the Hauschild family, where she lived, she found caring accommodation up to the end of her lifetime. Her tomb at the Bohrau cemetery near the church entrance is shaded by the branches of a mighty elm, grown up from a bucket. Her son William marked this place with a cross on which we can find the words: "A faithful heart down in this grave was moved from stormy times and got peace right in the moment, when it beats no longer“. The gravesite of Gottlieb Sternüske, who was buried at the cemetery in Juliusburg, cannot be located.

Only in the storms, we recognize the attraction of peace. Only by experiencing the foreign we feel the magic of the homeland. In the year 1924 (I was living in Berlin at that time) I could visit once again the land of my fathers; and also Pirschen, which is an interesting place for me. My companion was my cousin Richard from Breslau, who has often been in Pirschen and therefore he had knowledge of the roads and places. I leave here the text of my diary record of my visit to Pirschen.

Wilhelm Starnitzki's Diary: a 1924 visit to Sibyllenort, Lossen, Skarsine and Pirschen

Saturday, August 23rd, 1924

“I wake up at 2:30 am and hear the soft monotonous noise of a smooth rain. But the rain does not keep us from the planned trip. The rain ends, as I notice, after some time and we can march to Odertorbahn without becoming wet. There the train starts at 5:40 am. Around 6 am, we are in Sibyllenort. The intimate park lets us feel the morning peace silently and devoutly. The morning stillness is only interrupted by some children walking to the railway station on their way to school in Breslau. They are probably the children of employees of the castle administration. Nearby a rooster crows and from the nearby forest we hear the soothing sounds “guggerugun” of a wild pigeon pair. We make a small detour to have a nearer look at the palace, which formerly belonged to the Duke of Braunschweig-Fels -and since 1884 has been in possession of the King of Saxony.

Notes by JWS:

The Odertorbahn was the train station directly north of the center of old Breslau. Sibyllenort is now called Szczodre. It is in Wrocław County, about 8 miles north-east of Wrocław.

King Frederick Augustus III would have been the King of Saxony when Wilhelm visited Sibyllenort in 1924. The king died at Sibyllenort on the 18th of February in 1932.

Soon, the large, feudal building, crowned with small towers is in front of us. Still the morning peace is around. No sound can be heard at all and everybody still seems to be in bed. In front of the main entrance there are beautiful well-kept lawns, which are framed by elaborately trimmed hedges. The king is currently not present, we know this because his standard is not raised. Japanese fir trees, mighty oak trees and large living-trees adorn the park. At the castle brewery the roadway to Lossen branches. The road sign shows a distance of 4.5 kilometers.

At 7:20 am the morning fog lifts and lets us see the Lossen church tower in front of us.

At 8:00 am we reach the Hellmann's Inn. An initially slight drizzle, gradually becomes a real "raining cats and dogs" downpour that forces us to stop at the inn. After having refreshed ourselves, we use the further involuntary stay to visit the local church. The church clerk and gravedigger Mr. Sonnabend shows us around. With mixed emotions we view the altar with its magnificent wood carvings, at which 92 years earlier our grandparents were married, and the simple baptismal font, at which our fathers were baptized; my father 85 years ago, and Richard's father 90 years ago. The church has two overlapping pulpits. At the organ pulpit hangs the coat of arms of a former patronage lord of the church, Lord von Strachwitz: quartered, with a red field in the first and fourth quarter with pigs' heads, the second and third quarters are split by several silver and blue stripes, filled with white and blue mussels. The church was built in 1712, and the organ and pulpit were added in 1713. The organ was replaced after 100 years of use by a new one with the help of a cash donation by Lord von Strachwitz from Saprashine.

Notes by JWS:

Wilhelm's cousin, Richard from Breslau, was Richard Hermann Emil Starnitzke (1873-1945), the son of Friedrich Wilhelm Hermann Starnitzke/ Starnitzkÿ /Sternitzkÿ (1834-1911). See the Family of Friedrich Wilhelm Hermann Starnitzke, April 1891 to 1911 City of Breslau.

Richard Starnitzke was listed in the 1915 to 1943 Breslau address books. Richard Starnitzke was a Konsumbäcker (a baker at a cooperative or a member of the Konsumgenossenschaft), living at Weinstrasse 34 (now Stanistawa Żeromskiego Street, north of the old city). He was listed as retired in the 1941 Breslau address book. The Odertorbahnhof (mentioned in the first paragraph of this diary extract, was the train station directly north of the center of old Breslau, and less than one mile west of Weinstrasse 34. See Book III, Chapter 1, Breslau: Pfefferküchler Richard Hermann Emil Starnitzke, 1896 to 1943 City of Breslau.

Wilhelm's father was Karl Robert Starnitzki (1839-1866). Richard's father was unnamed by Wilhelm in this chapter, but his baptism was recorded as 90 years prior to Wilhelm and Richard's visit to Lossen. So, Richard's father was born in 1834. Wilhelm and Richard's grandparents were Gottlieb Sternüske (1807-1848) and Johanna Elisabeth née Titze (1813-1882).

The village Saprashine in Trebnitz County had a population of 192 when it was renamed as Lindenhof in 1936. It is now named Zaprężyn. Below are three Strachwitz family coat of arms. The Vereinigtes Wappen (United Coat of Arms from 1627) with red fields in the first and fourth quarters matches Wilhelm's description. The other two versions had gold fields.

The rain has stopped. We continue our journey. On the road to Skarsine, a foot path to Pirschen turns to the right and goes through the woods. Here stands one of the oldest Silesian oaks, the so called Donnereiche [thunder-oak] whose age is indicated to be 1,000 to 1,200 years old. Its name comes from Donar, the god of war of the old Germans. It is a powerful, still green old tree – which has a circumference at breast height of nearly 7 meters. This tree has experienced the changes of the Silesian history, starting in a pre-Christian time up to now. I could not deny myself, to break off some leaves from this venerable giant tree as souvenirs. The terrain becomes hilly. We begin to climb the Weinberg, and then the Gollberg. For my companion this kind of climbing is unusual and of a strenuous nature. It brings him to say: “It’s difficult to climb. To reach the top is almost as difficult as to reach German unity.”

From 10:15 am to 10:25 am we rest at the former fountain cottage of the former “bath” at Skarsine. My companion tells me this cottage no longer contains the iron water fountain used as a source of healing, which was the source of Skarsine’s reputation as a health resort 80 years ago.

At 10:45 am, we reached the Pollentschine castle; which is close to a modern sports field. On wide forest and meadow paths we are now approaching the point, where years ago the water mill stood. Our grandfather Gottlieb lived and farmed here. More than 80 years have passed by since he took over the mill. Meanwhile the times have changed. Grandfather has rested since 1848 in the cemetery in Juliusburg and grandmother sleeps at Bohrau. Now alder bushes stand at the point where the mill was. The large millpond that was filled by damming the mill creek to supply operating power to the mill is gone. The area is planted densely with trees, belonging to the lord of Pirschen castle. Our way continues under and alongside huge trees, 100 or more years old. Even venerable colossal beeches are here, at least the same age. These witnesses of older times are still rustling the same song. Using poets’ words: many things altered, since I left my home.

At 11:00 am we are at the point where the last old, but silent witness of the former mill operation of our grandparents stood: a great millstone, which had been used here in the park as a garden table for years. But the millstone also is no longer here. As we hear it was repeatedly overturned and damaged by wanton hands. Therefore, the owner of the local Rittergut [knight’s homestead] removed the stone and used it otherwise. The stone wreath, the roundabout around the millstone, is also in disarray. A number of the stones are torn out of the circle and are scattered around. My companion moves the heavy pieces together and restores order with deference. We continue on the beautiful forest road which leads us to the estate of a distant relative of ours: the Ortskretschan [the village inn] owned by August Zwilling. The Kretschan was formerly owned by the Titze family. My grandmother Elizabeth Titze came from that family.

Notes by JWS: The Schneidermeister (master tailor) Gustav Sternitzke married Johanna Zwilling around 1870. They had two known children (Berta and Karl) who were both born at Perschütz in Trebnitz County. The records for their children identify later locations of Gustav Sternitzke and his wife: at Glogau, Breslau and Sibyllenort. See Book III: Chapter 2, Village of Perschütz in Trebnitz County.

August Zwilling is the executive of the village council, but he will give up this office to another community member tomorrow. Just before our arrival the owner of the Rittergut at Pirschen, Major Taeger, arrived to discuss community affairs with Mr. Zwilling. Mr. Zwilling introduced us to the Major. We talk about the reason of our trip and at last also about the missing millstone. Mr. Taeger confirms that this stone has been used as a stone table in his garden for several years. He invites us to visit this. We go to the castle gardener who leads us to the spot. Silently and devoutly, we regard this memento of the Sternitzke family. It stands at a secluded place in the garden. Two red coated garden chairs beside it suggest that the location is haunted by the castle dwellers. Unfortunately, it starts to rain hard. With the abrupt onset of rain, a violent storm comes along which suddenly shakes the old trees as if the old Wodan with his wild hunting party rides through the air. Therefore, we leave as soon as possible our site of remembrance. It seems as if the sky raises an objection to this round of memories.

August Zwilling will end his office as the local executive tomorrow, so I help him with the preparation of his accounts. It's 11:00 pm, when we reach our bedrooms. Richard was tired and his head was drooping already two hours earlier.

Sunday, August 24th, 1924

The weather is bright and clear. Richard goes to the train station to pick up his wife Berta. She also wants to visit Pirschen today. August and I are going on working on the statements, he will need for the transfer of his office. At 11:00 am, the local administrator and owner of the Rittergut von Kessel arrived. The transfer business starts in the presence of the four members of the new community council. The new executive is named Mr. Gerstel.

Note by JWS:

Richard Hermann Emil Starnitzke married Bertha Maria Ida Krautwald at the Elftausend Jungfrauen Protestant Church in Breslau on the 5th of June in 1897.

After documents have been transferred and the new executive and the three aldermen have been sworn in, the transfer of some goods begins. In addition to many books and lists, the new council receives the so-called Führerstab [leader stick or baton], and two crew armbands. These are the over 100 years old insignias of the head of the community, which he had used in certain cases during the exercise of his duties. The stick bears a brass knob with the engraved inscription:

„Gemeinde Pirschen Trebnitzer Kreises“
[Community of Pirschen, Trebnitz County].

For both me and Richard the old Schulz's baton and the bleached armbands have a certain interest: these emblems of local government are the same ones used by the father of our grandmother Johanna Titze, the Gerichtsscholz Christoph Titze, that he used for important official acts. Another curiosity was handed over: the pike and the horn of the community night watchman. The pike has the shape of an ancient halberd. The horn, used many times in the past, was sure to have been heard hour after hour during the nights, has lost a vital component. It lacks a piece, but this error has no importance. Horn, pike etc. have served:

Sic transit gloria mundi.
[Latin: And so the glory of this world shall fade.]

At 12:00 am, the meeting comes to an end. Gustav, the son of August Zwilling, drove us to the railway station in Zedlitz, from where we ...

Chapter 13

Groß Hammer (Polnisch Hammer)

The village Polnisch Hammer – named Gross Hammer since 1911 – is of special interest for our family history. It was the home of our family’s ancestors for centuries.

Notes by JWS: Gross Hammer (Great Hammer) was a village in Trebnitz County. From 1423 to 1523, it was listed as Niederhammer in church documents. It was named Polnisch Hammer (Polish Hammer) in 1718 due to the Polish residents who processed the local iron deposits there. In the Middle Ages Polnisch-Hammer was one of the forest villages in the Sessovo forest district owned by the Catholic Cloister at Trebnitz. It had a population in 1939 of 663. It is now known as Kuźniczysko. The church at Gross Hammer was built in 1550. It was returned to the Protestants in 1707.

The first time our name was recorded there, was in a church book in the 17th Century. Andreas Sternüßke was born in 1650, and died at the age of 60 years on the 24th of January in 1710. Further particulars about him are missing. The entry concerning him in the church book includes only a short note:

“Sep.c.coll.” That is “Sepultus cum Collecta”.
[Latin: buried with prayer.]

Notes by JWS:

The place of his birth is unknown. Andreas Sternüßke (1650-1710) may have been a son of Johann Sternitzke (1610-1672, SN273). Johann Sternitzke was a Freibauer in Gross Ujeschütz, who was married three times. Only the name of his third wife (Katharine née Rendzin) is known.

In the 18th Century, five persons with our family name are indicated, while in the 19th Century only two were documented. I found the name forms Sterniske, Sternisske, Sternüsske and finally the spelling with the hard “tz”, which is still usual today in many cases: Sternitzke. From interviews and a review of old records I have learned several details about our name-carriers, which I will reflect below.

In conjunction with the official recordings of our family you can read the name Bartsch. In and around this area the name Bartsch family occurs strikingly often, and it is associated with our family, having been frequently recorded as witness at marriages and baptisms in the church books. The families Sterniske and Bartsch were also connected by marriages from early times. Heinrich Bartsch, the father of Hans Bartsch, of whom the following is about, was married in 1726 to Katharina Tschernißke (1704-1773). Katharina was baptized as the eldest daughter of the Freigärtner Adam Sciernisko (1671-1749, SN1) at Briesche on the 16th of November in 1704.

Notes by JWS:

The discussion regarding the date of baptism for Katharina Tschernißke, Wilhelm Starnitzki has an error. Karl Sille recorded that Katharina Tschernißke (also known as Schiernisko) was born at Gross Ujeschütz on the 16th of November in 1704. She was baptized on the 26th of November in 1704 at a location Karl Sille did not identify. Katharina married Heinrich Bartsch at Polnisch Hammer on the 19th of February in 1726. Katharina died at Polnisch Hammer on the 25th of November in 1775 and was buried at Polnisch Hammer on the 28th of November.

In Trebnitz, I was able to study the land records in which the following document was kept, regarding the property number 18 in Polnisch Hammer, on page 1, dated the 24th of October in 1799:

“Hans Bartsch of Polnisch Hammer shows that he had sold his Dreschgärtnerstelle, now converted to a Freistelle to Johann Sterniske from Klein Ujeschütz as his future son-in-law for the payment of 800 Reichsthalers and he hands over the closed purchase contract as settled.“

This note appears on page 52 of the document:

“This Dreschgärtnerstelle was previously bought in 1794 for the sum of 800 Reichsthalers, 250 Reichsthalers were paid in 1775, and in 1730, the sum was recorded as 125 Reichsthalers”.

Johann Sterniske (1775-1843) was the property successor of his father-in-law Hans Bartsch. He bought the Freigärtnerstelle. The purchase price was the same as paid by Hans Bartsch, the father-in-law, in his own purchase of the property in 1794, 800 Reichsthalers. The total area of the property was approximately 35 Morgen. The church book shows Elisabeth Bartsch and Johann Sterniske (1775-1843) were married on the 12th of November in 1799, not long after the date on which Johann had taken over the property. Johann and Elisabeth had several children, but only two of them – Christian and Gottlieb survived the first years. The history regarding Gottlieb is discussed above in the chapter “Pirschen”. Christian Sterniske followed his father Johann in the ownership of the Freigärtnerstelle, while the seven years younger Gottlieb, who learned the miller craft, was compensated with an inheritance of 200 Reichsthalers.

Note by JWS:

Johann Sterniske and Elisabeth Bartsch were second cousins. They were great-grandchildren of Adam Sciernisko (1671-1749, SN1). See the family tree below for the people addressed in this chapter.

Family Tree of Johann Sterniske and Elisabeth Bartsch

In 1825, eleven years before taking over the independent management of his father's possessions, Christian Sterniske married a neighbors' daughter, Helene Grzmehle. Over time, he was able to add two more properties to his Freigärtnerstelle. One of them was a parcel of 5 acres of wooded land, so that his total holding in 1854 totaled about 50 Morgen. During my visit to Polnisch Hammer in 1904 I learned from an old woman that Christian Sterniske was in his time one of the better-off farmers in the village. She had worked as an 18-year young girl in his household and what she told me was confirmed by other inhabitants. He loved hunting and it seems that he was somewhat peculiar. Where much light is shining, you know you can also find a lot of shadows.

In Christian's opinion, he was exceptional among the people of Polnisch Hammer. Proof of this assertion is probably shown by looking at the number of godparents he named on his children's baptisms between 1831 and 1841. The church constitution approved a maximum number of godparents as three persons. For Christian this was not enough and he named 5,6,7,8 and in one case even 10 godparents. According to the church constitution 30 Groschen had to be paid to the church for each godparent exceeding the number of 3. We can imagine that the costs of such large baptisms were not likely to have been small, and that such large ceremonies must have been expensive. Still another factor may be mentioned in this connection. According to the church constitution, every baptism should have been completed within three days after birth. Exceeding that period of time involved "a certain punishment" set at the amount of 2 Thalers for citizens; 2 florentine Gulden for the farmers and 1 florentine for the Gärtners.

1 fl. = 1 Florentine Gulden was worth 60 kreutzers, or 15 batzen or 10 schillings.

Source:

Thode, Ernest. German-English Genealogical Dictionary. Baltimore: Genealogical Publishing Co., 1993.

This did not concern Christian Sterniske. The church records for 8 children show that he upheld the 3-days-period in only one case. In all other cases was overran up to 9 days. It is more than probable that the church called him to pay the usual “punishment” and he would have done so. It seems as if in general Christian took liberties with money matters. Whether his economic conditions were so excellent, that this didn’t really harm him at that time - who is able to say it today?

In any event, it is clear that he did not bequeath his father’s property to his own descendants. After a management time of 20 years, for an unknown reason, he sold the property in August of 1856 with the consent of his wife Helene (whose maiden name was Helene Grzmehle) to Gottlieb Kluge from Gross Krutschen for 3,500 Thalers.

Christian Sterniske then left Polnisch Hammer and went to Bojanowo in Posen to be an innkeeper. There is no further information about him after that time. When I asked about the fate of Christian during my visit to Polnisch Hammer in 1901, the only information I learned was that his son Heinrich later returned to Polnisch Hammer and lived there for some time.

Note by JWS:

Bojanowo was a village in Rawitsch County, in the Prussian Province of Posen, north of Trebnitz. It was established in the 14th Century. See the Chapter 17 regarding the Posen in Book III of this Sternitzke Family History for more family members in Posen.

How times and people change! The old adage: “a saved Pfennig is worth more than a wasted Thaler” seems once again to have been confirmed. But it is not up to me to judge my ancestor Christian for his dubious economic leadership. I don’t know details of the existing economic or other circumstances that would have caused him to sell the property in Polnisch Hammer. I only have discussed this case in this detail, because as a conscientious chronicler I considered it significant enough not to be ignored.

Today at property number 18, nothing exists of the buildings in which in their time the previous owners, Hans Bartsch and Johannes Sterniske had lived and worked. The buildings had been victims of a large fire in the second half of the previous century. I could find traces of this fire still in the year 1904, with which some cattle must have also died. The owner at that time, Johannes Riedel, showed me around the house and garden and displayed a blackish soil layer still perceptible under the ground, mixed with animal bones, which according to him are due to the fire. The indications of the fire were also found in the old house. The existing residential and commercial buildings were built in 1878. These included in 1904 only the garden and about three acres of meadow. The residential home was used as a warehouse at that time.

The 40 years old widowed Gärtner Johann Bartsch married Anna Catharine Hartung on the 3rd of April in 1853 at Buffalo, New York. Their marriage was recorded at the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church in Buffalo. Anna Catharine Hartung was 31 years old at the time of her marriage, so she was born around 1822. She was born at the village Bischfroda in the grand duchy Sachsen-Weimer- Eisenach. She was the daughter of Nicolaus Hartung and May (née Grimm) Hartung.

Birth, Family and Death of daughter
Caroline Bartsch (c.1830-1894)

A Dreschgärtner (threshing farmer) was a farmer who owed annual threshing and flax processing services for the fields owned by the village landlord.

Caroline Bartsch was born around 1830. That year was based on her age (64 years old) when she died at Breslau on the 15th of September in 1894. Her religion was listed as Alt Lutherischer (Old Lutheran).

At the time of her death Caroline (née Bartsch) Walter was the widow of the Kaufmann (merchant) Adolf Walter, who had died at home in Breslau before 1891. The 1891 Breslau address book listed the Kaufmann's widow Caroline Walter as a resident at Holteistraße 4 (first floor).

Friedrichskirch (Kainowe)

The community named Kainowe appeared in the 18th century in the forms of Cajnowo and Kaniowo. It was written as Woskowo (or Woskowa) until the 17th century. What do the 17th century versions of the name signify? It seems reasonable to assume they are related to the Polish word for wax: woskowy. In the big Silesian woods and also in Trebnitz County the inhabitants eagerly pursued the lucrative and non-strenuous business of forest beekeeping. Not only because of the honey which represented sugar in former times, but also because of the wax which was used for the manufacture of the candles necessary for ecclesiastical purposes. It may be supposed in this connection that Woskowa was once the domicile of wax producers, like the honey producers (beekeepers) who had special residences, as referenced in the old documents.

Notes by JWS:

Friedrichskirch was a village in Trebnitz County. Other variations of the village name included: Caynow and Caynowe in 1743, Kainowa and Cain in 1785, Cainowa, Gross Koniowo in 1845, Woskowa in 1785 and 1803 and Waskowa. It was called Gross Cainowe until 1936, then became Kainowe, and in 1937 it became Friedrichskirch. Its population was 440 in 1939. It is now called Koniowo. There were 364 residents at Koniowo in 2020.

Klein Cainowe was a small forest village just north of Gross Cainowe. It was called Klein Cainowe in 1845, Klein Kainowe in 1887, and Klein Friedrichskirch from 1936 to 1945. It was then known as Koniowo Male (small). It is now known as Koniówko.

The Polish website for Koniowo confirmed that the Woskowa and Waskowa variations are related to the beekeepers' occupation. The village was a forest settlement that belonged to the monastery at Trebnitz in the 13th century. The residents of the village paid the taxes to the monastery by collecting honey and wax (for candles). The Kainowe variations are related to the Polish word Konnica (a horse) or may be Germanized versions of the surname Kania (which was a common Silesian surname).

Kainowe was one to those communities governed by the Principality of Öls, where some Protestant churches were taken away in 1671. In the Trebnitz Stiftskreis [the district administered by the Stift of Trebnitz] the only Protestant churches allowed to be open were the ones at Kainowe, the city of Trebnitz, Luzine, Pawellau, Polnisch Hammer, Schawoine and Schlottau. While the churches of the six latter places remained open, the Kainowe church was demolished and for ecclesiastical matters, the people of Kainowe were then linked with Pawellau until 1764.

Notes by JWS:

The names of Silesian villages went through several changes through the centuries. Friedrichskirch is the same village as Kainowe. Paulskirch is the same village as Pawellau. Gross Hammer is the same village as Polnisch Hammer. Blüchertal is the same village as Schawoine. The village names that Wilhelm Starnitzki used on this page were the versions in use before 1937.

The current church at Kainowe was built in 1765. Gottlieb Fuchs wrote the following about the process and issues which led to the construction of the current church:

“The communities of the three villages Kainowe, Gross and Klein Ujeschütz have searched nearly ten years for the ways to legally to build a new church. They founded their request on a document which was written on greaseproof paper and is confirmed by attached seals. Varied difficulties were made against that construction. Those difficulties were not only because of the fact that the mentioned three places were incorporated to the church at Pawellau, but also by reason that no village was found in the Trebnitz County with the name Woskowo. Nevertheless, that is exactly how it was written in the document. In the end, after intensive search by the government of the Principality of Öls, the name Woskowo was found in an old parish record that also mentioned there having been a church there. Therefore, the Minister and Chief President von Schlabrendorf of the Commission of the Principality of Öls, who wanted to bring to an end this issue, informed these municipalities in a Highest Noble Order in 1764 that they are separated from now on from the Pawellau church. After that statement they began preparations of the old churchyard to prepare for the construction of their new church. Of which, in 1765 with the help of a general church collection the work was started and was happily completed. The church was provided with a nice tower and two bells, and the preacher performs the service on all Sundays in Polish and in German.”

The document referred to above, which supported the claim to establish a new church was dated the 10th of July in 1623. The document was issued by the Erbherr (hereditary lord) of Woskowa at that time: Georg Föerster. With that document, he transferred to Hans Piller (the church clerk at that time, and a Freigärtner in Kainowe), as well as to his heirs, one house standing between the Kretscham [village inn] and the churchyard along with the accompanying field around and beside the house from the churchyard up to the ditch of the Kretscham, and behind it again up to the principal ditch “at all times to sell, to change and to pledge”. For that property The church clerk was required to pay annually an everlasting hereditary interest of 12 weisen groschen, to the lord’s hereditary estate each year on Michaeli [the 29th of September]. In addition, his wife had the obligation to do the services usual at that time such as hay making, etc.

On the other hand, for his services to the church Hans Piller was to be given annually “for singing and ringing, what is usually entitled to a church clerk under the lord’s hereditary domain, a cartload of hay and a bushel of flaxseed for sowing on the field. Additionally, he should be paid of course a suitable fee by the people, for all ecclesiastical office actions.”

In 1672, the church clerk's house, and probably also the office of church clerk, was turned over to Mathes Ogroska. Abbess Hedwig Magdalena Bienowski, being in office at that time, approved the change in possession as legal, and also the 1623 juridical documentation of the possession agreement, with her seal and signature.

From these legal processes the Protestant community of Kainowe had derived its claim for construction of a new church and achieved the necessary approval. The church was inaugurated in 1766. The first pastor of Cajnowa, according to the book by Fuchs, was Samuel Heinrich Sassadius. He died in 1767. His successor was Johannes Andreas Frost, who was born in Trebnitz in 1733, and ordained as pastor of Cajnowa on the 4th of June in 1767. Eleven ministers followed him until this day:

Stockmar (1805-1836), Mosler (1836-1861), Petran (1862-1833), (1883-1885 the office was vacant), Schulz (1885-1887), Wohle (1888-1901), Pollack (1902-1908), Keuhl (1908-1915), Treutler (1915-1924), Schmidt (1924-1929), von Gossler (1930-1932), (1932-1934 the office was vacant), Fitzer (since 1934).

Notes by JWS:

The original church at Gross Cainowe (Kainowe) was built in 1623. It was a daughter church of the Protestant Church at Pawellau. It was demolished in 1671 and the parishioners attended church at Pawellau which was turned over to the Catholics as part of the Counter-Reformation. The Pawellau Church was returned to the Protestants in 1708. The Protestant church at Kainowe was rebuilt from 1764 to 1765. The communities of Kainowe, Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz then separated from the Protestant parish at Pawellau.

The Zeitschrift für Instrumentbau (Journal for Instrument Making) was a publication that documented the constructions of church organs and other instruments. A 1907 issue of that journal documented the construction of a church for the altlutherische (Old Lutheran) community at Groß-Cainowe in Trebnitz County. The work was done by the architect Konrad in Sulau (in Militsch County). The 1925/26 Militsch County address book listed Paul Konrad as the owner of a Bauunternehme (construction company) with an address at Ring 34a in the City of Militsch.

Dr. Johannes Gottfried Fitzer was born on the 3rd of May in 1903 at Gross Bresa near Breslau. He was ordained on the 3rd of April in 1930. He was the Protestant minister at Kainowe (Friedrichskirch) from the 1st of January in 1934 until January of 1945. After the Russians conquered Silesia, he fled with his congregation across what is now the Czech Republic to Bavaria, where they settled in Oberfranken (Upper Franconia). He went on to become a professor of New Testament Science at the University of Vienna in 1950. Professor Dr. Fitzer died in 1997, in Winklern/Mölitäl (Kärnten), Austria.

Gottlieb Fuchs was born in 1723 at Lossen in Trebnitz County. He was the pastor at Hühnern (Trebnitz County) in 1767, and the Senior in 1786. Pastor Fuchs died in 1800. He was the author of several books regarding the Reformation and the churches in Silesia (including Neisse, Oels and Gratz).

Sternitzke Family Baptisms at Friedrichskirch (Kainowe)

Below are the baptisms involving members of the Sternitzke family from Kainowe Evangelical Parish, including information about the baptismal witnesses (sponsors and godparents).

Notes by JWS:

The Kainowe Parish baptisms were held at Pawellau during the period from when the Kainowe church was demolished (in 1671) until it was rebuilt (in 1765). The table below include the three baptisms (in 1715, 1736 and 1769) originally included in this table of Kainowe baptisms as recorded in the Wilhelm Sternitzki manuscript. The baptisms of the children of Georg and Maria Sternitzke show some interesting variations of the Sternitzke and Sille surnames, and variations of the name of the village Gross Ujeschütz.

Ancestor Table for Gotthold Sternitzke from Friedrichskirch

The following ancestor table for Gotthold Sternitzke of Friedrichskirch (Kainowe) is based on the ancestor summary that was prepared by Wilhelm Starnitzki for Gotthold Sternitzke in 1947, and on the ancestor summary of Wilhelm Starnitzki which was produced by Karl Sille in 1970. See Chapter 6: The Ancestors and Descendants of Wilhelm Starnitzki. See notes regarding Gotthold Sternitzke at the end of Chapter 10 of this book.

The original summary listed the surnames of Generations II to V (Blasius to Adam) as Scirnisko. The surname of generation VI (Georg) was listed as Sternitzko. Wilhelm Starnitzki was probably showing the logical progression of the family name from Scirnisko to Sternitzke. I added the other known variations of the individuals' surnames and I added Wilhelm's Stammliste Nummers to the entries. The progression of the known family name variations wasn't as simple as Wilhelm suggested, and the odd variations continued even after the name Sternitzke was in use by Gregor Sternitzke (Generation III) in 1660.

Baptism of daughter Maria Sterniske, 1736

Gregor Sterniske (c.1706-1769, SN209) was an Erbsaß (estate owner) in Kainowe in 1736 according to the baptism record for his daughter Maria Sterniske. Gregor's wife was Rosina (née Hennig) Sterniske. Maria was baptized at the Protestant church in Pawellau. The baptism sponsor Maria Sternitzke may have been the daughter of Gregor Sternitzke (c.1655-1714) and Eva Maria (née Kollewe) Sternitzke from Domnowitz. Their daughter, Maria Sternitzke, was born at Domnowitz in 1690. Or, this Maria could have been Maria (née Gollj/Golin/Gohlin) Schiernißke, the wife of Daniel Schiernißke (1697-after 1756) from Domnowitz.

Baptism Sponsor Gregor Schiernißke, 1738

Baptism Sponsor Rosina Schiernißkin, 1739

The Pauerin (farmer's wife) Rosina Schiernißkin from Caniowe (Kainowe) was one of the baptism sponsors for Susanna Jaroke at the Catholic church at Powitzko on the 25th of August in 1739. The child was the daughter of the Haußman (house owner) Mathias Jaroke and his wife Rosina (née Pochlobin) Jaroke from Domnowitz. The other sponsors were: Maria Szißkin from Domnowitz, and Daniel Marotzke the son of the Bauer (farmer) Hanß Marotzke from Domnowitz.

Baptism Sponsor Gregor Schiernißke, 1739

The Freügärtner (free owner of a house and garden) Griger (Gregor) Schiernißke from Caniowe (Kainowe) was one of the baptism sponsors for Mathias Waÿß, the son of the Bauer Caspar Waÿß and Anna Polackin from Domnowitz. The child was baptized at the Catholic church at Powitzko on the 20th of September in 1739. The other sponsors were: the Bauerin (farmer's wife) Hedwig Langnerin from Groß Ujeschütz, and Hanß Hönig the son of the Bauer (farmer) Friedrich Hönig from Domnowitz.

Baptism Sponsor Gregor Schiernißke, 1741

The Freügärtner (free owner of a house and garden) Griger (Gregor) Schiernißke from Caniowe (Kainowe) was one of the baptism sponsors for Susanna Weiß, the daughter of the Pauer (farmer) Caspar Weiß and his wife Anna (née Nowanckin) Weiß. Births and Parents of Ferdinand and Friedrich Sternitzke

Ferdinand Sternitzke was born at Gross Kainowe in 1839. His brother, Friedrich Sternitzke was born at Gross Kainowe in 1858. Both brothers died at Breslau: Ferdinand died in 1900, Friedrich died in 1898. Their Breslau death records provided most of the information in this section.

Ferdinand Sternitzke and Friedrich Sternitzke were the sons of Friedrich and Christine (née Sternitzke) Sternitzke. Christine's maiden name was also Sternitzke. Friedrich (the father) was a Stellmanszügler (wagon driver) living at Gross Kainowe in 1898 and a Auszügler (retired farmer) living at Kainowe in 1900. His wife Christine was listed as deceased (at Gross Kainowe) on the 1898 and 1900 death records of their sons. Friedrich Sternitzke (senior) was probably the Müllermeister (master miller) Friedrich Sternitzke, a resident of Cainowe, who was confirmed for the office of Schiedsmann (arbitrator) for the court district of Cainowe in Trebnitz County in 1872. The position was similar to justice of the peace. The arbitrators' duties were to settle legal disputes between citizens at the local level. Christiane Sternitzke, the wife of a miller, was a baptism sponsor at Cainowe in 1843 and 1848. See the discussions below for details.

Marriage and Family of Ferdinand Sternitzke

Ferdinand Sternitzke married Emilie Labitzke around 1873. They were Protestants so they were probably married at the Protestant Church at Gross Kainowe (which was built in 1764). Emilie Labitzke was born at Gross Ujeschütz around 1846. That year was calculated from her age (59 years old) when she died at Beuthen on the 14th of February in 1905. Emilie was the daughter of the Gross Ujeschütz Bauergutbesitzer (farmstead owner) David Labitzke and his wife Susanna (née Ruschik) Labitzke. David Labitzke died at Gross Ujeschütz. Susanna (née Ruschik) Labitzke died at Trebnitz.

A miller named Ferdinand Sternitzke purchased Angerhaus (meadow house) Nr. 45 in Klein Ujeschütz in 1868.

Ferdinand and Emilie Sternitzke were living at Gross Ujeschütz when their children were born. Their daughter Selma Klara Emilie Constanze Sternitzke was born on the 12th of August in 1874. Their son Gustav Adolf Sternitzke was born on the 1st of September in 1878 at Groß Ujeschütz.

The Bahnarbeiter (railroad worker) Ferdinand and Emilie Sternitzke were living in Breslau when their daughter married Karl Friedrich Paul Jaeckel on the 29th of February in 1896. The marriage record of Selma Sternitzke listed her mother's name as Emilie (née Labitzky) Sternitzke. See the discussion regarding the Eisenbahn Arbeiter Ferdinand Sternitzke in the Marriage of Selma Klara Emilie Constanze Sternitzke 29 February 1896 City of Breslau. See the Death of Gustav Adolf Sternitzke, 29 April 1943 Brockau.

Death of Friedrich Sternitzke, 1898

Ferdinand's brother, Friedrich Sternitzke (junior) died on the 10th of October in 1898 at the age of 40 years and 5 months, so he was born around the 10th of May in 1858. Ferdinand's occupation and address was listed on his brother's death record as an Eisenbahn Streckenarbeiter (railroad track worker) who lived at Vincenzstraße 43 (6 blocks north of Sand Island, one block east of the main road to Trebnitz, now Świętego Wincentego Street). Friedrich's occupation was also listed as an Eisenbahn Streckenarbeiter. Friedrich Sternitzke lived at Matthiasstraße 63 (about 3 blocks northwest from Sand Island, now Jedności Narodowej Street). The death record shows that Friedrich was gerichtlich gescheiden von (legally divorced from) Marie (née Schmidt) Sternitzke at the time of his death. They had a daughter, Emma Martha Sternitzke who was born at Cainowe (Gross Kainowe) on the 8th of December in 1886. See Book III: the Marriage, Family and Death of Emma Martha Sternitzke, 1908 to 1917 City of Breslau. Friedrich Sternitzke was buried at the cemetery for the Elftausend Jungfrauen Protestant Church in Breslau on the 13th of October in 1898.

Ferdinand Sternitzke signed his brother's death record:

Deaths of Ferdinand and Emilie Sternitzke, 1900 & 1905

In 1900, Ferdinand and Emilie Sternitzke lived in Breslau at Hermannstraße 61 (2 blocks north of the Odertor Trainstation, now Emila Zegadłowicza Street). Ferdinand died at the Breslau Krankenhospital zu Allerheiligen on the 7th of February in 1900, at the age of 60 and $\frac{3}{4}$ years old so he was born around the 7th of May in 1839.

The widow Emilie (née Labitzke) Sternitzke died at Beuthen (in Beuthen County) on the 14th of February in 1905. Her death record shows her last residence was at Bahnhof Straße 4 in the city of Beuthen. She died at a hospital called the Fürstbischöflichen Siechenhauses Robertusstift at Beuthen. She was identified as a Protestant.

Baptismal Sponsor Christiane Sternitzke 1843 & 1848 Kainowe

The 1843-1862 record book of baptisms at the Protestant Church at Massel listed Christiane Sternitzke (the miller's wife from Kainowe) as a sponsor for two children of Gottlieb Klemm.

Gottlieb Klemm and his wife Susanna (née Pache) Klemm were Freigärtners at Maßlich Hammer. Their son, Johann Gottlieb Klemm was born at Maßlich Hammer on the 10th of August in 1843 and he was baptized at the Protestant Church at Massel on the 20th of August in 1843. According to the baptismal record, the child was the first child from the first marriage of Gottlieb Klemm. The baptismal sponsors were: the Müllern (miller's wife)

Christiane Sternitzken from Kainowe, the Freigärtner Gottlieb Pache from Kainowe and Susanna Helena Gräfer a Freigärtner's wife from Maßlich Hammer.

Susanna Helena Klemm was born on the 24th of February in 1848 at Maßlich Hammer and baptized on the 5th of March in 1848 at the Protestant Church at Massel. Her parents were listed as the Freigärtner Gottlieb Klemm and his wife Rosina (née Pache) Klemm. The baptismal record shows the child was the 3rd child from the second marriage of Gottlieb Klemm. The baptismal sponsors were: the Einwohner (resident) Friedrich Langner from Maßlich Hammer, the Müllern (miller's wife) Christiane Sternitzke from Kainowe and the Freigärtner's wife Anna Rosina Wutgen from Maßlich Hammer.

The miller's wife Christiane Sternitzke may have been the wife of the Gross Kainowe farmer Friedrich Sternitzke, whose wife was named Christine (née Sternitzke) Sternitzke. A miller named Ferdinand Sternitzke purchased Angerhaus (meadow house) Nr. 45 in Klein Ujeschütz in 1868. The full name of Christiane's husband may have been Friedrich Ferdinand Sternitzke. See the above discussion regarding their sons: the Births and Deaths of the Brothers Ferdinand and Friedrich Sternitzke, Born 1839 and 1858 Gross Kainowe, Died 1898 and 1900 Breslau.

Birth and Marriage of Emma Ida Majunke 1880 Cainowe and 1904 Breslau

Emma Ida Majunke was born at Cainowe (Kainowe) on the 21st of December in 1880, the daughter of the Gasthausbesitzer (inn owner) Adolf Majunke and his wife Luise (née Sternitzke) Majunke. Adolf, Luise and Emma Majunke were still living at Cainowe in 1904.

On the 6th of September in 1904, Emma Ida Majunke was married in Breslau to Emil Friedrich Wrobel. Emil Friedrich Wrobel was a Hilfsförster (assistant forester) at Grüneiche in Militsch County (about two miles west of Cainowe). Modern satellite maps show only trees where Grüneiche once stood. The marriage record identified the groom and the bride as both Protestants.

Emil Friedrich Wrobel was born on the 3rd of July in 1877 at Glatz (in Glatz County, south of Breslau). He was the son of the Vereinshaus Inspektor (assembly hall inspector) Karl Wrobel and his wife Pauline (née Hoffmann) Wrobel who lived in Breslau.

Witnesses at the wedding were the 41 years old Gasthausbesitzer (innkeeper) Richard Weiss, who lived in Breslau at Landegasse 62), and the 25 years old a Volkschullehrer (elementary school teacher) Alfred Wrobel. Alfred Wrobel lived at Friedrichshain in Reichenbach County.

Birth and marriage of Emma Martha Drescher 1879 Kainowe and 1904 Breslau

Emma Martha Drescher was born at Kainowe on the 7th of November in 1879. She was the daughter of Ferdinand Drescher and Karoline (née Sternitzke) Drescher who were farmers and residents of Kainowe.

In 1904, Emma Martha Drescher was employed as a Dienstmädchen (maid servant) and she lived in Breslau at Kleinburgstraße 41 (about 2 miles southwest from the old city moat, now Januszowicka Street). On the 16th of July in 1904, she married the Telegraphenarbeiter (telegraph worker) Paul Joseph Thoma in Breslau. The marriage record shows that bride was a Protestant and the groom was a Catholic. The bride's parents, Ferdinand Drescher and Karoline Karoline (née Sternitzke) Drescher were listed as Auszüglers (retired farmers) and residents of Kainowe in Trebnitz County.

Paul Joseph Thoma was born on the 26th of April in 1879 at Fürstenau in Militsch County. In 1904, he lived in Breslau at Freiburgerstraße 16 (1 block southwest from the old city walls, now Świebodzka Street). He was the son of the Arbeiter (laborer) Joseph Thoma and his wife Hedwig (née Bartell) Thoma, who had both died at Fürstenau in Militsch County prior to their son's marriage.

Witnesses at the wedding were the 22 years old Telegraphenarbeiter (telegraph worker) Max Heinrich and 28 years old Maurer (mason) Josef Thoma. Max Heinrich lived in Breslau at Leuthenstraße 24 (now Litomska Street, about 11 blocks northwest of the old city walls). Josef Thoma lived in Breslau at Friedrichstraße 72 (4 blocks southwest from the old city moat, now Kolejowa Street).

The Search for the Kainowe Church Records

In 2008, my wife and I visited the church at Kainowe (now known as Koniowo). The priest of the church did not know of the fate of the pre-1945 church books or tombstones. In 2009, when I visited the Polish State Archives in Wrocław, they were unable to locate any vital records for Friedrichskirch (Kainowe). Following their advice, I visited the Archives of the Catholic Diocese of Wrocław (on Cathedral Island). Their catalog showed that they have Kainowe records only for the following:

- birth and death records from 1732 to 1765, and
- marriage records from 1732 to 1786.

In 2010, I contacted the Evangelical Central Archive in Berlin, Germany. They did not have any church records for the village Friedrichskirch (Kainowe), and found no records for that village at other archives they contacted:

- Archiv des Ev. Kirchenkreisverbandes Schlesische Oberlausitz, Görlitz (the Archive of the Evangelical Church District Association of Lusatia, at Görlitz),
- Polnische Staatsarchive (the Polish State Archive), and
- Deutsche Zentralstelle für Genealogie, Leipzig (the German Central Office for Genealogy at Leipzig).

The Evangelical Central Archive did have a 1953 document from the last Protestant pastor at Friedrichskirch, Dr. Gottfried Fitzer, who stated he had last seen the Friedrichskirch Parish records at the church's rectory on the 20th of January in 1945. That was probably the date he fled from Friedrichskirch to Austria. He also stated that the church records may have been moved to the cloister at Trebnitz for safety, and that those records probably did not survive the war. According to Dr. Fitzer's statement, the Friedrichskirch Parish included the following communities: Friedrichskirch, Gross Ujeschütz, Klein Ujeschütz, Germanengrund (formerly known as Domnowitz), Margaretenmühle (formerly known as Klein Biadauschke), Parnitze, Gallhäuser and Grüneiche (both in the County of Militsch).

During the Second World War, the Russians entered Trebnitz on the 25th of January in 1945, and burned about 80% of the buildings in January and February. The court buildings and some church buildings were destroyed. If the Friedrichskirch records had been moved to Trebnitz, they may have been destroyed in the fires.

Briesche

The community of Briesche, located 8 miles northwest of Trebnitz, has been closely connected with our family for centuries. The Protestants of this active place always belonged to the Gross Hammer parish and therefore until 1824 also to the church in Schlottau. The 1675 to 1707 Protestant church registers for the baptisms and weddings of Schlottau and Gross Hammer are located at the Catholic Church in Schawoine. In the archives of the Protestant Church at Gross Hammer, church registers can be found for:

- baptisms from 1708 to 1757 and from December of 1765 to today,
- weddings from 1708 to 1755 and since 1766, and
- death records from 1708 to 1752 and since 1765.

Briesche had 364 inhabitants in 1939.

Notes by JWS:

The name Briesche may have been derived from the German name for the birch tree: Birke. Other spellings for the village include: Beric (1224), Březí, Brische (1718), Brischhe (1743), Briesch (1785), Brische and Briesche (1863) and Breesen (until 1945). The record book for the Schawoine Catholic Church (from 1675 to 1701) listed Briesche as Brizie, Brizizie, Brizia and Brizie. It is now named Brzezie, Poland.

The history of the Brzezie village (from the Trebnitz Country website) states that the village homesteads were arranged in a Franconian style, suggesting the homeland of the original settlers was Franconia. Wilhelm Haeusler wrote the earliest Lokator who brought settlers to the Principality of Öls brought five to seven settlers from Flanders. The bulk of the later settlers were from Franconia and Saxony. Saxons from the Naumburg area settled in the area around Trebnitz about the same year (1250) when the Abbess Gertrude of the Cistercian monastery at Trebnitz purchased the property where Briesche stands. She purchased the land from Duke Henry III. The village belonged to the Trebnitz monastery until 1810.

Gross Hammer was named Polnisch Hammer prior to 1937, and had a population of 663 in 1939. It is now known as Kuźniczysko. Schlottau had a population of 764 in 1938, and it is now named Zlotow. Schawoine was renamed as Blüchertal in 1936, and it had a population of 840 in 1939. It is now named Zawonia.

Notes by JWS:

Gen.V-81. Adam Tschernißke, Sciernisko, Schiernisko, Scierniske, Stierniske (1671-1749, SN1) was the son of Gen.IV-39. Johann Tschernißke, Sternitzke, Sciernisko (c.1610-1672, SN273).

See Book I, Chapter 6: The Ancestors and Descendants of Wilhelm Starnitzki for information regarding Johann Tschernißke (c.1610-1672, SN273).

The marriage of Adam Tschernißke and Anna Meißner is discussed in Book I, Chapter 10, Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz.

The baptism of Anna Meisner was recorded at Catholic Church at Schawoine in 1686. The births of two of Adam and Anna's children (Catharina in 1704 and Georg in 1707) were also recorded at the Catholic Church at Schawoine. Adam was recorded as Adam Schiernisko from Brizie (Briesche) in 1704 and as Adam Scierniske from Brizie in 1707. The Protestant records from 1675 to 1707 were recorded at the Catholic Church at Schawoine following the Thirty Years War. See Book I, Chapter 2: Church Books and General Church Conditions in Trebnitz County. See Book III, Village of Schawoine in Trebnitz County: Records at the Schawoine Catholic Church 1675 to 1707.

Georg Stierniske (SN143) purchased the property of his father Adam Stierniske, Grundstück 11 at Briesche on the 12th of April in 1737 for 170 Schlesische Thalers.

Wilhelm Starnitzki's manuscript (pages 73 left and 73 right) showed Adam's daughter Anna was married in 1732, but showed her husband Johann Heyn with the note ++ in 1731. Normally ++ means the line became extinct (no children) but the year does not make sense because Anna and her husband were alive in 1732. Perhaps Johann's father died in 1771.

Gen.IX-244. Wilhelm Sterniske (c.1800-c.1888), the son of Gen.VIII-212. Georg Sterniske (junior, c.1780-c.1842) was the owner of that property in 1842. This may have been the Wilhelm Sternitzke from Gross Ujeschütz who owned a Häuserstelle in Gross Ujeschütz on the 17th of May in 1877. Wilhelm was married to Karoline (née Pache) Sternitzke. She was a widow in 1888. She sold Häuserstelle in Gross Ujeschütz to the Schirm family in 1899.

Notes by JWS:

George (c.1510-c.1754, SN1) - Blasius the Elder (c.1544-c.1615, SN22) - Gregor (c.1580-1678, SN200) - Johann (1610-1672, SN273) - Gregor (c.1655-1714) – Daniel (1697-after 1756, SN49).

Other variations of Daniel's name from the Catholic church records included: Scierniske, Schiernißke, Tschiernißcke and Sciernisko. He was listed as Daniel Sternitzke in the property transfer records for Gross Ujeschütz.

Daniel Sterniske (1697-after 1762, SN49) was the son of Gregor Tschiernißko (c.1655-1714) and Ursula (née Sebranke) Sciernisko. Daniel was baptized at the Powitzko Catholic Church on the 3rd of April in 1697. The baptism record shows the family was living at Domnowitz at that time. See the Family of Gregor Sciernisko (c.1655-1714), c.1655 to 1762 Domnowitz.

The record books from the Catholic church at Powitzko listed the baptism sponsor Susanna Sciernisko as the wife the Cauponis (innkeeper) Danielis Sciernisko from Brisie (Briesche) on the 30th of November in 1724. Daniel apparently was the owner of a farm at Domnowitz during the time he owned the inn. Susanna Sciernisko, the wife of the Colonorium (farmer) Danielis Sciernisko at Domnowitz, was listed as a baptism sponsor on the 25th of October in 1725. Wilhelm Starnitzki recorded that Daniel Sterniske purchased the Briesche Kretscham (inn) from Martin Tilgner on the 3rd of May in 1729. He sold the Kretscham to Anton Wolff on the 8th of July 1735. Daniel Sternitzke from Ujeschütz bought property (probably farmland) from Daniel Mohaubt on the 21st January in 1762. Daniel Mohaubt was the second husband of the widow Hedwig Sternitzke (the mother of Daniel Sternitzke). See the End of Chapter Notes and Additional Information by JWS: Property Transfers for the Inn at Briesche 1735 to 1906.

Daniel Schiernißke married Maria Gollý at the Powitzko Catholic Church on the 3rd of October in 1734. The marriage record listed the groom as a widower and Kretschmer (innkeeper) in Briesche. The bride was the daughter of Hannß Gollý a Pauer (farmer) from Spridkowitz.

Hannß Schiernißke, the two years old son of Haußmann Daniel Schiernißke from Domnowitz, was buried at the Catholic church in Powitzke on the 21st of August in 1741. Hannß was born around 1739.

Daniel Schiernißke (junior) was baptized at the Catholic Church in Powitzko on the 8th of January in 1744. He was the son of Haußmann Daniel Schiernißke and his wife Maria (née Golin) Schiernißke from Domnowitz.

Friedrich Tschiernißcke was baptized at the Catholic Church in Powitzko on the 10th of July in 1747. He was the son of Haußmann Daniel Tschiernißcke and his wife Maria (née Gohlin) Tschiernißcke from Domnowitz.

Martin Scirnisko was baptized at the Lutheran Church in Pawellau on the 27th of October in 1756. His baptism was recorded at the Catholic Church in Powitzko as a Lutheran baptism. His father was recorded as the Haußmann Daniel Scirnisko from Domnowitz. The name of the mother was not listed.

Notes by JWS:

The surname variations associated with Georg (1707-1780, SN143) included: Sterniske, Stierniske, Sternitzko and Sternitzke. Wilhelm Starnitzki identified him as Georg Sterniske in his discussion of Georg's baptism and available church books (see Book I: Chapter 2). Wilhelm noted (on page 75R) there were 3 stillborn children during the first marriage of Georg Sternitzke. They must have been in addition to the 4 children that were named (Daniel, Johann, Susanna and Georg).

Karl Sille transcribed the 12 April 1737 purchase by Georg Stierniske of his father's property at Briesche (Sille 015, page 14). The transcribed record of that purchase appears to be from a Schoppenbuch for Briesche. In the Ahnenliste Robert Starnitzki, Karl Sille recorded Georg as George Sternitzke, and he listed the following data for George: Freigärtner und Scholze at Briesche: baptized at Schlottau on the 13th of March in 1707, married Rosina Knur at Polnisch Hammer on the 10th of November in 1739, George died at Briesche on the 6th of August in 1780.

Wilhelm Starnitzki listed Georg as Georg Sternitzko on the family tree of Gotthold Sternitzke. It is interesting that the ancestors of Georg were listed on that document with the surname Scirnisko, and the descendants of Georg were listed with the surname Sternitzke. I do not think Wilhelm Starnitzki intended to imply Georg Sternitzko was literally the transition point between the use of the Scirnisko and Sternitzke variations. But, perhaps the use of the -ko variation became less common after Georg's generation. See Chapter 14: Ancestor Table for Gotthold Sternitzke from Friedrichskirch.

Notes by JWS:

Gottlieb Sterniske (c.1823-c.1853, SN195) was probably the son of Christian Sterniske (c.1790-c.1844, SN30). The inn at Briesche was transferred from Christian Sterniske (SN30) to Gottlieb Sterniske (SN195) on the 26th of January in 1844. It was transferred to Gottlieb Becker on the 22nd of April in 1853, possibly because of the death of Gottlieb Sterniske.

The inn was transferred to Karl Sternitzke (1824-c.1878, SN347) on the 3rd of January in 1859. Karl was the son of Christian Sterniske (SN30). Karl was about one year younger than Gottlieb Sterniske. Notes by JWS:

The property transfer table for Klein Ujeschütz does not show a property transfer for a Gregor Sternitzke around 1698.

Maria, the daughter of Gregory Sciernisko and Eva Sciernisko was baptized on the 24th of March in 1690 at the Catholic Church in Schawoine.

Eva and Adam were apparently twins. See Book III, Chapter 2, Village of Schawoine in Trebnitz County: Records at the Schawoine Catholic Church 1675 to 1707, Gregor Sciernisko Family.

Notes by JWS:

Hermann Reinhold Sternitzke purchased Rodeland (cleared land, former woodland) in Gross Ujeschütz in 1887 from a Mr. Tilgner.

Karl Sille met an elderly gentleman in 1917 named Reinhold Sternitzke who was from Trebnitz. They discussed Reinhold's ancestors in the Sille family. Reinhold was the son of Christiane Caroline (née Sille) Sternitzke, who married Karl Friedrich Sternitzke, the innkeeper at Briesche. That man was certainly Hermann Reinhold Sternitzke (SN248). See the End of Chapter Notes and Additional Information by JWS: Property Transfers for the Inn at Briesche 1735 to 1906. Elisabeth Sternitzke (a Freigärtner from Briesche) was one of the baptismal sponsors for Susanna Helena Nitschke, on the 17th of October in 1830 at the Protestant Church in Massel. This was probably Marie Elisabeth (née Drechsler) Sternitzke, the wife of Johann (SN316).

Susanna Helena Nitschke was born on the 1st of October in 1830 at Jeschütz in Trebnitz County. She was the daughter of the Freigärtner Johann Nitschke and his wife Rosina (née Krehnel) Nitschke. Johann Gottlieb Sternitzke (1815-after 1822), the son of Johann Sternitzke (SN316) was born at Briesche in 1815. He was a Freigärtner at Kawallen. He married Johanna Elisabeth Schubert at Kawallen, who was listed as Johanne Sternitzke, an Auszüglerin (retired farmer) in the 1901 census for Kawallen. They had had three known children: Ernst Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke (c.1844-1886), Anna Rosina Sternitzke (1845-1913) and Karl Herrmann Sternitzke (1850-1876).

Anna Rosina Sternitzke, the daughter of Johann Gottlieb Sternitzke and Johanna Elisabeth (née Schubert) Sternitzke, was born at Kawallen on the 25th of August in 1845. She was baptized a Protestant on the 3rd of September in 1845 at Lindenwaldau in Trebnitz County. Anna Rosina married Johann Gottfried Raake on the 13th of June in 1869 at Trebnitz in Trebnitz County. Johann's surname was sometimes written as Raacke. Johann Gottfried Raake was born at Schweretau (a farmstead about 4 miles west of Trebnitz) on the 15th of April in 1840. He was the son of Gottlieb Raacke (1800-1878) and Elisabeth (née Bannert) Raacke. Johann Gottfried Raake and Anna Rosina (née Sternitzke) Raake were the great-great-grandparents of Wilfried W. Hübner. See Book III: Chapter 1, Village of Kawallen in Trebnitz County. Johann Gottlieb Sternitzke (1815-1896), Circa 1815 Briesche, 1845 to 1896 Kawallen.

Susanna Helene Sternitzke, the daughter of Johann Sternitzke (SN316) and Marie Elisabet (née Drechsler) Sternitzke, married Friedrich Wilhelm Bartsch around 1850. Their daughter, Anna Rosina Auguste Bartsch was born at Polnisch Hammer around 1851. Anna Rosina Auguste Bartsch married Heinrich Schmidt at Gräbschen on the 12th of December in 1875. Susanna Helene (née Sternitzke) Bartsch married Gustav Carl Reim around 1857. They had three children at Pinkotschine near Sulau in Militsch County and then moved to Gräbschen near Breslau. See the Family of Susanna Helene (née Sternitzke) Reim, 1858 to 1861 Pinkotschine, 1858 to 1892 Gräbschen.

Three sons of Johann Sternitzke (SN316) and Marie Elisabet (née Drechsler) Sternitzke were named Johann. There were records of children of Johann Sternitzke from Briesche, but for two children it is difficult to identify which Johann was the father.

David Sternicki, the 28 years old son of Johann Sternicki and Elisabeth (née Dresler) Sternicki married Barbara Urbanowska (20 years old) in 1858, in the Protestant Church at the town Schildberg, Schildberg County, Posen. The groom's parents were still living at the time of the wedding. The bride was the daughter of Martin Urbanowski (who was deceased at the time of the wedding).

Johann Sternitzke and his wife Elisabeth (née Wegner) Sternitzke had a daughter named Auguste Sternitzke who was born at Briesche on the 8th of February in 1873. See below: the Birth and Death of Auguste Sternitzke, 1873 Briesche and 1892 Gräbschen in Breslau County.

Susanna Helene Sternitzky, the daughter of the Freigärtner Johann Sternitzky from Briesche, married the soldier Gottlieb Heinrich on the 9th of January in 1843. See the end of chapter notes: the Marriage of Susanna Helene Sternitzky, January 1843 Berlin.

End of Chapter Notes and Additional Information by JWS:

Property Transfers for the Inn at Briesche 1735 to 1906

Handwritten notes in file Sille 016 (page 14) listed the dates of property transfers and owners of the Kretscham (inn) at Briesche. A note on that page showed that the Kretscham at Briesche was property number 21 in the village, and that it included more than 15 hektars (37 acres) of taxable land.

- Daniel Sterniske (SN49) sold the inn to Anton Wolff on the 8th of July in 1735.
- The inn was sold to Christian Garbsch on the 13th of February in 1752.
- The inn was sold to Christoph Garbsch on the 28th of February in 1767.
- Christian Sterniske (SN30) purchased the inn from his father-in-law Christian Garbisch on the 26th of August in 1818.
- The inn was sold to Gottlieb Sterniske (SN195) on the 26th of January in 1844.
- The inn was sold to Gottlieb Becker on the 22nd of April in 1853. Johanna Christiane (née Schlange) Sterniske, the widow of Johann Sterniske, married Daniel Gottlieb Traugott Becker (1811-1891) at Kainowe on the 17th of September in 1833. Johann Sterniske had been a Freibauer and Kretschmer at Domnowitz prior to his death on the 25th of January in 1833.
- The inn was sold to Karl Sternitzke (1824-c.1878, SN347) on the 3rd of January in 1859. Karl married Christiane Caroline Sille in 1867.
- The inn was transferred to the widow Karoline Sternitzke (maiden name Sille, widow of Karl Sternitzke) from Briesche on the 15th of October in 1878.
- The inn was owned by the Gastwirt Hermann Reinhold Sternitzke (c.1860-after 1917, SN248) from Briesche from the 18th of January in 1883 to the 9th of August in 1906.

Karl Sille's notes are difficult to read on that page and open to interpretation. They generally correspond with the information from the table from Wilhelm Starnitzki. The only odd discrepancy is Karl Sille's note which listed the death date of Karl Sternitzke as before October of 1874. The table in Wilhelm Starnitzki's manuscript showed Karl Sternitzke died before October of 1878, which corresponds with the transfer of the inn to his widow Karoline Sternitzke on the 15th of October in 1878.

Sternitzke Family from Briesche and

Elisabeth Sternitzke, 1830

Elisabeth Sternitzke (a Freigärtner's wife from Briesche) and Helena Sternitzke (a Freigärtner's wife from Polnisch Hammer) were two of the seven baptismal sponsors for Susanna Helena Nitschke at the Protestant Church at Massel in 1830. These sponsors were probably Marie Elisabet (née Drechsler) Sternitzke, the wife of Johann Sternitzke (c.1785-after 1858, SN316), and Helene (née Grzmehle) Sternitzke, the wife of the Freigärtner Christian Gottlieb Sternitzke/Sterniske (c.1800-after 1856) from Polnisch Hammer.

The other baptismal sponsors were: the Freigärtner's wife Anna Rosina Sebrantke from Briesche, the Häusler's wife Helene Dombrowe from Briesche, the Freihäusler Johann Meinert from Gross Zauche, the Freigärtner Johann Gluche from Briesche and the Freigärtner Friedrich Nitschke from Briesche.

Susanna Helena Nitschke was born at Jeschütz on the 1st of October in 1830, and baptized at Massel on the 17th of October in 1830. She was the 4th child of the Freigärtner Johann Nitschke and his wife Rosina (née Krehnel) Nitschke.

Elisabeth Sternitzke, 1840

Elisabeth Sternitzke, a Dreschgärtner's wife from Briesche was one of the baptismal sponsors for Ernst Benjamin Gorstelle at the Protestant Church at Massel in 1840. This may have also been Marie Elisabet (née Drechsler) Sternitzke, the wife of Johann Sternitzke (c.1785-after 1858, SN316). Johann received his father's property (a Dreschgärtnerstelle) at Briesche in 1816.

The other baptismal sponsors were: the Freigärtner Gottlieb Schlinsog from Briesche, the Freigärtner Joseph Baroke from Briesche and the Dreschgärtner's wife Helene Marken from Polnisch Hammer.

Ernst Benjamin Gorstelle was born at Neuwalde on the 10th of November in 1840, and baptized at Massel on the 15th of November in 1840. He was the 6th child of the Erbkretschmer (hereditary innkeeper) Friedrich Wilhelm Gorstelle and his wife Rosina (née Schrowotke) Gorstelle.

Christian Sternitzke, 1845

Christian Sternitzke, an Einwohner (resident) of Briesche, was one of the baptismal sponsors for Friedrich Wilhelm Gorstelle at the Protestant Church at Massel in 1845. This Christian Sternitzke may have the Christian Sternitzke who was an Erbkretschmer and Gerichtsscholz at Briesche (c. 1790-c.1859, SN 30), and the husband of Susanne (née Garbsch) Sternitzke.

The other baptismal sponsors were: the Dreschgärtner's wife Susanna Helena Marke from Polnisch Hammer, the Freihäusler Gottfried Schlinsog from Briesche, the Dreschgärtner Carl Schurzmann from Wingerau and the Häusler Joseph Baroke from Briesche.

Friedrich Wilhelm Gorstelle was born at Neuwalde on the 9th of June in 1845, and baptized at Massel on the 15th of June in 1845. He was the 8th child of the Erbkretschmer (hereditary innkeeper) Friedrich Wilhelm Gorstelle and his wife Rosina (née Schrowotke) Gorstelle.

Johann Sternitzke and Christiane Sternitzke, 1861

Johann Sternitzke and Christiane Sternitzke, Freigärtners at Briesche, were two of the three baptismal sponsors for Anna Christiane Caroline Hobitz at the Protestant Church at Massel in 1861. They may have been husband and wife. Johann may have been the son of Johann Sternitzke (c.1785-after 1858, SN316) and Marie Elisabet (née Drechsler) Sternitzke. The third sponsor was the Freigärtner Gottlieb Kobitzke from Ellguth.

Anna Christiane Caroline Hobitz was born at Ellguth on the 27th of February in 1861, and she was baptized at Massel on the 1st of March in 1861. She was the 6th child of the deceased Freigärtner Gottlieb Hobitz and Susanna (née Sternitzke) Hobitz. Notes on the baptism record show that this was the third marriage of Gottlieb Hobitz, and that he died on the 16th of November in 1860. See Book III: Chapter 2, the Family of Anna Susanna (née Sternitzke) Hobitz, 1852 to 1861 Kloch-Ellguth.

Birth, Marriage and Death of Gottlieb Sternitzke (1832-1911)

Gottlieb Sternitzke (1832-1911) was born at Briesche on the 26th of January in 1832, the son of Johann Sternitzke (1800-after 1832, SN321) and Susanna (née Knur) Sternitzke. Gottlieb Sternitzke and Anna Christiane Sternitzke (1833-1910) were married at Peterwitz on the 2nd of November of 1858. Anna Christiane's maiden name was also Sternitzke. She was the daughter of Johann Christian Sternitzke and Susanna (née Fabische) Sternitzke, who both died at Peterwitz. Anna Christiane Sternitzke was born at Peterwitz on the 17th of April of 1833. See the Family of Johann Christian Sternitzke, 1816 Trebnitz, 1821 & 1833 Peterwitz. She preceded her husband in death, dying at Breslau on the 21st of March in 1910. Gottlieb died at Breslau in April of 1911. See Book III: Chapter 1, City of Breslau, the Deaths of Gottlieb and Anna Christiane Sternitzke, 1910 & 1911 City of Breslau.

Children of Gottlieb Sternitzke and Anna Christiane (née Sternitzke) Sternitzke

Prior to their move from Briesche to Breslau, Gottlieb and Anna Christiane Sternitzke had at least four children who were born at Briesche: Hermann Friedrich Gottlieb Sternitzke in 1862, Karl Heinrich Julius Sternitzke in 1863, Luise Juliane Bertha Sternitzke in 1870 and Reinhold Fritz Adolf Sternitzke in 1877. There is evidence that shows they had a fifth child who was born at Briesche: Otilie Sternitzke was born in 1859.

Birth and Death of daughter Otilie Sternitzke (1859-1894)
and the Birth of her son Reinhold Fritz Richard Sternitzke, 1889

Reinhold Fritz Richard Sternitzke was born at Breslau on the 2nd of October in 1889. He was the son of the a Ledigen (an unmarried woman) Otilie Sternitzke. She was a Protestant and she was employed as a Köchin (cook). She lived at Mehlgasse 17 (now Ludwika Rydygiera Street, about 3 blocks north of the University Bridge). A Hebamme (midwife) named Ernestine Gregor signed this birth record on 5 October 1889. Ernestine Gregor lived at Mehlgasse 5. A handwritten note at the bottom of his birth record identified the second marriage of Reinhold Fritz Richard Sternitzke on the 13th of August in 1938 at Potsdam.

Richard Fritz Reinhold Sternitzke was baptized on the 4th of October in 1889 at the Elftausend Jungfrauen Protestant Church. His mother, Otilie Sternitzke lived at Mehlgasse 17a at that time. Otilie was the daughter of the Arbeiter Gottlieb Sternitzke who lived in Breslau. The baptismal sponsors were: the Dienstmädchen Bertha Sternitzke and the Bäcker Heinrich Sternitzke from Lissa.

The baptismal sponsor Bertha Sternitzke was Otilie's sister Luise Juliane Bertha Sternitzke who was born at Briesche in 1870 and married Simon Sura in Breslau on the 6th of July in 1893. See the Marriage and Family of Luise Juliane Bertha Sternitzke, 6 July 1893 to 1929 City of Breslau. The baptismal sponsor Heinrich Sternitzke was Otilie's brother Karl Heinrich Julius Sternitzke who was born at Briesche between the 12th of January and the 4th of May in 1863. See the Family of Karl Heinrich Julius Sternitzke and Bertha Luise Anna Klara (née Hartmann) Sternitzke, 1895 to 1943 City of Breslau.

The Arbeiter Tochter (daughter of a laborer) Otilie Sternitzke who lived at Mehlgasse 57 was one of the baptismal sponsors for Frieda Auguste Bertha Sternitzke on the 14th of March in 1893. The baby was the daughter of the Hilfsweichensteller (assistant railroad switchman) Hermann Sternitzke (a Protestant) from Klein Tschansch and his wife Auguste (née Deutschmann) Sternitzke (a Catholic). Hermann Sternitzke was a son of Gottlieb Sternitzke and Anna Christiane Sternitzke.

The ledige Strickerin (unmarried knitting machine operator) Otilie Sternitzke died at Breslau on the 29th of November in 1894, at the age of 35 years and 1 month. That would make her calculated birth date as the 29th of October in 1859. She was buried at the cemetery for the Elftausend Jungfrauen Protestant Church in Breslau on the 2nd of December in 1894. Prior to her death she lived in Breslau at Mehlgasse 57. That was the same address listed in the 1897 Breslau address book for the Arbeiter (laborer) Gottlieb Sternitzke.

Birth, Marriage and Death of son
Hermann Friedrich Gottlieb Sternitzke,
1862, 1891 & 1941

Hermann Friedrich Gottlieb Sternitzke (1862-1941) was born at Briesche on the 6th of February in 1862. Hermann's death record shows he married Auguste Rosina Deutschmann on the 10th of January in 1891 at Breslau (recorded at Breslau Standesamt I, record number 9 in 1891). Hermann Friedrich Gottlieb Sternitzke died at Breslau on the 17th of May in 1941. See Book III, Chapter 1: City of Breslau, the Marriage, Family and Death of Hermann Friedrich Gottlieb Sternitzke, 1891 to 1943 City of Breslau.

Birth of son Karl Heinrich Julius Sternitzke, 1863

Karl Heinrich Julius Sternitzke (1863-c.1927) was born at Briesche between the 12th of January and the 4th of May in 1863. That range was calculated from his ages (35 and 46 years old) in records of him as a marriage witness in 1898 and 1910. See the Family of Karl Heinrich Julius Sternitzke and Bertha Luise Anna Klara (née Hartmann) Sternitzke, 1895 to 1943 City of Breslau.

Birth and Marriage of Pauline Juliane Emilie Sternitzke, 1868 & 1900

Pauline Juliane Emilie Sternitzke was born at Briesche on the 21st of May in 1868. In 1900, she was living at Alte Jakobstraße 1 in Berlin. She was a Protestant. Her parents the Arbeiter Gottlieb Sternitzke and Christiane (née Sternitzke) Sternitzke were both living in Breslau. She married Franz Klar at Berlin on the 26th of September in 1900.

Franz Klar was a Catholic. He was born on the 31st of December in 1871 at Hubelschwardt, the county seat of Hubelschwardt County in Lower Silesia. He was the son of the Arbeiter (laborer) Franz Klar and his wife Anna (née Schinndler) Klar.

Birth and Marriage of daughter Luise Juliane Bertha Sternitzke, 1870 & 1893

Luise Juliane Bertha Sternitzke (who was identified as Bertha Sura on the Breslau records for the births of their children) was born at Briesche on the 15th of July in 1870. She married Simon Sura in Breslau on the 6th of July in 1893. See Book III, Chapter 1: City of Breslau, Marriage and Family of Luise Juliane Bertha Sternitzke, 6 July 1893 to 1929 City of Breslau for the transcriptions of the records of their marriage and the births of their children.

Birth, Marriage, Family, Military Service and Death of son Reinhold Sternitzke

Reinhold Fritz Adolf Sternitzke (1877-1916) was born at Briesche on the 21st of January in 1877. Reinhold married Katharina Müller at Berlin on the 13th of October of 1906. Katharina was born on the 27th of October of 1879 at Lyck, Braunsberg County in East Prussia. She was the daughter of the deceased Schneidermeister (master tailor) Thaddäus Müller and Dorothea (née Fischer) Müller. The groom was a Protestant, employed as an Arbeiter (laborer) and he lived at Junkerstraße 3 in Berlin. The bride was a Catholic, employed as a Schneiderin (tailor) and lived at Kurfürstenstraße 53 in Berlin. The marriage record shows the grooms' parents the Arbeiter Gottlieb Sternitzke and his wife Anna Christiane (née Sternitzke) Sternitzke were both living at Breslau at the time of the wedding. The bride's father died at Layß in Braunsberg County of East Prussia. The bride's mother was living at Charlottenburg at the time the wedding.

Reinhold and Katharina (née Müller) Sternitzke had a son, Fritz Adolf Sternitzke, who was born in Berlin on the 27th of June in 1907. Fritz married Anna Ilse Dora Feinbube, the daughter of Wilhelm Feinbube and Anna (née Muth) Feinbube. Fritz and Anna Sternitzke had one daughter: Helga Anna Ilse Sternitzke.

Reinhold Sternitzke (who was born at Briesche in Trebnitz County) served in the German Army during the First World War. He served as a Gefreiter (Lance Corporal) in the Landwehr-Infanterie Regiment No. 10, 1st Company. He was listed in three military casualty reports. The first two reports incorrectly listed him as Reinhold Sternitzko. He was listed as missing in action on the 20th of November in 1914, and as a prisoner of war on the 23rd of December in 1915. A military casualty report dated the 22nd of September in 1916 corrected the spelling of his last name, and listed Reinhold Sternitzke from Briesche. It reported he died as a prisoner of war.

Breslau Address Book 1897

The 1897 Breslau address book listed the Arbeiter (laborer) Gottlieb Sternitzke as a resident at Mehlgasse 57 Parterre (ground floor, 5 blocks north of the University Bridge). Mehlgasse was later named Gustav-Müller-Strasse, and is now named Ludwika Rydygiera Street.

Marriage of Susanna Helene Sternitzky January 1843 Berlin

Military records for the Berlin Garrison Protestant Church listed the Aufgebot (proclamation of marriage banns) for Gottlieb Heinrich and Susanna Helene Sternitzky on the 9th of January 1843. Gottlieb Heinrich was a soldier in the Prussian Army Artillerie Brigade (Garde).

Gottlieb Heinrich was born at Deutsch Hammer in Trebnitz County of Silesia. He was the son of the Häusler Gottlieb Heinrich who lived at Deutsch Hammer. Susanna Helene Sternitzky was born at Briesche County in Trebnitz County. She was listed as the daughter of the Freigärtner Johann Sternitzky from Briesche. She was probably Susanna Helene Sternitzke who was born in 1823. See the table above: Sternitzke Family Personal Data for Briesche, the Family of Johann Sternitzke (c.1785-after 1858, SN316).

Birth, Marriage and Death of Anna Rosina Sternitzke 1859 Briesche, 1910 to 1937 Breslau

Anna Rosina Sternitzke was born on the 10th of March in 1859 at Briesche in Trebnitz County. She was the daughter of the unmarried Johanna Sternitzke, who married the Arbeiter (laborer) Mr. Nowack after Rosina's birth. Johanna (née Sternitzke) Nowack died at Gräbschen in Breslau County before her daughter's wedding in 1910.

Anna Rosina Sternitzke married the Brunnenbauer (well digger) Hermann Julius Freitag on the 8th of February in 1910 at Breslau. See the marriage record transcription in Book III: Chapter 1: Marriage of Anna Rosina Sternitzke, 8 February 1910 City of Breslau.

A note on her marriage record shows that Anna Rosina (née Sternitzke) Freitag died at Breslau in 1937. Her death was recorded on record number 104 in the 1937 death record book at Breslau Standesamt I. The death record was signed by the Revieroberwachmeister der Schutzpolizei (precinct senior watch master of the protection police). Kurt Freitag. Kurt was probably Anna Rosina's son. It shows that Anna Rosina was a widow before she died, and that she had died at home on the 15th of January in 1937. Kurt lived at Weistrizstraße 27 (now Bystrzycka Street, about 2 miles west of the old city walls, in the Pöppelwitz suburb). A separate address was not listed for Anna Rosina, so she probably lived with Kurt Freitag.

Birth and Marriage of Martha Maria Geisler 1868 Briesche and 1904 Breslau

Martha Maria Geisler was born at Briesche on the 5th of July in 1868. She was the daughter of the Tischlermeister (master carpenter) Moritz Geisler and his wife Johanna née Sternitzki (or Sternitzke). The registrar who completed the marriage record for Martha Maria Geisler recorded the last name of Martha's mother as either Sternitzki first and then tried to correct it to Sternitzke (or as Sternitzke first and then Sternitzki). I am unable to determine which occurred first. Here is a copy of the recorded name.

Martha Maria Geisler married Gustav Heinrich Wilhelm Kranz in Breslau on the 27th of May in 1904. Martha's parents were listed as deceased on her marriage record in 1904. They died at Briesche. Martha's occupation was a Dienstmädchen (maid servant) and she lived in Breslau at Anderssenstrasse 16 (about ½ mile west of the old city walls, now Młodych Techników Street). One of the witnesses at the wedding was the Schuhmacher (shoemaker) Gustav Geisler, who was 31 years old and also lived in Breslau at Anderssenstrasse 16. Gustav was probably the bride's younger brother. Martha was a Protestant.

The groom was an Arbeiter (laborer). Gustav Heinrich Wilhelm Kranz was also a Protestant. He lived in Breslau at Matthiasstraße 12 (one block north of the University Bridge, now Bolesława Drobnera Street). Gustav was born on the 18th of July in 1876 at Zechelwitz in Trebnitz County. He was the son of the deceased Dominialknecht (estate laborer) August Kranz (from Luzine in Trebnitz County) and his wife Christiane née Ibscher who lived in Breslau.

Hermann Kranz was a witness at the wedding. He was 31 years old and also an Arbeiter. He lived in Breslau at Neue Junkernstraße 3 (as it was known in 1892, shown as Herzogstraße on an 1850 map, 4 blocks northeast from the University Bridge, now Jana Kilińskiego Street). He was probably the groom's younger brother.

They lived at Gräbschen in Breslau County. Gräbschen is now a southwestern suburb of the city Wrocław. Susanna was a sister of Auguste's father Johann Sternitzke.

Auguste Sternitzke died at the home of her aunt Susanne (née Sternitzke) Reim, at Gräbschen on the 15th of September in 1892. Auguste died at the age of 18 years old. Both of Auguste's parents had died before Auguste's death.

Notes by JWS:

Some of the Wilhelm's notes and his copies of records from these sources were lost in a fire during the Second World War. Most of the original records were lost during the destruction of Silesia by the Soviet Union and the degermanization program in the new Polish territories following World War II. The Russians entered Trebnitz on the 25th of January in 1945 and destroyed about 80% of the buildings in the city. The Trebnitz records at the State Archives in Wrocław were also damaged by a flooding of the Oder River in July of 1997.

1968 Preface by Karl Sille

By good fortune I am in possession of a complete, and to my knowledge the only existing first edition printing of the “Memorial Book for the Bicentennial Anniversary of the Protestant Church of Pawellau, in the Trebnitz Parish on the 6th of July 1909.”

I decided to duplicate six copies of Pastor Conrad’s important work. While it was arranged to be of interest for many of the old families of Pawellau, it includes not only the church history, but is also the history of the whole Trebnitz region. I have faithfully held (as much as possible) to the original manuscript’s words and page structure, and have also attached the original supplemental exterior view of the church and a photocopy from the title page of the original, to represent the impression of the original edition, except for a larger format due to the typescript I used. Furthermore, I thought it to be appropriate to add two views of the inside of the church, provided by the Gemeinschaft evangelischer Schlesier (Community of Protestant Silesians) at Hannover. I also appended two indices that were not included with the original: the place and name indices that I hope will help future users.

Now this work goes out thus as a sign of devotion to the homeland of the fathers.

Notes by JWS:

After Wilfried Hübner and I translated this book, an electronic copy of the original book and a translation was provided to us by Mr. Richard Harrer (1948-2020) of Eagle Harbor, Michigan. His grandmother was Ida Minna Anna Sternitzke. Mr. Harrer wrote a book about his branch of the Sternitzke family tree who came from the Silesian villages Gross Kainowe, Ujeschütz, Pawellau and Pristelwitz. His book, Descendants of Fredrich Sternitzke, included a translation of the original Pawellau bicentennial book kept within his family, which was translated by his cousins Martin and Walter Sternitzke. His book also contains fascinating transcriptions of family letters from 1907 to 1970, providing glimpses of the personal histories of his Sternitzke family members in Silesia.

1909 Preface by Pastor Ernst Conrad

I wrote this booklet and title page, for you, dear parish. For two hundred years your house of God still stands. I have investigated its and your history, to hand over to you today this anniversary book to think about and consider.

It is my heartfelt wish that your home church will help make your life proper and important!

Notes from the Translators

In the course of the investigation of our own descent from families of Trebnitz County in Silesia we received a copy of Karl Sille's typed reproduction of the document written by Pastor Ernst Conrad. Of church and regional history. That copy was sent to us by Martin Kugler at the end of 2006. Unfortunately, the photographs Karl Sille described in his preface were not preserved with the copy we received. But, visits to the Pawellau Church in 2008 and 2009 have resulted in current photographs of the church, and copies of photographs that were originally taken in 1909 and were probably included in Pastor Conrad's original book. Additional current and historical photographs of the village buildings and the church, and architectural plans for the church can be found at <https://polska-org.pl/>. Enter Pawłów Trzebnicki in the search feature on that webpage to see those images.

A bilingual German and English version of this document is available at the Internet website <http://www.huebner-row.de/genealogiesternitzke/index.html>.

Regarding the Earliest Period of Our Villages and Their Rise to Become Church Locations (About 1370 AD)

Most of the Silesian villages and smaller cities that currently exist, including our Pawellau, originated after the introduction of Christianity in Silesia. The history of Pawellau and its parochial affiliated village Brietzen had close ties to the history of the cloister at Trebnitz until the secularization of the cloister.

Note by JWS:

Brietzen is now called Brzyków. Its population was 206 in 1938.

According to legend, in the year 1203 Duke Heinrich I (the Bearded) of Silesia founded the Noble Young Woman's Stift of the Catholic Cistercian Order as a reward for his miraculous rescue from death. The Stift was located where the Malteser Hospital stands today in Trebnitz.

Notes by JWS:

A Stift was a Christian foundation or institution that included a convent, monastery, seminary, school or home for the elderly. Local land was donated to the Stift and farmed by the local villagers who paid rent to the Stift with harvested crops, products and services. The Trebnitz Stift included a convent. Duke Heinrich I, known as Henry the Bearded, was the Duke of Breslau from 1201 to 1238. He married Hedwig, the daughter of Bertold III, the Duke of Croatia, in 1186. Hedwig was born in Bavaria in 1174 and canonized as St. Hedwig in 1266.

Duke Heinrich I was active in transplanting German culture into the Slavic territory he ruled, with real estate and landholdings to provide for the proper welfare and material maintenance of the nuns. In that same year, he traveled around Trebnitz County and had earth walls constructed and trees planted to designate the Stift's properties. Those boundaries were later identified with boundary stones marked with the initials of the Stift's name. It was under this first donation of properties to the cloister, including estates and land, that Brietzen was first mentioned. Brietzen is listed in the 1203 deed of donation as "villa Briccii" (Briccii Manor). Briccii Manor was later known by other names closer to the Brietzen spelling, such as: Brisovo, Brczow, Brziczaw, Britzaw etc. Duke Heinrich received the "villa Briccii" from Johannes, the son of Briccius, who was probably the previous owner. Duke Heinrich donated the villa Johannis Briccii to the Trebnitz convent in 1215. He also acquired another section of land called the Nicolajovice or Nicolayovo, named by a certain Nicolaus, son of Gregor.

Notes by JWS:

In the 12th century, there was a Polish custom called ujazd (in Latin, circuitio) in which a duke would designate the boundary of a privileged area by ceremonially riding its boundary. The paragraph above describes the boundary marking ceremony performed by Duke Henry I. Güter und Vorwerke were estates and land owned by the duke. Vorwerken did not include the peasant's tenant farms under the administrative authority of the village mayors.

It is doubtful that Pawellau was part of the cloister's property prior to 1215 by land acquisitions or through an earlier border change. The name Paulovo was first mentioned in a deed dated the 5th of February in 1215, whereby Pope Innocenz III accepted the land gift from Duke Heinrich and took the convent under his protection. The duke received the Villa Paulovo from its previous owner and probably its founder, the Canon Paulus of Breslau. This occurred before the second larger property donation to the convent. The Villa Paulovo was later known as: Paulovici, Paulo, Paulov, Pawlow, Pawlaw and Pawlo.

Notes by JWS:

A canon in the Catholic religion is a member of a chapter of priests belonging to a religious order assigned to a cathedral.

The property named Pawellau was affiliated with the convent from 1203 to 1208. A property named Redissevo (also called Rendissevo in 1245 and Radissevo in 1266) was transferred to the convent in 1204. Redissevo was mentioned as being in the vicinity of Villa Paulovo in the 1204 property transfer. Villa Paulovo later became our Pawellau.

But however, it is certain that both communities, Brietzen as well as Pawellau, already existed in the 13th century as properties of the cloister at Trebnitz, and were blessed with the cultural benefits of their association with the Stift during later centuries.

Note by Pastor Conrad: Schimmerau, currently the third location of our church parish was mentioned (written as Zemirovo) as one of the properties transferred to the Trebnitz cloister in 1208. In the year 1245, Schimmerau (written as Semirovo) became one of the properties of the Breslau diocese (Bishop's Manor) until the secularization in 1810.

Note by JWS:

Schimmerau is now called Wszemirow. It had a population of 449 in 1938.

The Trebnitz cloister Stift had a large effect on the culture of the region and the people. It may be confidently maintained that the Stift was the first to have such an impact on the area. The condition of the country near the Oder River in Middle Silesia was described as follows by a monk of the Cistercian Cloister at Leubus (which was established around the year 1100). His description was quite true of our eastern Trebnitz area. The following is from Haeusler's History of the Principality of Öls:

“Without cultivators the country laid there covered with forest and the Polish people there were anemic. With the wooden hook plow without iron, that two oxen or cows pulled, they barely tore open the sand. There was no city in the entire country, but rather only castles with a chapel, and a market took place for the needs of the country dwellers. The people had no salt, no iron, no coins, no metal, no useful garments and no shoe making; they only pastured their herd.”

Notes by JWS:

A cloister of the Cistercian Order was at the village called Leubus (Lubiąż in Polish). Leubus was about 26 miles west of Breslau. The Geschichte des Fürstentums Öls (History of the Principality of Öls) was written by Wilhelm Haeusler, and printed at Breslau in 1883.

Conditions changed when monks and nuns were transferred from western Germany to Silesia. Together with German farmers and tradesmen, they brought German-Christian culture to the region. And what was achieved by this relationship with the Cistercian Stift at Trebnitz should remain unforgotten by us Protestants now living on the former cloister property.

In the year 1250 the Stift was granted (by Duke Heinrich III) the right to govern its settlements under German Law. The Stift made use of this right immediately and enthusiastically, so many of its local villages soon became administrated by German Law. Some of the villages affected that year, or probably soon after 1250 included: Gross Märtinau, Maluschütz, Maltschawe and other villages including our Pawellau. It is not known, when Schimmerau fell under German Law, but it was probably granted by the Bishop of Breslau. It probably occurred around the year 1300, because in 1305 Schimmerau already had village land permanently attached to the office of a village mayor and it had a church. In Lib. Fund. The following words were written in that year:

“Just as there are 51 Hufen in Schimmerau, the village mayor has 7 free Hufen, the priest has 2 Hufen”.

The exact number of villages exposed to German Law cannot be determined, but they were generally not converted individually. For example, not only in Brietzen but other villages that were originally administered by Polish Law did not have an independent community administration to document at the time when they were exposed to German Law.

Notes by JWS:

German Law was a system of legal and institutional customs imported from German-speaking lands; used for village community organization and governance in Silesia from the 12th to 16th centuries.

“Lib. Fund.” Refers to the Liber foundationis episcopatus Wratislaviensis, an early 14th century catalog of lands ruled by the Bishop of Breslau with the tithe obligations owed to the bishop (Hoffmann, pg. 7).

Hufen is the plural German word of Hufe for an area of farmland for crops, hay and pasture on a typical farm. One Hufe was equal to about 17 U.S. acres, and was equal to 30 Morgens. One Morgen was the amount of land that one man with an ox can plow in one morning. The actual amount of one Morgen varied from place to place because the amount of land that could be plowed in one day depended on the terrain.

There were probably also village mayors in the “Polish” communities throughout the area, but the authority of those “Polish” mayors was and remained restricted in many ways, compared to the authority of the mayors in German villages. The Polish village mayors also had the duty of rent collection for the landlord, responsibility for fulfilling the amounts, and punctually performing the required services for the landlord, the monarch and the church. But, the mayors of German villages were entrusted with an important authority that the remaining mayors in the Polish communities did not have. This was the right to be the chairman of the small claims court and responsible for the sentencing of the minor criminal cases.

The sessions of this small claims court (called the Gerichtskretschan) took place as a rule three times during each year, so it was usually called the “Three-thing”. The village mayor as a chairman had to convene the court, prepare and issue the necessary summonses. The court was supported by his assessors to evaluate cases and find judgments that were published. For his service, the mayor received one-third of the penalties and fines as compensation. This “third penny” payment system is the reason the local courts and sometimes the office of mayor was referred to as “der dritten Pfennig”. The cloister, rather than the mayor, was responsible for administering the lower court for the village of Brietzen.

However, the mayors of the German villages were also involved up to a certain degree in the major and high criminal cases before the “higher” courts and tribunals (Gerichtsbarkeit majus judicium, summum). The jurisdiction of the higher courts and tribunals had always been exercised earlier by the sovereign or the governors of a castle (castellani). Later, the jurisdiction was often transferred to the lords of manors (Grundherren). This transfer of jurisdiction was granted to the cloister at Trebnitz in 1416 for Pawellau and in 1575 for Brietzen. On the days of these “upper courts”, that were held in the Trebnitz cloister under the chair of the abbess or one of her authorized cloister officials, the village mayors would help negotiate cases as jurymen.

The following mayors of Pawellau are mentioned in documents: Bencko in 1353, Johann in 1371, Nicolaus in 1413, and another Nicolaus in 1453 (probably a son of the Nicolaus previously named). On the 9th of October in 1491 (from the Confirmation Book of the Trebnitz District Court of 1567 -1709, pages 274 and 593) the Abbess Anna IV granted a local mayor, Maczey Ruschig and his wife, permission to build a mill. At that time, Mayor Ruschig owned property including 6 Hufen in size, with three gardens and an area for 300 sheep. The descendants of that Maczey Ruschig held the office of mayor until the present time where the family no longer owns the property. The office no longer exists as an inherited right, but is filled through election by community directors.

Notes by JWS:

Mayor Ruschig was an Erbscholz, meaning he held the hereditary office of mayor, rather than a court appointed position. His office as mayor and his property associated with the office could be inherited.

The mayor’s office was perceived as being held as uninterrupted. But, at the end of the 18th century Gottlieb Kluge held the office after the death of David Ruschig in 1776. He was a temporary replacement, because Friedrich the son of David Ruschig was only sixteen years old at the time of his father’s death. Other than that, the hereditary office of mayor was held by the Ruschig family up to 1897. Mr. Robert Ruschig sold his 400-year-old family estate to “foreign hands” this year and now he lives as a pensioner in Trebnitz.

The earliest rural owners were mentioned in a 1371 document regarding our village: Martin Sylywka and his son Jakob, Peter Gos and Petrus Ragacz.

In 1469, Abbess Anna II granted the local farmers with the so-called Kindelbierrecht (baptism celebration right). The associated document proclaimed: “During the weeks when the wife of the mayor or any farmer is resting – a free beer of 3/8^{ths} will be free of charge. If anyone would like to hand out more to his guests, he can do so if the innkeeper approves.” The farmers thus received the same economic relief during the six weeks’ time, which had previously only been granted to the innkeepers.

Notes by JWS:

The “Sechswochenzeit” (six weeks’ time) refers to the traditional six weeks that a mother was allowed to rest following giving birth. The mother was also excused from church services during this time. By the way: this is also the source-description for the German word “Freibier” – “free beer”.

As a result of the keenly pursued local suspension, which had originated in the vicinity of Trebnitz, many (more or less populated) village economies were created in what was previously one rural community. Although serfdom had been lifted from them with the transferring of land to the inhabitants, the new landowners remained subjects of the Stift and had to pay interest and provide compulsory duty to the Stift.

First of all, they had to deliver a certain part of their field’s annual yield to the Stift. The Vollspänner (farmers with four or more oxen) had to deliver two bushels each of wheat, rye and oats (barley at that time was not yet cultivated). The Halbspänner (a farmer with two oxen) had to deliver half as much each year. Those who did not own oxen, and used day laborers to work their field had to pay one bushel of rye. Field workers without cattle or land had to pay one bushel of oats.

The Stift also received other economic products as payments of taxes, such as chickens, eggs and cheese. The forest villages also had to deliver honey in considerable quantities. Because domesticated beekeeping did not yet exist, the honey came from wild bees. From this we know that forest and moors predominantly covered the countryside. One type of product very often mentioned, as being required from single villages, for example Brietzen, was the delivery of large quantities of large and small wheels, probably for carriages and ploughs.

For all these products provided to the Stift, the subjects received legal and police protection, and in wartime the Stift provided protection through the political ruler governing the Stift. Obviously, the Stift’s taxes were necessary to share in the costs of defense by providing men, soldiers and feed to the military commander. The Erbschulz (hereditary mayor) of Pawellau, for example, was obligated to provide horse services during time of warfare.

The Stift at Trebnitz provided not only social and economic support for its subjects, but also provided dedicated religious instruction. Until around the middle of the 10th century Silesia and therefore our area around Trebnitz was still a land of pagans. Many pagan funeral sites can be found in the local area as evidence of the paganism of the inhabitants at that time. The graves present under the surface of the earth were partly made of stone and contain mainly the ashes of the dead. The ashes were stored in glazed urns of different sizes. Many very small and large urns are found together in the graves. Some of the bigger urns were probably used for sacrificial drinking and for use as censurs. Such graves with urns have been found at Massel in very large quantities, and also at various times at Pawellau. There is currently an important find at Massel on a sandy hill toward the Kommerow heath field. A site was found in 1850 on the right side of the road from Prausnitz to Pawellau, and another in 1906 to the north of the village in the field of a local farm owner named Rösner. By whom these graves were built, whether by Old Slavs, Celts, Teutons or later Slavic immigrants, has yet to be determined.

Notes by JWS:

Massel and Kommerow were villages in Trebnitz County. Massel had a population of 401 in 1939, and is now known as Masłów.

Kommerow was actually two villages one kilometer apart with adjoining fields: Gross Kommerow and Klein Kommerow. In 1939, Gross Kommerow (now Komorowo) had a population of 162, and Klein Kommerow (now Komorowko) had a population of 192.

Also, after 966 the Polish Duke Mesco with his baptism had accepted Christianity and endeavored to introduce Christianity in his country. With some difficulty it eventually spread to our area. The expansion became serious only after the establishment of the diocese at Breslau around the year 1100, and especially after the establishment of cloisters. The establishment of the cloister Stift at Trebnitz was a promoting influence of Christianity in our area. A Christian church probably existed in Trebnitz before 1146, certainly in the year 1179 and in any case before the foundation of the cloister.

A cloister Stift document from the year 1203 mentioned the Chapel of St. Peter as being located in Trebnitz. This was certainly the old Trebnitz City Church, located where the Protestant church now stands. This is the first and oldest Christian church in the area of the Trebnitz Stift. The nuns used that church until the completion of the cloister in 1219. It was from the outset the parochial church of the Trebnitz municipality, however, so it also served as the first church for the rural places around Trebnitz which had no churches of their own. One of its first priests was named Bogdan (as written in Bach's "History and Description of the Noble Maiden Cloister Stift of the Cistercian Order in Trebnitz"); and in the year 1257 it was ministered by a certain Bertholdus, who was at the same time an arch-priest (from the biography of Hedwig).

Notes by JWS:

The details for the above reference to Bach are:

Bach, Aloysius. Geschichte und Beschreibung des fürstlichen jungfräulichen Klosterstifts Cistercienser-Ordens in Trebnitz, ed. August Kastner. Archiv für die Geschichte des Bistums Breslau, vol. 2. Neisse: Commission bei Joseph Graveur, 1859.

Saint Hedwig, Duchess of Silesia, was born around 1174 at the castle of Andechs. Saint Hedwig and her husband Duke Henry of Silesia brought German culture to Silesia through the establishment and support of monasteries and convents. She died at Trebnitz in October of 1243. Two of Saint Hedwig's brothers became bishops: Ekbart of Bamberg, and Berthold of Aquileia.

After the middle of the 13th century more villages were created in the vicinity of Trebnitz, and gradually country churches were constructed in large numbers within the area of influence of the Trebnitzer Stift. By 1257 there was a tendency to build a church for every village with fifty or more Hufen of land. They became parochial churches for the smaller villages in the area. Available documents from 1250 show that before the end of the 13th century besides the city parish church and cloister church in the city of Trebnitz, there were also churches in Prausnitz, Trachenberg and Lossen. Another authentic document shows that in 1376, the following villages also had their own churches: Hochkirch, Paschkerwitz, Zirkwitz, Schlottau, Glauche, Karoschke, Peterwitz, Stroppen, and Kapsdorf.

When did our Pawellau get its first church? Unfortunately, no reliable information can be found regarding that matter. However, because Pawellau belonged to the group of settlements with 50 Hufen of land, it can be supposed with good reason that our church was founded at about the same time as the churches listed above. But in any case, our church was founded not much later than the churches in the above villages. It is quite certain that the Pawellau church was founded not as an independent parish church, but as a daughter church (ecclesia filialis) of the city parish church at Trebnitz.

The priest at that city church was also at the same time the priest for the church at Pawellau. As such, he would have originally officiated in person at both churches. Later, when his work increased at the head office of the Trebnitz parish, he would have let one his chaplains administer the Pawellau parish. This Pawellau chaplain probably had his residence in the city of Trebnitz at first. A local residence may not have been constructed at the same time as the church, although a field of two Hufen in size was dedicated for the local church property.

Unfortunately, practically nothing is known of the appearance and condition of the first Pawellau church, even though it probably stood until the construction of the current house of God. Written notes that were laid in the Turmknopf during the construction of the present church were found during repairs to the roof of the church in 1802, but those notes do not mention the old structure. It is certain that it was consecrated to the Virgin Mary.

Notes by JWS:

A Turmknopf is a hollow metal sphere installed on top of a church steeple. A cross or decorative cross is installed on top of the Turmknopf. Coins, historical documents and newspapers are typically enclosed in the Turmknopf to serve as a time capsule to be opened by later generations. Although I had inquired about the possibility of opening the Pawellau Church Turmknopf during the 300th anniversary, it was not done (possibly due to the cost involved).

The second edition of H. Neuling's "Silesian Church Locations and their Ecclesiastical Endowments Up to the End of the Middle Ages" leads one to believe the above is true from the inscription on one of the local bells: "Maria gracia plena beata virgo, etc.", and very often the words on the church bell turn out to be identical to the official name of the church. Another fact supports my opinion. An antique altar shrine from the old Pawellau Church during medieval times shows the Madonna holding the baby Jesus with her left arm.

The Pawellau church is shaped like a cross when viewed from above, with the dome over the center intersections of the cross. The main door is on the west side, and the altar is in the east section (called a transept) of the church. When I visited the Pawellau Church in 2008 and 2009, the old altar shrine described by Pastor Conrad was located in the south transept, blocking the southern doorway to the area where the cemetery was located before the Second World War.

Remarks by Pastor Conrad

The side niches of the middle frame of the altar box contain:

on the top right: the Saint Katharine,
 on the right below: the Apostle Paul,

On the wings of the altar were painted (about one hundred years later) the four evangelists. The royal governor of the Silesian Provincial government had promised to provide the restoration costs of the altar, at the request of the Provincial Conservation Curator.

Chapter 2

The Introduction of the Reformation About 1540 in Pawellau and the First Protestant Period of the Local Church (1540 - 1671)

The doctrine of Johann Huss, the Bohemian precursor that ended on the pyre of the Reformation, found no support in Silesia. This is understandable if one can imagine the horrible deeds committed in Silesia by the fanatical Hussites in the name of their emperor.

Our Trebnitz region was also haunted by them. In 1432, a Silesian siege troop, while trying to recover Nimptsch from the Hussites, fought a two-day battle in Strahlen, but had to surrender after a Hussite reserve army rushed into the battle. From there the victorious reserve [Hussite] army took the opportunity to spread a vast path through Silesia.

The horrors from forty years of devastation on the left side of the Oder River spilled over now to the right shore. After the Hussites had destroyed the cloister at Leubus and the cities Winzig and Prausnitz laid in ashes, on the 2nd of July in 1432 the Hussite army moved from Prausnitz to the area of the Trebnitz Stift. Our Pawellau, being in the path of the Hussites was looted and pillaged. The Abbess Anna I and the nuns fled the cloister at Trebnitz before it and all the other buildings were robbed and then burned down.

Soon after that, the Hussite army moved on to Militsch and from there to Bernstadt, setting fire to both cities. The city of Öls was abandoned by its inhabitants, and out of fear that the Hussites would occupy their city to commit the same horrors elsewhere, voluntarily set fire to the city. It is therefore possible to understand the judgment of the dukes of Öls, when they spoke of the “disloyal heretic, religious anarchists and priest murderers” (see Boehme, diplom. Beiträge Vol. I, page 74), and also understand the implacable hatred the Silesians maintained against the “evil, damned heretics”, as the Hussites were generally called.

Nevertheless, ecclesiastical reform was the spirit of the time, and a longing for an internal renewal of the church also resided in the minds of the people of Silesia - that would become obvious when Luther courageously stepped up as a pioneer for the reformation of the church.

“Also here in Silesia”, wrote C. Grünhagen in his “History of Silesia” (Volume II, starting on page 33) “as it was everywhere in the German lands, that spirits of conscience were seized with discontent with the traditional forms of church life, and felt doubt, even repulsed with the deteriorated reliability of the means of mercy and well-being of the soul, which the church at that time offered to them; educated humanists were more and more disgusted with the church’s financial exploitation, the annoying customs of the clergy, the shaken belief in the monk’s faith to their vows; a demand for ecclesiastical reform had awoken in new strength. It was this disposition of the spirits above all, which made the first appearance of Luther seem so unusually meaningful and successful.”

And the ground in Silesia must have been thoroughly prepared for the reception of the sowing of the Reformation. Otherwise, such a complete transformation of the church would not have happened here in a comparatively short time and with few exceptions, in an extremely peaceful way.

Duke Karl of Öls was inclined for church reformation, even if he had not yet promoted it in his principality. After his death, his sons Heinrich II and Johann ruled Öls together. In 1538, after consulting with Luther, they proclaimed a Protestant Church Order that gave the Reformation a foothold in the Principality of Öls.

The cloister Stift at Trebnitz vigorously opposed any interference into its matters by the Öls government, but over time the Stift was unable to resist granting the Protestant religious freedom in the territory it controlled.

In 1524, Johann Hess, the priest at the Church of Magdalene in Breslau converted to the Protestant doctrine. In 1525, Protestant religious services spread to the churches of St. Elizabeth and St. Bernhardin. In that same year, priest George Weiderbach gave the first Protestant sermon in the city parish church at Trebnitz, during the festival celebrating the anniversary of the church's dedication. All efforts by the Abbess Hedwig II to remove the disloyal minister from his office were in vain. A majority of the citizens of Trebnitz at that time preferred the Protestant doctrine and could not be forced to accept a different priest.

The Stift's government did not respond with the use of force, when in the course of time the dukes of Öls established Protestant churches in the area controlled by the Stift. The prayers and invocations, with which the Abbess Hedwig used in an attempt to hold the Stift's subjects in the country to the Catholic belief, were not effective in restraining the proliferation of the Protestant doctrine.

Spreading from one church to another, Gospel sermons were preached in the rural Stift churches. Even though it is not known on what exact day or year that the churches became Protestant, it is certain that by 1540 the municipalities of Schlottau, Polnisch Hammer, Luzine, Schawoyne and our Pawellau had Protestant ministers. Of the Stift churches, the Trebnitz cloister church was the only one that remained Catholic. It remained a Catholic refuge for the remaining Catholic subjects of the Stift, because the village churches around Trebnitz, including those churches at Peterwitz, Hochkirch, Glauche and Lossen had become Protestant.

Note by JWS:

There were several cases of rebellion (riots and refusal to pay tithes) by the Silesian citizens against the Catholic Church during this period, including at the villages where the Sternitzke family lived:

- at Groß Krauschen in 1535,
- at Glogau against the Klarissen Cloister in 1545, and
- at Frauenwaldau, Schlottau, Luzine, Groß Grunau and Zantkau against the Trebnitz Cloister Convent in 1563.

It would be very interesting now to learn more about the introduction of the Reformation at Pawellau, and about the first century of comprehensive development of the Protestant church in our local community. Unfortunately, however, there are no sources to provide that knowledge. Specific church documents from that period do not exist, and may have not ever existed because events were decided by parochial management in larger urban communities.

The church baptism, marriage and funeral registers from that time also no longer exist. They would have included the chronological records of the church office, with the actions of the church as entered by the clergy. The first Protestant church register books of Pawellau would have been taken away during the later seizure of the church. They were probably destroyed, either intentionally or by fire.

The little that I can report regarding the oldest Protestant period of our church with certainty is from about 1540 to 1671. I owe this knowledge partly to four inspection reports for the Catholic Church at Schimmerau, for the years 1579, 1638, 1651 and 1666. These inspection reports are in the first volume Dr. Jungnitz (of the Ecclesiastical Council) published from applicable prince-bishop inspection reports (records regarding Pawellau are not found therein because the Bishop of Breslau did not have inspection rights over the churches of the Stift).

Notes by JWS:

The inspection report from 1666-1667 showed the Tschernitzke family donated 19 Groschens and 6 Hellers to the Catholic Church at Powitzko. This may have been the family of Gregor Tschernisky c.1619-c.1714) from Domnowitz.

The friendly management personnel of the Royal Archive at Breslau also kindly allowed me to study several documents regarding Pawellau. The result of that study is briefly summarized in the following paragraphs.

In 1647, the villages of Brietzen, Ujeschütz, Kainowe, Parnitze and Beckern became ecclesiastically incorporated with the church at Pawellau. The Jakobi Church at Prausnitz had been Protestant since 1584, and six years later the Visitation of Mary Chapel there was also Protestant. At that time the church at Pawellau had a large number of Protestant members. In several official documents from that time the parish at Pawellau is mentioned as: “very extensive and populous, and having a frequent and large influx stream of church children”.

Already in 1638, the Schimmerau inspection report noted the rather large mixture of denominations (also noting that the village mayor and even the cook of the minister were Protestant), and in 1651 the Schimmerau priest lamented to the church census taker that the village had been always entirely Catholic but was at that time hardly one-third Catholic.

In 1647, Pawellau had a “comfortable parsonage with a garden and barn” for the priest and a local parish office. His title was Deacon rather than Pastor and he was also the Trebnitz City Church Pastor. He called himself the Priest of Trebnitz and Pawellau. An official exchange of correspondence between the Trebnitz Stift, the Öls Consistory [the overseeing body of regional churches] and the Breslau District Administrative Council, show that the local church at that time was still a branch church of the Trebnitz City Church.

At that time, the appointment of priests for the local parsonages started with a submission of the priest by the Stift, and depended upon the confirmation by the Öls Consistory. Even then, the Abbess found reason to complain about this relationship. In 1663, Adam Reichel was the pastor in office at Pawellau (the only pastor’s name known to us from this first Protestant period). The Abbess asked the Öls Consistory to provide a substitute because Pastor Reichel was old and frail (and also could not hear well). The Consistory appointed Florian Böhm (previously the pastor at Jutroschin) to be the vicarage department manager at Pawellau. And just as independently the Ducal Consistory proceeded two years later, when upon the death of Böhm, it responded to Pastor Reichel when he sought to replace Böhm with his son, a theological student named Sebastian Reichel.

In the Consistory Office instruction granting the appointment to Sebastian Reichel on the 19th of September in 1665, the right of appeal that was entitled to the Stift was completely silent. As a result of this illegal procedure, Hedwig complained to Duke Sylvius and to the District Administrative Council in Breslau. In response to the Council’s polite inquiry, the duke politely answered that his independent actions were legally based “in princely right and by virtue of his episcopal rights entitled to him by the Principality”. This judicial decision did not seem to become a quarrel between the Abbess and the Duke. It can be supposed however that the duke through the maintenance of his standpoint, he sought to preserve not only his sovereign noble right, but also felt in his conscience as a Protestant sovereign the obligation to personally participate in the appointments in the Protestant parish even more than in the past.

Even at that time, the Catholic Stift was striving to use legal reforms (ius reformandi, in the Catholic sense) to place Catholic priests back into the Protestant churches within the Stift controlled region. The abbess had begun the process already in 1663 with the appeal complaint to the District Administrative Council, because the duke “again let a non-Catholic priest” be appointed to Pawellau, contrary to imperial orders.

The events that shortly followed made the secret Catholic endeavors clearly obvious.

The Separation of the Pawellau Church (1671) and the Return to a Catholic Period for the Local Church Parish (1671 – 1708)

The 1609 Majestätsbrief [Letter of Majesty] of Emperor Rudolph II granted the Protestants in Silesia with the same rights and freedoms in church matters as the Catholics. One can understand the great joy that it caused in the hearts of the Silesian Protestants. Under trumpets - and sounds of kettledrums and canon thunder this “precious gem” had been announced down from the pulpits with enthusiasm and rejoicing.

And even as more or less severe violations of the rights granted to the Protestants occurred here and there, violations that were contrary to promises given in the Majestätsbrief, no one yet suspected the bitter disappointments that would come with time. The Thirty Years’ War had ignited itself in Bohemia when the Majestätsbrief, even though it had been solemnly confirmed by Rudolph’s successor Emperor Matthias, was solemnly retracted.

Emperor Ferdinand II (1629-1637) should have cut himself with his own hand. As an obedient pupil of the Jesuits, he arrived at the time to have a ruinous influence. He embraced the decision to return all Protestant Silesians into the fold of the “one true” church.

The Lichtenstein dragoons moved through the country in order to carry out the command of their imperial master with the hardest cruelty. What these “true believers” (as they outrageously named themselves) performed is recorded as oppressions and hardships for the Protestants in the histories of the Silesian churches at Glogau, Freystadt, Guhrau, Sprottau, Polkwitz, Grünberg, Schweidnitz, Jauer, Löwenberg and a large number of other Silesian cities. Their actions were outrageous and many sad events were told in those histories. Only the hereditary principalities of Liegnitz, Brieg, Wohlau and Öls, together with the city of Breslau were spared. And yet they also had to remain calm and expect the worst.

In the year 1629, Emperor Ferdinand released the Restitution Edict, by which he thought to achieve throughout Germany, the same result that the notorious dragoons of Count Dohna had achieved in a large part of Silesia. According to this edict the Protestant states were forced to return all ecclesiastical endowments, properties and inhabitants that were taken over since the Religious Peace of Augsburg.

In this very menacing position one foreign prince sent by God, Sweden’s King Gustav Adolf, brought help to the Protestants of Germany. It is to be owed to him in the highest degree, that Germany’s citizen remained protected from being subjected completely to the Catholic Habsburgs. Unfortunately, his arrival was able to achieve only insignificant relief to the Protestants in Silesia because the king’s original intention to move directly into Silesia, where the hardest oppression occurred, was thwarted by indecision from the electors of Brandenburg and Saxony. The oppression of the Silesian Protestants continued and increased.

In the year 1636, on imperial instruction, the so-called “key commission” was implemented. Wherever they came, they bound the Evangelical churches with metal binding and dismissed the frightened preachers from office by force. Thus, while the land of our Silesia was devastated by the Thirty Years War, the destruction of its flowering Evangelical Church continued unhindered. This destruction was not stopped by the 1648 peace treaty.

This “Westphalian” peace settled, in ecclesiastical respects for Silesia, with the Silesian princes of the Augsburg Confession and the city Breslau regaining the rights and privileges they held before the war, even those rights regarding the practice of the Evangelical religion.

The regulation of that treaty varied but the Evangelical church communities in the Trebnitz Stift region were allowed to keep their churches, because that area belonged to the Principality of Öls. Therefore, our church at Pawellau also remained Evangelical. Furthermore, that peace treaty allowed the Evangelical Silesians at the Principality capitals Glogau, Schweidnitz and Jauer to have churches at their expense, which were therefore called Friedenskirchen [Peace Churches]. But, several hundred churches were lost from the Evangelicals because of the fatal ius reformandi (the right to waive the Reformation again), which the emperor reserved for himself in the Westphalian Peace, to maintain his control of the reichsunmittelbaren (the Silesian principalities under his direct control and not mediated by Princes).

If one includes these churches now lost to those previously lost to the Catholics, then the total number of Evangelical churches went from 1500 in Silesia after the Reformation to only about 350 churches; more than 1100 were lost.

Notes by JWS:

The following commentary regarding this period is a good summary of what occurred.

From Wilhelm Starnitzki's Familiengeschichte des Geschlechts Sternitzke aus dem Kreis Trebnitz / Schlesien:

“During the years 1653 and 1654, saw the closing of 656 Protestant churches in Silesia. In the course of the next decades in the Principality of Öls, eleven municipalities were affected by the closing of churches. Eight churches were allowed to remain in Trebnitz County. These were in Friedrichskirch, Lossen, Luzine, Paulskirch, Gross Hammer, Bluechertal, the city Trebnitz, and in the municipality of Schlottau.”

Note that Paulskirch (Pawellau) was identified in the above summary as one of only eight village churches that remained open during the counter reformation.

But even this pitifully poor possession was not granted to them. The removal of all Protestant places of worship that was planned from the outset seemed to want to complete itself. In defiance of all solemn legal appointments of the Westphalian Peace Treaty the imperial Counter-Reformation was expanded in the year 1662 to the Silesian principalities under indirect control of the emperor. That illegal intervention into the Protestant rights had been attempted once before in the Principality of Öls.

Already in 1630, Abbess Barbara II of Trebnitz had (on imperial instructions) announced that she “suspended”, that is she dismissed the Protestant preachers in the area controlled by the Stift.

A process had been developed between the Stift and Duke Conrad of Öls, who had raised objection to the dismissal order. The duke took the ducal right of patronage over the city of Trebnitz and the villages controlled by the Trebnitz Stift.

After nineteen years, a decision was made in favor of the Stift, and shortly thereafter the inevitable instruction was issued to the Protestant preachers within the Stift to leave their offices. On the 4th of August in 1671, the Stift churches at Trebnitz, Pawellau, Schawoyne, Luzine, Schlottau and Polnisch Hammer were again occupied by Catholic ministers or chaplains. It is unknown where the aged refugee Pastor Adam Reichel fled to from here.

Thus, the large Protestant church municipality of Pawellau saw itself, after approximately one hundred and thirty years of unimpaird possession of its place of worship, being were robbed of the same in an instant. The Evangelical sermon, by which four to five generations were taught every Sunday, had grown silent, and replaced with Roman-Catholic instruction. Mass offerings, saint's services and the worship of relics, which the Bible does not approve and that the Reformation had abolished, so it seemed forever, were inevitably restored with an impact.

How did the Evangelical municipality members respond to the totally changed state of affairs that they found themselves in? Regrettably we again do not know much about that. A little is still handed down to us, from which we can nevertheless derive legitimate conclusions. A church book still exists from the Catholic period. Indeed, it is only a fragment, just some of the registrations from the time immediately after removal of the church; only enclosing the years from 1687 to 1707 (or 1708).

At least this church book fragment offers some most commendable, historical material. Admittedly, the entries contained in it are incomplete, so that not all ecclesiastical events that are believed to have really occurred were registered, or perhaps the numbers indicated were unusually large, as the church book indicated.

The numbers vary, apart from the year 1694 during which only one baptism was written, with the number of baptisms between 15 and 80, with the weddings between 4 and 26, and with funerals between 12 and 55. The local parish records show an annual average of 60 baptisms per year, 12 weddings and 30 funerals, from which two possible conclusions can be made. Either a large part of the Protestants in the Pawellau parish became Catholic again after the closing of the Protestant church, or they remained privately faithful to the Protestant faith while outwardly attending the church despite it having a Catholic minister. The latter of the two is more probable.

Except in Massel, Glauche, Karoschke and Peterwitz which provided services for those Protestant communities that had been robbed of their churches, no other Protestant churches were to be found. And so perhaps the need for regular worship services and the strong attachment to the old church caused the Evangelists from Pawellau and the other local villages, even though their church was now officiated by a catholic priest, they nevertheless regarded it as their church and entrusted it with the baptism of their children and the burial of their dead in the local cemetery.

And also, the catholic minister of Pawellau may have been satisfied with the situation, since the alternative was probably that he would have had only a shrinking, small municipality with only a nominal affiliation to his congregation.

Based on the church book entries from that Catholic period we can say that the congregation included the same five villages that belonged to the Pawellau congregation in the previous Evangelical period: Brietzen, Ujeschütz, Kainowe, Parnitze and Beckern.

There was a crypt under the church at that time (it apparently still exists in a dilapidated state under the current church). In the 1680s it served as a burial place for the Fanigkin family. In 1684, Mrs. Magdalena Fanigkin, the wife of the Stift estate manager, was laid in that crypt beside their four children who preceded her in death. A tombstone gives a report of this burial. It stands on the right side of the southern door to the church. It formerly stood over the crypt but was moved to its current location when the new church was built.

The front view of this stone shows a crucifix and coats of arms in the upper corners. Under the two coats of arms one sees the figure of a woman praying in a kneeling position.

Closeup of the lower part of Magdalena Fanigkin's tombstone.
(Photographed in 2008 by James W. Sternitzky.)

The lower part of the stone carries the inscription:

*„Alhier hatt Ihr heiliges Wohnhaus die Ziehrde weiblicher Tugenden: Frau Magdalena Fanigkin geb. Döhringin. Al.33 Jar, Hirinnen glüickl., dass sie von frommen Eltern gebohren und durch dero Beförderung in der h. Taufe widergeboren worden. Darumb Ihr auch mit mütterlicher Milch die wahre Gottseligkeit beigebracht wurde und zur Wirtschaft angewehnet. Welches alles wie eine starke Magnetnadel die Liebe an sich gezogen.
Tit: Herr Sigmundt Fanigkens Areudario der Trebnitzischen gütter Cannoua und Prodoffke. Mit welchem sie in höchster Vergnügung und segen Gottes in Ehlicher Verknüpfung gelebet 16 Jahr. Bis dieses Band keusch Ehelicher Liebe den 29. Octobris dieses laufenden 1684. Jahres durch den Tod zerrissen und Ihr verblichener Leib zu* ihren 4 vorangegangenen Kindern diesem Ort anvertraut worden. Erwartende mit allen gleichigen die aufweckende Stimme Jesu.“

Translated as:

“Here female virtues have adorned her holy dwelling house: Mrs. Magdalena Fanigkin born Döhringin. Aged 33 years, grateful during her life that she was born of devout parents and by their upbringing became reborn in Holy Baptism. True godliness was also taught by her motherly milk and she was educated in the basics of love that remained as steady as a strong magnetic needle.

Title: Mr. Sigmundt Fanigkens Areudario of the Trebnitz estates of Cannoua and Prodoffke. With whom she lived in marriage for 16 years, with the highest pleasure and blessing of God, until death tore this bond on the 29th of October in 1684. Her faded body has been placed in this place beside her four children who preceded her. Expecting with all the believers the awakening voice of Jesus.”

The two estates mentioned above obviously refer to what are known today as Kainowe and Brodowze, situated in close proximity to Frauenwaldau. The first reference, Arendarius Fanigkin, may have been his residence, which may have been ecclesiastically assigned to this local church. This would explain why the Fanigkin family crypt was located here even though a cemetery was already present at Kainowe.

Notes by JWS:

An Areudario, or Arendarius (related to the Latin word: Arendator) was a noble person who rented an estate or village. In this case Sigmundt Fanigken may have rented the two estates from the Trebnitz Stift. The birth records of the Catholic Church at Schawoine listed the birth of Maria Sciernisko on the 24th of March in 1690. She was the daughter of Gregory Sciernisko (c.1655-after 1698, SN204) and his wife Eva Sciernisko. Maria's godparents were Eva Minkin, Anna Fannigin, Joannes Tirnuche. See Book I, Chapter 15, Briesche: Sternitzke Family Personal Data for Briesche.

A valuable item on the church inventory we still possess today is from the time shortly after the church was closed. It is a massive brass chandelier, decorated with the Austrian double eagle and with the year 1673. It now hangs from the middle of the lantern over the dome in the middle of our church.

In the Catholic time, namely 1687, the larger of our two bells was purchased. The other one, the smaller of the two is probably older than 1687. The full inscription, which it carries, is: giving us at the same time additional information in other relationships. It tells us first that in the year 1687 a monk named Sebastian belonged to the Cistercian Order, and was a minister at Pawellau, and also that this Sebastian was an owner of a parochial place as a priest of Trebnitz. And also, at that time the Pawellau church was only a branch of the Trebnitz church. But during the Catholic occupation, shortly after 1687, the subordinate position of the Pawellau church under the Trebnitz Church was abolished.

Frater Sebastianus s. ordinis Cisteciensis Pavlo Parochus Trebni 1687,

Notes by JWS:

The brass chandelier was probably removed by the Soviets at the end of World War II, along with some of the organ pipes and other metal structures, and sent to the Soviet Union. A new chandelier hangs in its place and a portable electronic organ was used during the 2009 tricentennial service I attended. There was only one bell in the church tower (shown below). The inscription on the bell reads:

*WER ABER DEN WILLEN GOTTES TUT
DER BLEIBET IN EWIGKEIT*

The inscription is from the Bible, 1 John 2:17, Und die Welt vergeht und ihre Lust; wer aber den Willen Gottes tut, bleibt in Ewigkeit. Translation: And the world passes away, and the lust thereof: but he that does the will of God stays forever.

Pawellau church bell in 2008. Photographed by James W. Sternitzky.

In the year 1691, Pawellau was separated from the City Church of Trebnitz and became an independent parish church. In the front of a Catholic church book that was filed directly from the Apostolic Vicariate to Breslau in 1772, is a certified copy of a manuscript dated the 28th of May in 1691. This document from the Abbess Christina at Trebnitz, a born countess of Würben-Pavlovsky, was written to the Prince Bishop Ludwig of Breslau. In it, the abbess requested him to give the investiture to the presented Franciscus Antonius Schweder. He worked for eight years in the City Church of Trebnitz as a chaplain and was as well “a devout exemplary priest”, as “a learned man and a good preacher”. He was a good choice for an independent priest in Pawellau because he had completed his service as an assistant. The fact that this request from the abess to the prince bishop was granted, that Pawellau church was elevated to be a parish church with Chaplain Schweder appointed as its priest, are shown in the words of gratitude written later by Schweder in his church register. The original words in Latin are as follows:

20. Jul Ecclesia Pawloviensis facta est Parochialis, pro qua investitus est
Pater Franciscuc Antonius Schweder, patriae Opoliensis, a Serenisimo ac Reverendissimo Principe
ac D.D. Francisco Ludovico Episcopo Wratislaviensi.
Oremus pro Reverendissima Abbatissa Trebincensi.
Domina nostra, Christina Pawlowskiana etc.,
quae ad suplicationem meam hanc gratiam reliquit posteritati.”

Translation:

“On the 20th of July in 1691 the church in Pawellau became a parish church. For her the Father Franciscuc Antonius Schweder from Oppeln was investitured by the most merciful and most worthy of our admiration the Prince-Bishop of Breslau, D.D. Franciscus Ludovicus. Let us recite our gratitude to the high and most worthy Abbess of Trebnitz, our mistress, Christina Pawlowskiana etc., who grants this favor for future generations.”

Certainly, Pawellau did not keep the independence attained at that time for very long. When and whereby it again became dependent on Trebnitz will be shown further down in this discussion.

The local Catholic Church was frequently inspected by a visiting archpriest (who may probably have been the Catholic city minister). Notes from these inspections were made in the church register; seven inspections within a fourteen-year period. Were these numerous inspections made by the authorities to serve as a safety device to protect the Catholic possessions in Pawellau? Or perhaps they did not have much trust in their durability? Actually, it did not take four decades; because at the end of the century, Protestantism was reinstated in Pawellau and the Catholics lost the rights of possession.

Chapter 4

The Return of the Pawellau Protestant Church in 1708 and its Reconstruction (1708 - 1709)

The Return of the Church in 1708

If the church conditions, as they had been created by the Catholic “Counter-reformation”, would have remained for those in Silesia as it had in the other Protestant lands of the Austrian monarchy, those inspired and readily accepted reformed teachings would have been “withdrawn from the hearts and customs of the majority of the people” and the ever more miserably fed flame would have rapidly and completely expired everywhere.

Many Protestant Silesians, turning their backs on their homeland, emigrated to other lands where they hoped to live unhindered in their Protestant faith. Certainly, our God does not live in temples made by hands, and everywhere where He is adored in the spirit and in the truth, He benevolently professes Himself through blessings to His people. And thus, many expelled ministers collected their former church members in forests and at hidden places to hold Protestant services.

Here and there, Evangelical communities, which had remained spared from the sad destiny of the church closings, opened the gates of their places of worship for their brothers of faith who were without churches; and at that time Protestants from our Pawellau parish enjoyed the hospitality of some Protestant communities that remained in the neighborhood of Trebnitz, as was already suggested in the previous chapter. Everywhere however, where one met in such a way, searching religious consolation and growth, and so united, it seemed like anxious questions and sighs by the oppressed hearts:

Hüter, ist die Nacht schier hin? Mach End', o Herr, mach Ende, mit aller unsrer Not!
 Watchman, what of the night? Make end, O Lord, make end, to all our misery!

Notes by JWS:

“Hüter ist die Nacht schier hin?” is from the Martin Luther Bible, Jesaja (Isaiah) 21:11.

“Mach End', o Herr, mach Ende, mit aller unsrer Not!” is from the hymn Befiehl du deine Wege (“Thy way and all thy sorrows”) which dates to the year 1653.

And the night really passed, and the help came unexpectedly, and the steadfast loyal supporters of the Gospel laughed again with the most beautiful sun of joy after a dark night of suffering, adoring admiration of divine wisdom and love must fulfill us when we see how God led the sadness and depression in minds of Protestants in countless places in the land of Silesia, to a stunning conclusion.

When it is the hour, help breaks in with power.

And from where and through whom did the assistance come? It came from the north, from where it had already once come, and by a descendant of the noble king who had once before rescued the Protestant church from falling.

After the Swedish King Gustav Adolf, who had come to Germany to rescue the German Protestants, died a hero's death on the battleground of Lützen, his victorious fighting and bleeding won a lasting importance for his homeland. The reputation of Sweden had incredibly risen; because together with France it became the guarantor of the Westphalian Peace. And in addition, it also received a seat and voice in the German Reichstag, because it had been granted with conquered territory from the German Empire by the German Emperor. West Pomerania with the island Ruegen had been awarded to it, along with the cities Bremen, Verden and Wismar, in addition to the land at the Frisian harbor on what is now the eastern coast of Prussia.

But Sweden did not enjoy this property without dispute for long. Russia, Denmark and Poland united against the annoying new strength of Sweden. And they might hope for good success for their common plans for war, because in 1697 a king mounted the Swedish throne who was just a little older than a boy. However, Karl XII - as the young eighteen-year-old Swedish king was called - showed the triple enemy he was quite superior. After he first defeated Denmark and then Russia, he occupied Poland. In 1706, he decided to attack the King of Poland, August II the Strong in his Saxon electorate where he had fled, to force August to renounce the Polish crown.

Notes by JWS:

Karl XII of Sweden selected Stanislaw Leszczyński to replace August II the Strong (of Saxony) as the King of Poland in 1704. Catherine (Katarzyna in Polish) was the wife of Stanislaw Leszczyński. The following (translated) paragraph is regarding their daughter's birth in 1703:

Maria Leszczienska (correct spelling is Leszcynska), was born on the Freigute (free estate) of the Sternitzke family in the suburb of Trebnitz named Polnischdorf (Silesia). The mother, wife of King Stanislaus I. Leszcynski, probably made frequent pilgrimages starting at Polnisch-Lissa, where the king owned the property named Sulkowski, to Trebnitz and there once she was surprised by the birth of a child (based on information from Frau von Campan in her "Memoirs of the Queen Mary Antoniette").

Modern tour books and Internet sources for Trebnitz (now Trzebnica) mention the birth of Queen Maria of France (Maria Leszczyński) occurred at a residence on Ogradowa Street, which is on the southwest edge of the city. A 1918 map of Trebnitz shows that street was then called Garten Strasse. A photograph of her birthplace (the Sternitzke manor) is included in the chapter of Book III, Chapter 2 regarding the City of Trebnitz and the Polnischdorf suburb.

As his army marched to Saxony, which led him through Silesia, Karl was joyfully welcomed everywhere by the Silesian Protestants who saw in him a second Gustav Adolf. Wherever he came, he was rejoiced and people begged for his help. Near Steinau, an old shoemaker crowded to be near him, seized the rein of his horse and did not let go until the king with a slap of the hand promised “that he would consider the suppressed Lutheran faith in the land.” And the king, who gave such promise gladly, also immediately endeavored to convert it into action. On his orders, information was prepared for him regarding the continuance of the Protestant church in Silesia. On that information and supported by many Protestant princes in Germany, he argued at the Viennese castle in support for Silesian Protestants; closely supported by England and the Netherlands. The emperor was forced to give way because of the political situation at that time, in particular a compulsory consideration for France. Two imperial ministers proceeded to Karl in his camp near Altranstädt close to Leipzig, and there the Convention of Altranstädt was agreed between King Karl XII and Emperor Josef I on the 22nd of August in 1707.

The main points of the Convention of Altranstädt and most important for the Protestant Silesians are the following:

1. Those of the Protestant faith in the principalities of Liegnitz, Brieg, Wohlau, Münsterberg and Öls, as well as of the city of Breslau, whose houses and churches were taken away after the Westphalian Peace should have those houses and churches given back with their possessions to the Protestants within six months.
2. Nobody is to be forced henceforth into the Catholic service or conversion, but each may be allowed to carry out ecclesiastical actions in neighboring municipalities; only the local minister must receive his fee.
3. The orphaned children of Protestant parents are no longer to be placed with Catholic guardians.
4. Protestant consistories are to be restored in those areas where they existed at the time of the Westphalian Peace.
5. No more Protestant churches shall be taken away.
6. The Protestants are not to be excluded from public offices any more, nor will they be denied the ability to sell their goods or emigrate.
7. The emperor will oppose it if Sweden or another Protestant power wants to support further religious freedoms for the Silesians.

8. The emperor will give legal power to these appointments, will place and will permit their observation firmly for all time, and a Swedish minister will attend the carrying out the contract and report to the King of Sweden.

Indescribable jubilation ruled among the Protestants of Silesia when this convention was published; hymns of praise resounded far and wide to the honor of God, that his hard-pressed people had not been allowed to be disgraced, but had been fantastically saved. Where Karl went on his way back through Silesia, rejoicing people surrounded him, seized his hands and kissed them in deep and thankful emotion. This general rejoicing was understandable.

What the Protestant Church had achieved through the King's advocacy was viewed as indeed significant. Because in wide areas of Silesia, in particular those ruled over by the Austrian crown where, in an imperial breach of promise the Altranstädt Convention was partly waived again, the Protestant municipalities of Silesia also did not have to suffer the Prussian property seizure in addition to the oppression of the Catholics. The Altranstädt Convention brought the hotly desired and mostly durable redemption to over one hundred poor municipalities.

And our Pawellau community was a part of that time of benevolent redemption. In accordance with that convention the Trebnitz Stift had to give up the churches in the "Oberkreise" that were under the jurisdiction of the Principality of Öls, as had been assured by the Westphalian Peace and the Augsburg assurances of ecclesiastical rights. The latter occurred on the 16th of February in 1708 for the churches at Trebnitz, Pawellau, Schawoyne, Luzine, Schlottau and Polish-Hammer; and after the date February 19th (the Sunday after Estomihi Sunday) the first Protestant services were held again in all of these churches, including our church at Pawellau.

Note by JWS:

The Estomihi in the Catholic and the Protestant calendars is the name of the Sunday before Lent. It is also known as Quinquagesima.

A report about the organization and process of the above is not known to us. We can but vividly imagine the words of the liturgical greeting for this Sunday:

"Be to me a rock of strength, a stronghold to save me. For You are my rock and my fortress; for Your name's sake You will lead me and guide me. In You, O LORD, I have taken refuge; let me never be ashamed; in Your righteousness deliver me!"

Note by JWS:

The Bible was the source for the above. See Psalm 31:1-4.

With these prayer words, whose wonderful answered prayers they saw now in person before their eyes, with thanks and praise together the celebration of this first service after thirty-seven long years and now through the grace of God again had been given a place of worship for the whole Protestant community.

The Reconstruction of the Church in 1708 and 1709

If the Pawellau church returned in 1707 to the original location it was built at, which is surely reasonable to assume, then it had served as a place of worship at that location for about 450 years. Therefore, it is not surprising that it had eventually become dilapidated over time despite all the repairs that may have been made to it. Eventually a decision had to be made to replace the building with a new one. And now the steady decision and enthusiastic action can be attributed above all to the Pawellau community who were grateful for the restoration of their ecclesiastical life and the freedom to practice the Protestant religion.

The demolition of the old church building began in 1708, with replacing half of the internal portion of the building and continuing in the next year, establishing the 200-year existence of our current church. What we know about that construction, we owe to a later Pawellau pastor, Gottlieb Stahr, who in 1702 [see note below] coauthored a “Newsletter of the local church at Pawellau, its changes, its clergyman and other items of interest”, which was found in our church Turmknopf and is described below.

Note by JWS:

The reference to 1702 must be a typographical error. It should be 1802. Johann Gottlieb Stahr was the pastor of the Pawellau Church from 1790 to 1837.

In his newsletter Pastor Stahr first reported what he found in the year 1802 inside the Kirchturmknopf, when it had been opened at that time. Two different items had lain in it, i.e. first of all, a tin-plated metal capsule with the label:

Anno 1709 DEKTE MICH CASPAR WEIS BURG U KLEMT IN BRESLAU

Notes by JWS:

Caspar Weis was a Bürger und Klempner (citizen and tinsmith) from Breslau. Dekte could be translated as “decked”, meaning dressed, adorned or decorated. Then the label could be translated as:

“In the year 1709, decorated by Caspar Weis, citizen and tinsmith in Breslau”.

A farmer from Domnowitz named Caspar Weiss was also mentioned in the Katastralverhandlung of 12 February 1743, as described in Wilhelm Starnitzki's manuscript Familiengeschichte des Geschlechts Starnitzke aus dem Kreis Trebnitz / Schlesien.

Secondly, in a riveted sheet of metal there was a paper with written notes, dated the 20th of September in 1709, without a name or signature by the author. The original notes no longer exist. The paper on which they were written was “crumbly” and “full of holes” when it was unfolded, so that further safekeeping of it was useless. Therefore, Pastor Stahl did not return it to the Turmkopf.

The notes must have been legible enough for him to read and to make a duplicate of that manuscript or at least to understand the content, for him to include them in his newsletter. These notes, as described above, unfortunately do not inform us in the least about the old church that was torn down in 1708, and the information which they give us about the construction of the new church are not very extensive; we wished with anticipation to find out something more. Meanwhile we also want to be grateful for little information that they tell to us. From these notes the current church was built in the year 1708, as already said, “from basic anew”. Its builders were (the names were registered on a special quarter page enclosed with the notes) two foremen from Trebnitz: the master carpenter Diderich Walter and the master mason Johann Jürge Ostritz. Under their names still stand the six following names: Martin Kassel, Christoph Kassel, Jürge Sapke, Hans Zimmermann, Christoph Schuber, and Adam Schnieber; who were probably the names of the carpenters and masons who were active with the building.

In addition, there was also a list of the journeyman carpenters, of which the remark remains: “... eight day city journeyman carpenter”, which Stahr showed in his copy, incomprehensibly; apparently, he was also not able to read the names. Perhaps it should have been written as “eighty city journeyman carpenters”: a very high number of carpenters employed for the church construction, but understandable when you consider the size of the construction and the shortness of the period of time needed to finish the construction.

The assembly of the Knopf [time capsule], as was mentioned above regarding the quoted cap label, on the completed church by Weis the tinsmith from Breslau had taken place on the 2nd of September in 1709. Pastor Stahr's information discussed the laying of exposed stairs where there are now halls. Those suspended stairs required frequent repairs, and they disfigured the church appearance, so they were replaced in 1784 with the new stairs to the lofts. (The accuracy of the statement is in dispute today by technical experts in building construction.) The tower was closed to examination, because of boards that were nailed shut prior to their first opening by Pastor Stahr in 1802.

This board partition, which could not have looked nicely, probably had not existed from the original construction. Pastor Stahr reported that up to 1802, a cross stood atop the steeple Knopf where the current weather vane crowned by a star now stands.

In 1708 the Pawellau church was not only “completely new”, but it was also “respectable”, as was reported in the Maslographia. It is an assertion which one would certainly agree with, if one understands the important fact that the church today is as it was built in 1708.

Note by JWS:

Maslographia was a book written in 1711 by a Silesian pastor and scholar, Leonhard David Hermann (1670-1736). It was a natural history of his home village: Massel. The full citation for this book: Hermann, Leonhard David. Maslographia, oder Beschreibung des schlesischen Massel im Oelß-Bernstädtischen Fürstenthum mit seinen Schauwürdigkeiten. Brieg: Gottfried Gründer, 1711. Page 80: Pavelau.

The description of the effective characteristic of its architectural style is included below in the discussion of the renovation, which the 200-year anniversary celebration has now offered a reason and opportunity to be experienced outwardly and internally.

Friedrich Celichius (Celichius being the Latin form of Kölischen) was a native of Lüben in Silesia, who was hired as a minister here in 1709, making him the first minister here after the Protestant restoration of the church. It means however that he administered the parish office in Pawellau under Mr. Ephraim Breskot, the Senior and Pastor in the Trebnitz district Winziga Silesio. Afterwards it was not Kölischen, but Breskot who was identified in the previously mentioned Maslographia as being the “Pastor to Trebnitz and also to Pawellau”. We infer from the fact that at the same time with restoration of the local church to the Protestant community in the year 1691 (see above) its independence was removed and it became again a branch church (now Protestant) of the Trebnitz city parish church.

In fact, a long-lasting and complete settlement still had not yet been reached for disputes regarding the Pawellau parish income, involving the Trebnitz and Pawellau minister and the municipalities. From the church construction notes from the year 1709, we have learned the names of the mayors and the names of the villages in the parish at that time. The local parish at that time, other than Pawellau where Andreas Ruschig (Rusik) was mayor, included:

1. Britzen (Brietzen), Mayor Martin Mohet (Mohaupt)
2. Gross-Hujeschütz (Ujeschütz), Mayor Martin Labicki (Labitzke)
3. Klein-Hujeschütz; Mayor Daniel Gramata (Gramatte)
4. Kainowa (Kainowe), Mayor Daniel Schmechtig.
5. Bornice (Parnitze), Mayor Hans Schilder.

Nota Bene [Latin: Note Well]. It is peculiar that Domnowitz was not registered with the parish villages, since official church actions for Domnowitz were registered in the local church book at Pawellau, at that time and later.

In addition, the following was identified, “in the Beckern parish, Mr. Ernst Friedrich von Pogorell”. Indeed, it seems that at that time this lord of the manor but not the other Protestants from the village of Beckern belonged to the local parish. It is possible that other than the lord of the manor there were no Protestants in Beckern.

Especially named was Mr. Daniel Ramisch, the owner of the Hujeschütz mill, which was incorporated there with Ujeschütz. This Daniel Ramisch was a descendant of the Stift-forester George Ramisch. In 1655, the Abbess Dorothea gave him, in appreciation for his service to the cloister in the riots of the Thirty Years War, a payment of 500 Reichsthalers and a piece of uncultured land near his Head Foresters office. The mill established later on this property was named the Ramisch mill, after the name of its owners, and it is still called that today after twenty-five years, and it is still the property of this family.

The Pawellau church fathers’ office was held in 1709 by: George Sosnik (Tschosnig) from Pawellau and Christoph Sciernisko (Sternitzke, c.1676-after 1709) from Brietzen. The church secretary - or sexton’s office, combined with the Pawellau schoolteacher office was held by Daniel Wuttge.

For an altar in the new church, as mentioned earlier, the old folding altar from the first church was probably used. The inscription located under the Marien’s figure reads:

Deum cole, haud imagines!
Adore God and not the pictures!

It may either have been made during the time of the Reformation when the church became Protestant, or in 1708 when it was returned to Protestantism. Very soon, however, this old altar was replaced by the new one which now adorns our church. The same exhibits no sign of age that would indicate its year of origin, however judging from its marvelously beautiful wood carving workmanship, it is from the same time and was probably donated by the same hands as our just as beautiful, if not still more beautiful pulpit.

On the front of the ledge section of the pulpit cover we see two carved coats of arms standing beside each other and under these coats of arms on a medallion is the following inscription:

H. F. V. R. J. H. F. V. R. G. V. R.
 1711

The two coats of arms are, as identified by a review at the Breslau Imperial State Archives, the noble coats of arms of the Freiherr von Reichenbach and the Rohr families. The letters under them and separated by periods are quite indubitably the initials of “Heinrich Freiherr von Reichenbach - Johanna Helene Freifrau von Reichenbach, geborene von Rohr.”

Notes by JWS:

I photographed the pulpit cover in 2008 and in 2009 (shown below). Only one of the coats of arms has survived, but the plaque inscribed in 1711 is still legible.

Freiherr (Baron) Heinrich von Reichenbach-Goschütz was born at Breslau on the 20th of August in 1633. He married Johanna Helena von Rohr und Stein. Johanna was born on the 2nd of October in 1658. They had five children: Henriette, Johanna, Charlotte, Christoph and Heinrich. Baron von Reichenbach-Goschütz died on the 4th of April in 1715. His wife died on the 20th of August in 1758.

The married couple von Reichenbach, lived at the beginning of the 18th century at Klein-Peterwitz near Prausnitz. Baron Heinrich von Reichenbach was also called the Lord of Siebenhufen, Lauterseifen, Raus-Wurms and Halbendorf. Obviously, the current pulpit and presumably also the current altar were gifts in 1711 to the local church, although this event was strangely not recorded in the church register notes available here.

Please note the simpler but also beautiful woodcarvings on the organ housing. They are works from a later time, based on competent and reasonable judgement. This rich and precious donation by the Baron von Reichenbach family was to show their gratitude to the good members of the Pawellau church community. After the removal of the Protestant church in Prausnitz (to which Klein-Peterwitz was incorporated) they had been granted admission to the Pawellau church in 1709. But the discussion of the church relations between Klein-Peterwitz and Pawellau are but a part of what will be discussed in the next chapter.

A part of our lower church loft, namely the area that is the so-called “miller choir” is in the direct proximity of the altar. In former times it was therefore called the “Reichenbach choir” because it was there that the von Reichenbach family had her seats. The same coat-of-arms showed on the cover and internal balustrade surfaces; however, they were only weakly visible as traces of the original painting before the current painting of the church.

Baron von Reichenbach had also proved his appreciation to the Pawellau church community in the year 1715, when he gracefully paid Pastor Breskot’s dept in the amount of 300 Talers. The certificate of indebtedness had been made by Pastor Breskot in Trebnitz, which he had probably used for the Pawellau church construction.

The Uninterrupted Protestant Period of the Pawellau Church (1708 - 1909)

The Pawellau Church - the Second Time as a Refuge Church (1708 - 1742)

In the second chapter I wrote of my supposition that the old Pawellau church provided a refuge during the first Protestant period (from about 1540 to 1671) for fellow members of the Protestant faith who lived in the communities where their churches had been seized. It cannot be proved authentically, since as already noted the Pawellau church books from that time have been lost.

With regard to the Protestant municipality of Prausnitz we may accept it, nevertheless, with considerable certainty. When the same members had their church seized from them in 1654, a large number of them received ecclesiastical refuge at Stroppen at that time. As Rademacher, the primary pastor at Stroppen, wrote in his "History of the Protestant Church Community Stroppen", the numerous ecclesiastical events of the city of Prausnitz were recorded in the Stroppen registers, as well as the records from the incorporated villages of Dambitsch, Puditsch, Jagatschütz, Langawe and Gross Krutschen. Therefore, it is all the more justifiable to accept that while the Protestant church was at Pawellau, the Protestants at Prausnitz found refuge at the closer church at Pawellau at least as numerous as they found refuge at Stroppen.

Notes by JWS:

Julius Rademacher was born in 1857 and ordained in 1883. His book, Geschichte der evangelischen Kirchgemeinde Stroppen Diöz Trebnitz was printed at Trebnitz in 1901/02. His other book, Geschichte der Evangelischen Kirchgemeinde Stroppen, Kreis Trebnitz was published in 1930. Stroppen was about 10 miles northwest of Pawellau. Stroppen is now named Strupina.

In the year 1671, the Pawellau church was certainly also turned over to Catholic hands. But up to then it had been certainly Protestant. Wouldn't it have benefited the fellow believers from the Prausnitz which was only one hour away to attend services at Pawellau? It is virtually sure that the fellow believers of Prausnitz enjoyed the hospitality here in Pawellau very soon after the removal of their church. It is certain that hospitality was plentifully given to them for many decades in the 18th century. The Pawellau baptismal registers are documentary proof, as shown by the many baptisms for Prausnitz children that were registered at Pawellau. But the church registers only record the Prausnitz baptismal registers; wedding and funeral documents from the Prausnitz community were not found in the local church books. It is supposed that those Protestant events during that time when Prausnitz did not have their own minister, were served by the vicarages at Karoschke and Heidewilxen, and sometimes by the vicarages at Massel and Peterwitz. However, their baptisms were obviously to the most part, carried out at that time in Pawellau.

The second of the two Pawellau church books that contained the recorded baptism entries beginning from the year 1737 is no longer complete. The area in and around Trebnitz was severely affected during the Seven Years War against the Russians. This was reported by a private letter of a citizen of Trebnitz, as was published in the magazine of the Association for History and Antiquity of Silesia (Volume 2, 1891). During that time, Pastor Stahr reported in his newsletter that the Pawellau registers must have “been very much torn to pieces”. The last five years of Prausnitz baptism records are missing, because the Russian “rage” destroyed them in 1738-1762, or in 1766. At least a compilation of the baptisms from the available years can provide a rather accurate picture. During the thirty-year period, from the 16th of February in 1708 to the 30th of December in 1738, the following baptisms were performed here in Pawellau:

|------------------------|--------------|
| City of Prausnitz..... | 389 Children |
| Klein Peterwitz..... | 319 Children |
| Klein Ellguth..... | 92 Children |
| Girkwitz..... | 41 Children |
| Dambitsch..... | 37 Children |
| Klein Krutschen..... | 20 Children |
| Koschnöwe..... | 18 Children |
| Groß Krutschen..... | 9 Children |
| Puditsch..... | 4 Children |
| Groß Kaschütz..... | 4 Children |
| Jagatschütz..... | 3 Children |
| Langawe..... | 1 Child |
| Kapatschütz..... | 1 Child |

There was a total of 938 children baptized in the Prausnitz parish over thirty years, or an average of 31 children per year. The disproportionately large number of baptisms from Klein Peterwitz is remarkable in the above composition. It seems that the Protestant inhabitants of this village, which besides having a larger population than it does today, also had an especially strong ecclesiastical relationship with the baronial family von Reichenbach.

Besides Prausnitz and the villages incorporated with it, we also find the baptisms of children from Herrnkaschütz, Povitzko, Nesigode and Gross-Ossig and also from the area around Trachenberg, recorded in the local church registers. The average number of baptisms in Pawellau from 1708 to 1738, including local and non-local individuals equals 95 per year, within a range from 76 to 135 baptisms during those years.

Besides the non-local families who brought her children to the Pawellau church for baptism, this church had its own parish that included a large number of believers. Thus, one can conceive of a huge gathering of people taking place every Sunday and particularly on the days when high services were held in our church.

In order to be able to handle the quantity of the pious at that time, a renovation was made that eliminated the third loft and replaced it with more seating arrangements, and for the same reason extendable benches were installed at that time in the women’s bench area in the nave, which were removed by the current renovation because they were unnecessary.

The Pastors of the Pawellau Church from 1708 to Today and a Number of Noteworthy Events During Their Terms of Office

1708 – 1712, Friedrich Kölichen (Celichius)

He came, “appointed by the abess and all the community”, in the year 1708 from Massel here to Pawellau, where after 4 and one-half years of service, he died on the 15th of October in 1712 “in the 68th year of his life”. His daughter was married to Mr. Paschke, the pharmacist at Prausnitz. Under him the current church was built in the years 1708 and 1709 as described above, and the donations from the Freiherr (Baron) von Reichenbach, of the pulpit (and presumably also the altar) occurred.

1715 – 1731, Christian Rohrmann

He was a Deacon in Trebnitz, before he was appointed here on the 8th of April in 1713, and was installed on the 1st of February in 1714. He died on the 9th of March in 1731, at the age of 58 years. He was, as Pastor Stahr says of him, “a good Polack”, and the Polish hymnal published by him was still used here in 1802. He also liked to record Polish versions of the village and family names in the church register books.

He was also an expert in Latin, which he used very often to express registrations in the church records. For example, in his report regarding the terrible cattle plague in 1713, that raged at that time throughout Europe and also here in Pawellau; he closed his remark concerning it with the request: “Da nobis pacem Jehovah, boves et illaesos gratia bea!” (English: “Lord, give us peace and benevolently protect the still unscathed cattle!”); and in 1719 after the ending of the Turkish War: “Ab imperatore pax data Turko” (English: “The emperor has made peace with the Turks”). In the Pawellau documents controlled in the Royal State Achives an official exchange of letters is kept for us, written in Latin between him and the Prausnitz Catholic priest Cebulka. The latter threatened to report to his authorities of the spiritual welfare visits that Rohrmann had made to Protestants in Prausnitz. An oil painting, a portrait of Pastor Rohrmann hangs in our church.

1731 – 1751, Johann Georg Klinkert

He came in the year 1731 (in which month and from where is not evident) and he died at the beginning of the year 1751. Under him the earlier parsonage building, and in 1739 the previous organ, were built. The latter at that time received the wood carving ornamentation copied from the pulpit and altar. During his time the Pawellau church lost its title as a refuge church, due to the building of the Protestant churches in Prausnitz and Trachenberg in 1742. A wooden epitaph (commemorative tablet), which Pastor Klinkert had made to the memory of his deceased fifteen-year-old daughter, is hung in our church.

Note by JWS:

I inquired about the painting of Pastor Rohrmann, and the Klinkert tablet during my 2008 visit to the Pawellau church. Both items were unknown to the current priest, and their locations could not be guessed.

1751 – 1769, Johann Christian Schlipalius

He was the son of the Senior and Pastor Moritz Schlipalius at Trebnitz. He was instructed by his father to assume the office here in 1751, and returned to Trebnitz in June of 1769 as a Deacon and Polish preacher. The Senior Schlipalius gave an interesting obligation to his son (the Pawellau pastor): every Sunday the catechism instruction was to be served alternately in Polish and in German. In this instruction the Senior Schlipalius reserved for himself, as the virtual parish priest of Pawellau, a part of the Pawellau pastor's wages (from Pawellau 27 bushels of rye and 27 bushels of oats, from Brietzen 17 bushels of oats):

1. to come here every time the three midday sermons are to given by the minister, which are given at those three high feast-days,
2. the freedom to come from Trebnitz to the Parochianis Pavloviensibus (Pawellau parish) to offer his confessional chair to those who want to accept it, as it was also provided by the previous Deacon in Pawellau.

The plundering by the Russians previously mentioned took place here in 1760. 1764 brought the building of the Protestant church at Kainowe, and the separation of the Kainowe, Gross Ujeschütz and Klein Ujeschütz communities from the Pawellau parish.

Notes by JWS:

Two relatives of the Pastor Schlipalius discussed above were also Protestant pastors from Öls:

- Johann Benjamin Schlipalius, Pastor in Prietzen-Kraschen /Öls (1712–1747), born at Öls in 1687, died on the 17th of June in 1747.
- Johann Christian Schlipalius, Deacon and Archdeacon in Öls (1709-1744), born at Öls on the 4th of October in 1689, died on the 27th of January in 1744.

1769 – 1773, Daniel Gottlob Sille (Sylla)

He originated from Domnowitz and came here in the month of May, or June in 1769. He died in 1773, at the age of 54 years old. In 1772, with the consent of the farmers and communities of Pawellau and Brietzen, he negotiated against Senior Prusse in Trebnitz, and the church deacon's office there, over the payment by the Pawellau parishioners for the pastor's salary in Trebnitz.

Notes by JWS:

Andres Benjamin Prusse was born in Breslau in 1730. He studied theology at Breslau, Halle and Leipzig. From 1756 to 1763 he was the Field Pastor of the Prussian Grenadier Battalion. In 1764, he was the Senior Pastor of Trebnitz County, Pastor of Trebnitz and Pawellau in Silesia, and the Master of Philosophy. Senior Prusse died on the 22nd of August in 1791.

1773 – 1779, Johann Sarganeck

He came here in 1773 from the area of Pritschen. He left here at the beginning of 1779 and went to Dyhrgrund near Loslau in Upper Silesia. In 1777 he restarted the negotiations of the salary process, which his predecessor had begun before his demise. This had taken place during two years and had cost a lot of money without coming to a final decision.

1779 – 1789, Christian Traugott Jaesche

He came here in the beginning of 1779 from Polnisch-Wartenberg, where his father was the rector. He died on the 19th of June in 1789 at the age of 59 years.

He complained to his patronage at the Trebnitz Stift about a significant reduction of his parochial estate income from the church's apparently available accounts. It was reduced because of the loss of Kainowe from his parish.

When he died, the Trebnitz rector and afternoon preacher Klossmann applied for the local parochial position. However, the Pawellau church municipality protested against his employment because Klossmann could not preach in Polish which was absolutely necessary here because many parishioners still could not understand a sermon in German - in particular the old people in the community. At the request of the Öls Consistory, the Stift (which had been following the order of Friedrich the Great to stop the Polish services), gave in to the Pawellau community. Klossmann withdrew his application resignedly.

The successor of the late Pastor Jaesche was:

1790 – 1837, Johann Gottlob Stahr

He was born at Liederstadt near Querfurth in Saxony. He went to Bitschine near Tost in Upper Silesia, where he worked as a private tutor on a manorial estate. He received his vocation on the 14th of September in 1789, and on the 24th of January in 1790 he was installed by the Trebnitz Senior Minister Prusse. He died on the 11th December in 1837 at the age of 85½ years. From 1795 on he held, as he told himself, the Polish service for only “all of three weeks”, “because of a decrease in the number of Polaken”.

Note by JWS:

Based on his age at the date of his death, Pastor Stahr would have been born around June of 1752.

Rosina Sternitzke married a Pastor Stahr at Trebnitz around 1791. She may have been the daughter of Christoph (1722-1777, SN41) and Maria Tschernißke, whose daughter Rosina was born at Briesche in 1758.

Their marriage must have been around 1791 because their oldest daughter Friedrike Wilhelmine Beate Stahr was born on the 21st of September in 1791. That date was based on her age (3 years, 5 months and 14 days), when she died at Pawellau on the 5th of March in 1795. She died from Absehrung (consumption).

Another daughter, Charlotte Henriette Louise Stahr was born on the 1st of November in 1793, at Pawellau.

Their oldest son, Carl Friedrich Wilhelm Stahr was born at Pawellau on the 14th of September in 1795. Carl was reported as the oldest son of Pastor Stahr of Pawellau, who died at the age of 3 years and 5 months on the 7th of January of 1799 from Steck-und Schlagfluss (apoplexy: a sudden loss of consciousness and death). Another son, Friedrich August Stahr was born at Pawellau on 12th of March in 1798.

In order to recite the weekly prayer held here at that time, he purchased soon after his assumption of office, the larger biblical devotional book written by Seiler, introducing the general confession, new collections and blessings, as well as communion rituals and three different introduction rituals for women in childbirth.

He abolished the “throwing around of money before the church door that was common up to now” at weddings (probably on the part of the bride and groom) and allowed to give himself “something volunteered from the bride and grooms” which he collected and later distributed among the poor of the bride’s village. Also, he reached an agreement with the Breslau-Öls Consistory that gave to him “permission to perform baptisms in houses at remote locations during the winter”.

His three-year-long quarrel with the Trebnitz Senior Pastor Prusse regarding about half of the Pawellau pastor’s salary (27 bushels of rye and 27 bushels of oats) and the Brietzen pastor’s salary (17 bushels of oats) ended in 1794. They agreed that an annual allowance would be awarded to him for the amount paid to Trebnitz as of that date. And with a future vacancy at the parsonage in Trebnitz, the Pawellau church should be separated from Trebnitz and the whole Pawellau and Brietzen salary payments should be awarded to the pastor of Pawellau.

Pastor Stahr closes his information about how this assurance had come about and how he was recognized, by quoting an applicable verse by the Roman poet Virgil:

“Hos ego versiculos feci (ego laboravi), tulit alter honores”
 “I have done the song (I have worked), and another has the honor of it.”

Note Well. The awarding also of the salary payments from Brietzen (I can only conclude it based on my understanding) and the formal separation of the Pawellau church from the Trebnitz church has not taken place. They were rejected later by the royal government (as unjustified) when Pastor Hoffmann applied for them again. Therefore, the afternoon sermons of the first Trebnitz pastors, during the first three high holidays continue here in Pawellau.

In 1802, on the occasion of repair to the roof of the church because of wind damage, the Turmknopf was removed, and the items placed in it (in 1708) by slate-roof-master Wilhelm Roelich from Lossen (see above) were found. Then in the holy evening of Pentecost (June 5th) of the same year, the Turmknopf was put on again, after as Pastor Stahr in a church register has noted the following had been put into the Knopf:

1. his "newsletter" (see above) together with a church inventory register,
2. 1 eight-groschen coin, 2 four-groschen coins and 2 silver-groschen coins.

From that "newsletter" of Pastor Stahr in 1802, we know the following locations were part of the Pawellau parish: Brietzen, Parnitze, Beckern, the Margarethenmühle (near Parnitze), the Teichwärtere (pond warden's house) with the Krötekretscham (Toad Inn) near Parnitze, and the forest master's house in Klein-Kommerow.

The affiliation of the Protestants also from Schimmerau to the local church was determined, based on a complaint by Pastor Stahr to the Prince-Bishop's court judicial office at the end of 1802, and by the instruction given by the court judicial office to the village mayor and the members of the local court at Schimmerau. In the same sense the village mayor and court of Beckern were informed through the court judicial office on the 14th of May in 1803 with regard to the Protestants there. They also did not consider themselves belonging to Pawellau. Duplicates of both answers are with the local documents. Beckern came later, but still during Stahr's times, incorporated to Karoschke.

Earlier, linden trees were planted outside the local churchyard. In 1802, through Pastor Stahr the outside and the inside ring were each planted with 24 Italian poplars given by the abbess at Trebnitz. (Note well: Now it is, since when is not known, chestnuts are planted inside the yard. The mulberry-trees which also still stand sporadically in the churchyard are from the time of Friedrich the Great when the same wanted to breed silk everywhere.)

The funeral book in 1789 still mentioned a "small cemetery", as being situated at the southwest end of the village on the right side. It had probably been sized out according to the actual size of the parish at that time. Already in Pastor Stahr's time it had become "out of use [as a cemetery] and was used as a pit for making glue."

In 1802, the high, princely Stift of Trebnitz was the patron of the local church, parish and school. On the 19th of June in 1803, this patron sponsored in an extremely ceremonious way its 600-year jubilee, a celebration at which Pawellau and Brietzen were represented by her mayors as were all of the other Stift villages.

Note by JWS:

The 600-year jubilee of the Trebnitz Stift was detailed in K.A. Schmidt's Geschichte des Klosterstiftes Trebnitz. Oppeln: Gratz, Barth & Comp., 1853.

In 1810 (on October 30th) the Stift was nullified by secularization and lost all its possessions and rights to the state. Since then, the tax authority is represented by the royal government in Breslau which became the patron of the local church, with an obligation for two-thirds of building construction costs. The right to choose the pastor alternates between the tax authority and the community. The last abbess was Dominika, born as the Baroness von Giller. Pastor Stahr called her a clever, tolerant and Christian lady.

Notes by JWS:

Abbess Dominika von Giller died on the 17th of August in 1810, and the abbey was secularized on the 11th of November in 1810.

1838 – 1861, Gustav Adolph Meckel von Hemsbach

He was born on the 2nd of October in 1802, in Liegnitz. He came here in 1838 from Rackschütz near Neumarkt, where he was the auxiliary priest, and held his first sermon on the 1st of July in 1838. He died on the 11th of July in 1861, at 58 years old.

A major repair of the church roof took place soon after he assumed office.

In his time the colony Carlsfeld, situated close to Pawellau and still existing, and its Protestant inhabitants were incorporated here. Later, it had been bought by Mr. von Salisch of Koschnöwe, who tore down the houses and reformed the area into arable land.

In 1846, the current altar picture was given to the church “by one wishing to be an unidentified benefactor”: “Christ Reciting Before the Holy Communion”, painted by Carlo Dolce.

 Photographed by Mr. Marian Radzik during the 2009 Tricentennial Jubilee Mass.

In 1848, a bill of sale was closed between the royal government and the school board of directors of the Protestant school in Brietzen (Pastor Meckel and the farm landowners Johann Nitschke and David Dimke) with regard to a Brietzen village meadow (the place must be behind the Brietzen community house in the direction toward the village pond), on which Brietzen intended to build their own schoolhouse. The children of Brietzen, where a school teacher had been from 1763 to 1838, were sent to school here in Pawellau since 1838.

In 1858 the following were named as members of the (first) Community Church Council from Pawellau: Christian Ruschig, Gottlieb Sebrantke, David Labitzke, Wilhelm Raabe; from Brietzen: Heinrich Sternitzke, David Dimke, Christian Gembus, and Gottlieb Gebel.

1861 – 1893, Gustav Adolph Hoffmann

He was born on the 13th of February in 1821. He had been the deacon and rector in Parchwitz. He held his presentation sermon on the second Sunday of Advent in 1861. On the 6th of February in 1862 he came here, and Superintendent Schneider inaugurated him on the 16th of February. On the 1st of January in 1893 he was retired and moved to Breslau, where he died on the 1st of June in 1897 at the age of 76 years. In 1862, Parnitze changed its corporation from here to Kainowe.

In 1862, a church inspection was held on the occasion of his inauguration by the Superintendent Schneider.

In 1866, the new schoolhouse was built.

In 1871, the Victory Oak Tree and later three Peace Linden Trees (with respect to the three communities belonging to the church: Pawellau, Brietzen and Schimmerau) were planted on the place situated to the north of the churchyard – at that time a gymnastic yard for the school.

In 1877, a general church inspection took place from the 21st of September to the 15th of October in the Trebnitz diocese; it was held on September 23rd in Pawellau.

In 1886, Superintendent Stenger from Trebnitz visited the local church.

In 1888, lightning struck the western vestibule of the church but did not cause a fire. A lightning rod was purchased for the church.

In 1890, the chandeliers that hang before the chancel of the church were given by Mrs. Gembus, a landowner in Pawellau.

1893 to present [1909], Ernst Ferdinand Conrad

He is a son of a pastor, born in Strehlen in Silesia. He had been a pastor in Polgsen, in Wohlau County for 3½ years, when he was called by our community. On the 15th of February in 1893, he started in the local vicarage, and was installed by Superintendent Stenger on the first Sunday of Lent (February 19th). He is currently 49 years old.

In 1893, the Christmas night celebration was new - and the New Year's Eve service was reintroduced.

In 1895, the new ecclesiastical liturgy was adopted.

In 1895 (September 13th to 15th), a church inspection was held here by Mr. Schubart, a Superintendent of the Consistory.

In 1897, the organ, except for the maintained and valuable case, was completely rebuilt by Schlag and Sons from Schweidnitz.

In 1897 (August 16th), the Diocese Mission Festival took place here.

In 1901 (July 14th), the church father Heinrich Sternitzke (a retired farm landowner) solemnly resigned from his office. He was presented with the general honorary medal. At the same time the master carpenter Wilhelm Wüste was inducted into the Church Fathers Office.

In 1906 (September 11th), the Diocese Gustav Adolf Festival took place here.

In 1908 (September 18th), the current church renovation began (for further details see below).

Since 1893 our church has received the following gifts:

- In 1893, a bronze altar crucifix through a collection by the ladies and young women of the community.
 - In 1893, an altar Bible from Mrs. Beate Labitzke, a landowner from Pawellau,
 - In 1894, a pair of altar bouquets from the Dimke family from Brietzen.
 - In 1895, a small communion box for the ill, together with a silver crucifix from Miss E. Suchel from Pawellau.
 - In 1895, a pair of silver communion candlesticks for the ill, from the Hereditary Mayor Ruschig of Pawellau.
 - In 1896, a nativity scene for the church Christmas night celebration from Miss E. Suchel.
 - In 1897, three bronze sacrificial plates from Mrs. Beate Labitzke from Pawellau.
 - In 1904, a pair of red, plush wedding armchairs from the Sternitzke family from Brietzen.
- Note by JWS: This was probably the family of August Sternitzke (1846-1929, SN18).
- In 1905, a pair of altar bouquets from the Hermann Labitzke family from Pawellau.
 - In 1905 a church carpet from the Dimke family from Brietzen.
 - In 1906, a copper beech altar – and pulpit clothing with genuine gilt threads and braids from the bride and groom Elbert-Gembus from Pawellau.
 - In 1906, an altar carpet from the Lachmann family from Brietzen.
 - In 1908, a pair of altar bouquets from the Robert Majuntke family from Pawellau.

In addition, bigger and smaller monetary amounts were given now and then by weddings, confirmations, burials and with other occasions, as well as annually by the confirmands for the decoration of the church in substantial number.

At this point, I want to again give thanks for all these donations, with a friendly request to our dear parishioners to further our church.

The Renovation of the Pawellau Church for its 200 Year Anniversary in 1909

Since 1802, when our church had been submitted to a renovation of bigger style, repairs had been carried out repeatedly during the course of time. Meanwhile they always applied repairs only to single parts of the church building, either only to the architectural damages, or as in 1890, made restorations only as necessarily to the inside. More and more a renovation became necessary in the course of the time, not only for a worthy renewal of the inside of the church, which had become unsightly as might be expected but also and primarily to protect her general existence.

Now it has undergone an extensive and thorough renovation. This has happened, probably due to the esteem of the municipality for its venerable church. The building construction progressed for the forthcoming celebration of its 200-year-old existence. It should be repaired appropriately and be decorated for the anniversary.

The Preparations and the Start of the Church Renovation

A thorough investigation followed the request by the local consistory to the high royal government in Breslau, for the approval of the desired renovation. This investigation was carried out by the royal construction inspection on the 3rd of October in 1907. Those who participated were the government representative, Mr. von Kunowski, and the senior civil servant and government building surveyor Maass (commissioners of the royal government), as well as the royal construction inspector for local affairs and construction adviser Mr. Rakowski from Trebnitz. The details were negotiated there and then with the united ecclesiastical bodies of the municipality. It was apparent at the onset of this hearing that the authorities were benevolently interested and made known their willingness to provide two-thirds of the fiscal responsibility for the renovation costs. A unanimous decision was reached, based on the quite thorough advice of the experts, to perform a complete renovation while preserving the ascetic art and pious values.

On the 8th of May of last year, the local consistory and municipal council agreed with the execution of the renovation, based on the quotation worked out by the construction adviser Mr. Rakowski. The necessary major work and outside work were awarded to Mr. Zimmer and master mason Max Kessler from Trebnitz. Instructions were provided by:

- Mr. Hugo Scheinert, a professor at the Breslau Royal School of Art, for the painting and revitalization of the interior of the church (from Lutsch: "The Art Monuments of Silesia"), the refresher paint from the middle of the eighteenth century, and the valuable historical altar shrine (a folding wooden Klappaltar).
- Professor Werner-Schwarzburg, also a professor at the Breslau Royal School of Art, for the addition of the Baroque style (eighteenth century), and for the very beautiful wood carvings on the altar, pulpit and organ.

Notes by JWS:

Hugo Scheinert was born in Breslau in 1873. He was a German painter, graphic artist and teacher. Johann (Hans) Karl Friedrich Lutsch was the author and editor of several books on Silesian architecture including Die Schlesiens Kunstdenkmäler, printed in Breslau in 1903.

Mr. Kessel began on September 18th of last year with the repair work he was responsible for. On the 2nd of October in 1908, at 8 o'clock in the morning the Turmknopf and the weather vane above it were brought down by Mr. Schneider, the roof-master from Prausnitz. In the Knopf still lay, closed firmly and unscathed, the wooden box which had been put in there by Pastor Stahr on the 5th of June in 1802. It was opened on the 4th of October in the presence of the local consistory. I already reported above about what was found in it and only want to note that the paper and coins were splendidly preserved and the writing still looked so fresh in both documents as if it was just written.

Remark by transcriber Karl Sille: The above age information for the folding altar "eighteenth century" is not possibly a mistake in transcription; this must be a misprint in the original, because it probably should say the "fifteenth century". See earlier descriptions of the folding altar shrine.

On October 16th, the gilded Turmknopf was reinstalled by the master painter Mr. Walker of Trebnitz, preceded by a meeting of the local consistory. The following was placed inside the Turmknopf:

- the wooden box already found in it with its entire previous contents,
- a new wooden box containing
- a thirty-page document written by me,
- 11 silver, nickel and copper coins dating from 1871-1908, and
- some printed matter of the very latest date.

Each time the external repairs to the church neared completion, new defects and damage was found which demanded attention. Now however, they have been completed except for the small details and also the internal painting of the church, which we had been able to start only after Easter of this year, now approaches its completion. So, we have committed that the 6th of July of this year, if God wills it, will be the date for the anniversary celebration.

And now, finally we are in a festive mood as we prepare for our anniversary.

The Renovated Church

It should be stated about our Pawellau church that the pulpit is facing the middle of the nave, serving the most important purpose of a Protestant religion church - the proclamation of the sermon. It is an octagonal-shaped, with brick work supporting large original timbers that are high octagonal columns, and these delicate spires are crowned by an imposing dome.

Connected to the nave are four halls that together form a cross. The eastern hall surrounds the altar, and the northern one encloses the sacristy, while the western and the southern form two entrances into the nave and at the same time led to the two stairways to the loft, which runs unbroken to the altar except for the choir and organ galleries.

Notes by JWS:

When I visited the Pawellau church in 2008 and 2009, the door from the southern hall to the cemetery and bell tower was not in use. The medieval altar shrine discussed earlier was displayed in the southern hall, blocking the doorway.

Photographed by Mr. Marian Radzik during the 2009 Tricentennial Jubilee Mass.

What has the current renovation of the church achieved? And may it be called a success from the practical, as well as from the artistic points of view? Let us hear about what they have created!

To begin at the top, the roof: the damage to the brick framework with which the lower part of the real church space, the octagon, and four halls are covered, and also the tin-plated roof of the dome and the tower have been repaired, as far as they were damaged. More repairs were required for flat roofs which required partial replacements. The latter, the tin plate roof, was repaired by restoration of the damaged places, and by painting the whole surface with a fresh coat of red lead paint.

The Turmknopf, as well as the star about the weather vane have been gilded (twice). The so-called “imperial style” central post, which passed through the hollow cavity of the ball to support the flag, was rotten and has been substituted with a new one.

The wooden frame of the building that is visible outside (cross ties, columns and braces) was spoiled and spotted over time because of the rain-washed lime whitewash. It was restored by painting it with Carbolineum Avenarius, so that it effectively shows off the cleaned masonry.

Notes by JWS:

Carbolineum Avenarius is a preservative coating for wood that was developed in 1888. It stains new wood a nut-brown color. Carbolineum is the same as creosote (a coal-tar distillate). Carbolineum Avenarius is creosote mixed with chemicals such as zinc chloride and other preservatives.

The wooden columns and braces in the vestibule walls which had rotted off completely below have been shortened and have received an accordingly higher underpinning. Eaves boards have been provided for the protection against moisture and rotting of the thresholds under the columns. They were also soaked with creosote, like all woodwork that is exposed to the weather. Where it was possible, they were anchored using clamping and bolting to achieve the necessary steady solidity to the whole building again.

The south side of the chancel hall whose frame and masonry had fallen off is basically new, and all three walls of this hall have been paneled inside with boards and plaster.

With a few exceptions all windows had become unusable and were replaced by new ones up to the three sacristy windows, and the two newly created side windows in the southern and western halls received hexagonally shaped windows. All replacement windows were the same shape as the originals, even the oval and round windows.

New cement steps were laid before the doors. The doors themselves were repaired and are complementary; the sacristy door is new on the outside; the door locks are useful and nicely placed.

To illuminate even more of the dome and at the same time the whole church space, a skylight window has been added in the upper part of the dome close to the lantern. The dome casing has been extended down to the floor of the loft, so that the earlier open attic is no more. The effect makes the dome look considerably greater. To animate the dome surface, eight oval-shaped barred windows have been installed in that area under the dome.

The tasteless glue and oil paint on the columns and loft ceiling covers have been removed, and all wooden parts visible inside church (the dome surface, the columns and loft ceilings) up to the loft balustrades have been artistically painted with a tincture of spirits of turpentine or petroleum wax.

The decorations which have been given to the chancel, the apse walls and the ceiling are especially rich and tastefully done. Even the sacristy, which before was quite bare, gives a very nice impression since it was painted. All the major round and oval windows, which were cut through the masonry, look better with painted borders.

 Photographed by Mr. Marian Radzik during the 2009 Tricentennial Jubilee.

The floor of the chancel has received new stone floor tiles. The old tiles have been laid in the corridors, and replaced with new tiles where necessary. The benches rest on a wooden floor. The benches themselves have been generally repaired.

In both foyers, wooden columns decorated with curved entrances and decorative spindles were raised. They have been provided with curtains to hold out the cold winter air from penetrating into the church space. Similarly, decorative spindles have been added under both pillar arches under the organ choir and also under the two lateral arches in front of the altar area.

I could further report about other improvements and embellishments which our church received, externally and internally by the current renovation, and would still have to mention also about the bell tower which was nicely restored to something that is useful- however, I want to and may now end. That said, I think I have given an idea of the extremely gratifying changes which have gone forward with our church. The jubilee renovation has given us a gift of a house of God, that is strengthened again in its construction, resplendent in most beautiful adoration, that will exist beyond our lifetime not only to serve our children and our children's children as a place of Protestant worship and edification, and as it becomes older and even more venerable, they will know more about past times.

Afterword by the Translator
James W. Sternitzky

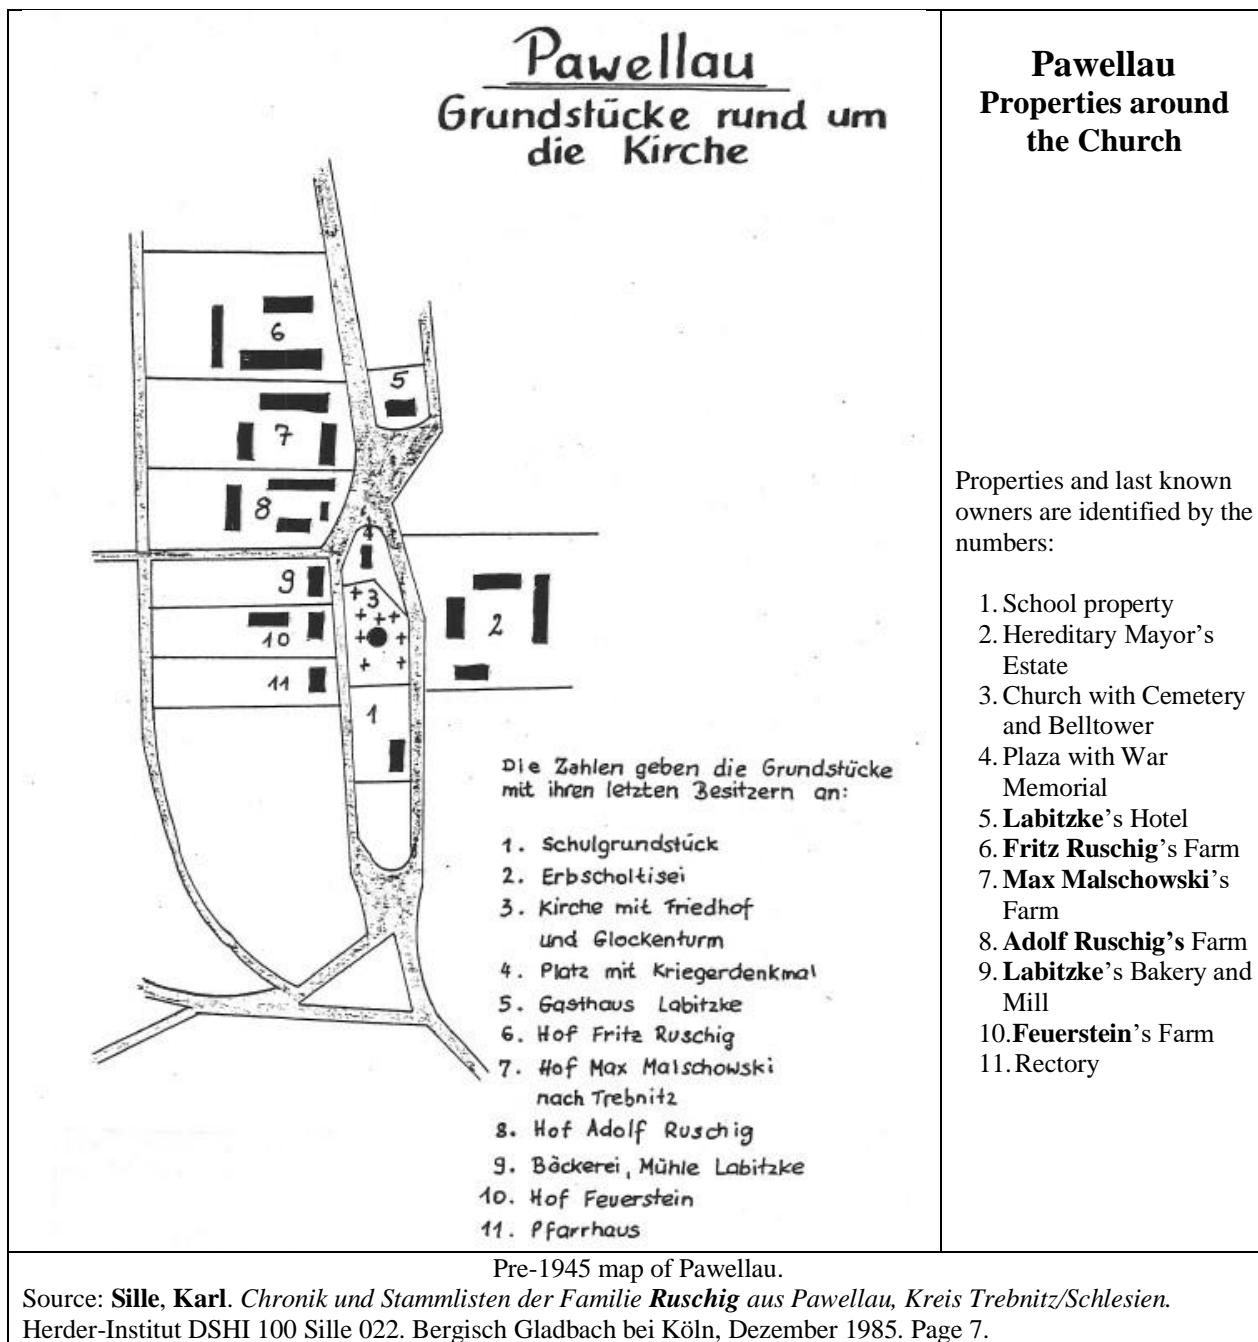

Memorial to the 300 Year Anniversary Jubilee

As I wrote earlier in this translation, I attended the tricentennial celebration at the Pawellau Church. It was a deeply moving experience – one of the highlights of my life. The members of the parish and communities in the county are proud of their beautiful church and treat it as a local treasure. I received the following photograph in May of 2010, from Mr. Zibigniew Lubicz-Miszewski (Director of the Trebnitz Regional Museum). It shows the monument was placed at the church in Pawłów Trzebnicki (Paulskirch/Pawellau, Trebnitz County). My translation of the plaque is:

Records of Sternitzke Family Events at Pawellau/Paulskirch

During my review of documents related to the Sternitzke family history, I identified several records related to the Sternitzke family at Pawellau Church. The table below summarizes those records of Sternitzke family members at Pawellau from all three books of this family history. Some of these records were found in the archived estate of Karl Sille at the Herder Institute in Marburg, Germany. During the time when the Protestant Church at Kainowe (later named Friedrichskirch) was demolished and rebuilt (1671 to 1754), some of the Sternitzke family events such as baptisms were held at the church in Pawellau. Some of those records were then copied to the church records at Kainowe. Wilhelm Starnitzki reviewed the Pawellau and Kainowe church record books, but only a very small number his notes from those records survived the Second World War, and were found in the Karl Sille files at Marburg. Those records are briefly listed in the table below and fully transcribed in Book I: Chapter 14: Friedrichskirch (Kainowe). The data table below is followed by information about Sternitzke family members from Pawellau.

The church record books for the Protestant Church at Pawellau have not been located, and were probably destroyed in 1945. Some of the civil records (birth, marriage and death registries) for Pawellau (Paulskirch) survived the war and are now stored at the Auslandsstandesamt (foreign registry office) Standesamt I in Berlin. The civil record books left Pawellau in a wagon driven by the Bauer (farmer) Richard Majuntke (Sille, Karl. DSHI 100 Sille 022, page 1). The record books were turned over to the U.S. Government in Bavaria. The office of the U.S. High Commissioner for Germany (USHCG) transferred the records to the German Archives at Hamburg in 1951. The original transfer order (now in the US National Archives) listed the following 104 Pawellau record books that were delivered from Wiesbaden to Hamburg in 1951:

- 33 volumes of birth records from 1874 to 1938,
- 1 volume of birth records from 1938,
- 1 volume of an alphabetical list of birth records from 1900 to 1929,
- 32 volumes of marriage records from 1847 to 1938,
- 3 volumes of family histories (Familienbuch Paulskirche) from 1938 to 1944,
- 1 volume of an alphabetical list of marriage records from 1900 to 1929,
- 31 volumes of death records from 1874 to 1927,
- 1 volume of death records from 1938, and
- 1 volume of an alphabetical list of death records from 1900 to 1939.

The Pawellau record books were transferred to Berlin in 1952.

A letter (dated 1 March 2013) from the Landesamt für Bürger- und Ordnungsangelegenheiten Standesamt I (in Berlin) to Wilfried Hübner reported the Standesamt I has the following Pawellau records:

- birth records from the 1st of October in 1874 to the 8th of January in 1945,
- marriage records from the 1st of October in 1874 to the 17th of January in 1945, and
- death records from the 1st of October in 1874 to the 16th of January in 1945.

The list of the Pawellau records at Berlin does not quite match the original list of documents that was delivered to the archives in Hamburg. Perhaps the other records (such as the Familienbuch Paulskirche) are included in the files at Berlin, but are not yet available to the public because of the German privacy laws.

Selected books from the Standesamt I (in Berlin) were scanned and are now available through Ancestry.com. They are included in a collection titled the Eastern Prussian Provinces, Germany [Poland], Selected Civil Vitals, 1874-1945. I reviewed the Pawellau Standesamt books in that collection and have added the Sternitzke family history data to this section.

Notes by JWS regarding Hufe and Morgen: A Hufe is the German word for a “normal full-sized farm (with crops, hay and pasture)” equal to 30 Morgens and is equivalent to about seventeen U.S. acres in size. Ernest Thode defined a Morgen as “theoretically the amount of land that one man and an ox can plow in one morning”.

Baptism Sponsor Eva Schiernißkin 1731 Pawellau

Eva Schiernißkin was the daughter of the Pauer (farmer) Christoph Schierniske from Pawellau. In 1709, Christoph Sciernisko (c.1676-after 1709) from Brietzen was a church father at Pawellau. On the 31st of May in 1731, Eva was one of the baptism sponsors for Hanß, the son of the Haußman (caretaker) George Marcus and Maria (née Fischerin) Marcus at the Catholic Church in Powitzko, in Militsch County. The George Marcus family were residents of Groß Kaschütz in Militsch County.

One of the other sponsors was Hanß Schiernißke (c.1712-1757). Hanß was the son of the Pauer (farmer) Daniel Schiernißke (1661-1723) from Domnowitz. Hanß Schiernißke married Maria Schiernißkin around 1737. They were cousins. The 1738 baptism record for their son Johannes and the 1740 baptism record for their daughter Susanna recorded Maria's maiden name as Schiernißkin. Maria was born around 1719, based on her age of 37 years old when she was buried on the 6th of November in 1756. Hanß and Maria were Lutherans and belonged to the church at Pawellau. Maria may have been a sister of Eva Schiernißkin from Pawellau. See Book I, Chapter 9: Germanengrund (Domnowitz) the Family of Georg Sciernisko (1639-1701), 1639 to 1757 Domnowitz.

Family of Johann Sternitzke and Anna Susanna (née Ruschig) Sternitzke

Johann Sternitzke (1771-1815) was born on the 25th of December in 1771 and was at one time a farmer at Pawellau. He died at Droschen on the 28th of April in 1815. Johann married Anna Susanna Ruschig. She was born on the 27th of May in 1773 at Pawellau. She was a sister of Friedrich Ruschig (c.1770-1829).

Johann and Anna Sternitzke had one daughter, Johanna Susanna Sternitzke (1796-1880) who was born on the 21st of July in 1796 at Droschen. Johanna Susanna married Gottlieb Pfeifer at Trebnitz on the 14th of October in 1818. She died on the 17th of August in 1880 at Trebnitz.

A 45 years old famer named Johann Sternitzke committed suicide at Droschen on the 28th of April in 1815. The nature of his death was reported in the Schlesische Provinzialblätter as:

Suicide. The farmer Johann Sternitzke in Droschen near Trebnitz, 45 years old and a good and brave man, lived with his contentious wife in an unhappy marriage and therefore he often sought to escape this situation by using brandy. This he also did on April 28th in the nearby village Burgwitz. He went back home at 4 o'clock p.m. and asked for food. His wife gave him a great piece of bread but he wanted to have a cooked meal. She gave him (instead of his wishes) some inappropriate and hard words. Upset about it, he threw the piece of bread at her, which hit her so that she fell to the ground unconscious. He shook her to revive her, but could not see any effect. Believing her to be dead, he feared for himself, searched for a rope and went to a birch tree and hung himself. A short time after he left, his wife woke up.

Family of Heinrich Sternitzke and Susanna (née Gnerlich) Sternitzke c.1796 to c.1801 Pawellau

- Circa Gen.VIII. Heinrich Sternitzke (senior, c.1776-after 1801) Pawellau. Married Susanna Gnerlich c.1796.
- Circa Gen.IXa. Gottlieb Sternitzke (1797-1889) Pawellau. Married Anna Rosina Kretchmer c.1823.
- Circa Gen.IXb. Heinrich Sternitzke (junior, 1799-1887) Pawellau, Brietzen. First marriage around 1828 to Susanna Gnerlich (c.1808-c.1841). Second marriage in 1842 to Christiane Gnerlich (1822-1905).
- Circa Gen.IXc. Friedrich Sternitzke (c.1801-1882) Pawellau. Married Susanne Helene Thinibel c.1828.

The Bauer (farmer) Heinrich Sternitzke (senior, c.1776-after 1801) married Susanna Gnerlich (c.1776-after 1801) around 1796. Their birthplaces and the names of their parents are not known. They had three known children who were born at Pawellau: Gottlieb in 1797, Heinrich (junior) in 1799 and Friedrich around 1801. Heinrich (senior) and his wife Susanna died at Pawellau before the 17th of May in 1887.

Birth, Marriage and Death of son Gottlieb Sternitzke (1797-1889)

Gottlieb Sternitzke (1797-1889) was born at Pawellau on the 29th of March in 1797. He was the son of the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Heinrich Sternitzke and his wife whose maiden name was written as Genorlich on Gottlieb's death record. Gottlieb's death record shows both of Gottlieb's parents died at Pawellau before 1889. Gottlieb's parents were probably Heinrich Sternitzke (senior) and Susanna (née Gnerlich) Sternitzke.

Gottlieb Sternitzke married Anna Rosina Kretchmer around 1823 (based on the birth date of their son Heinrich). They were married until Rosina's death. The 1889 death record for Gottlieb shows he was a widower for 15 years before his death, so Rosina died around 1874.

The Bauerauszügler (retired farmer) Gottlieb Sternitzke died at Pawellau at the age of 92 years old on the 21st of October in 1889. See the Family of Gottlieb Sternitzke and Rosina (née Kretschmer) Sternitzke, 1797 to 1904 Pawellau.

Birth, Marriage and Death of son
Heinrich Sternitzke (junior, 1799-1887)

The death record of Heinrich Sternitzke (junior, 1799-1887) shows he was born at Pawellau on the 2nd of June in 1799. He was the son of the Bauer Heinrich Sternitzke and his wife Susanna (née Gnerlich) Sternitzke who both died at Pawellau before 1887.

Heinrich Sternitzke (junior, 1799-1887) married Susanna (née Gnerlich) Sternitzke around 1828. She was born around 1808 and she died around 1885. Susanna probably died during, or shortly after the birth of their son Julius Robert Sternitzke (1841-1881) because the death record of Heinrich Sternitzke (junior, 1799-1887) shows he was married to his second wife Christiane (née Gnerlich) Sternitzke for 45 years (from 1842 until his death in 1887).

Heinrich Sternitzke (the son) married Christiane Gnerlich around 1842. The Bauergutsauszüger (retired owner of a farmstead) Heinrich Sternitzke (junior, 1799-1887) died at Brietzen on the 17th of May in 1887, at the age of 87 years old. He died in the home of his son the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) August Sternitzke (1846-1929, SN18) who signed the death record at Schimmerau. See the Family of Heinrich Sternitzke (junior, 1799-1887), 1828 to 1942 Brietzen.

Birth, Marriage and Death of son
Friedrich Sternitzke (c.1801-1882)

Friedrich Sternitzke (c.1801-1882) was born at Pawellau around 1801 (based on his age when he died in 1882). His death record shows he was the son of the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Heinrich Sternitzke and his wife Helene (née Gnerlich) Sternitzke. Friedrich's parents died at Pawellau before 1882. The death record for Friedrich was completed by his son Julius Robert Johannes Sternitzke (c.1843- 1921), who may have been mistaken in the first name of his grandmother. Or, her full name was Helene Susanna or Susanna Helene.

Friedrich Sternitzke (1801-1882) married Susanna Helene Thinibel (1806-1883) around 1828. The Bauergutsauszüger (retired owner of a farmstead) Friedrich Sternitzke died in the home of his son the Bauergutsbesitzer Julius Sternitzke, at Pawellau on the 19th of May in 1882. Friedrich was 81 years old when he died. See the Family of Friedrich Sternitzke and Susanne Helene (née Thinibel) Sternitzke, 1801 to 1912 Pawellau.

Family of Gottlieb Sternitzke and Rosina (née Kretschmer) Sternitzke 1797 to 1904 Pawellau

Gottlieb Sternitzke (1797-1889) was born at Pawellau on the 29th of March in 1797. He was the son of the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Heinrich Sternitzke and his wife whose maiden name was written as Genorlich on Gottlieb's death record. Gottlieb's death record shows both of Gottlieb's parents died at Pawellau before 1889. Gottlieb's parents were probably the same parents identified as for the younger Heinrich Sternitzke (1799-1887) discussed below: Heinrich Sternitzke (senior) and Susanna (née Gnerlich) Sternitzke.

Gottlieb Sternitzke married Anna Rosina Kretschmer around 1823 (based on the birth date of their son Heinrich). They were married until Rosina's death. Gottlieb was a widower for 15 years before his death, so Rosina died around 1874.

The Bauerauszügler (retired farmer) Gottlieb Sternitzke died at Pawellau at the age of 92 years old on the 21st of October in 1889. He was a Protestant. His death record was signed by his son the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Heinrich Sternitzke, who also was a resident of Pawellau.

Birth and Death of son Heinrich Sternitzke (c.1823-1904) Pawellau

Heinrich Sternitzke (c.1823-1904) was born at Pawellau around the 21st of October in 1823 (based on his age when he died). He was the son of the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Gottlieb Sternitzke and his wife Anna Rosina (née Kretschmer) Sternitzke. Heinrich's parents died at Pawellau before 1904.

Heinrich Sternitzke (c.1823-1904) was probably the Heinrich Sternitzke identified as a church father for the Protestant church in Pawellau from 1866 to 1901 in Chapter 5 of the book written by Pastor Ernst Conrad.

The Bauerauszügler (retired farmer) Heinrich Sternitzke died at Pawellau, at the age of 80 and ½ years old, on the 21st of April in 1904. The death of Heinrich was reported by his son-in-law the Stellenbesitzer (property owner) Adolf Gramatte from Gross Kommerowe in Trebnitz County. Heinrich was a Protestant.

Family of Friedrich Sternitzke and Susanne (née Kothin) Sternitzke 1800 to 1881 Pawellau

The generation numbers (shown as roman numerals in the below trees) were estimated from the known chronology shown in a table in Book I, Chapter 6: The Ancestors and Descendants of Wilhelm Starnitzki. I estimated that Friedrich Sternitzke was in the eighth generation because he married Susanne Kothin around 1800.

Circa Gen. VIII. Friedrich Sternitzke, married Susanne Kothin circa 1800.

Circa Gen. IX. Susanna Sternitzke (c.1800-1881), married David Ruschig (senior, 1795-1872).

Circa Gen. Xa. David Ruschig (junior, 1821-1876), married Beate Jung.

Circa Gen. Xb. Elisabeth Ruschig (1826-1906), married Emil Ernst Gembus.

Circa Gen. XI. Robert Gembus.

Marriage of Susann (Johanna) Sternitzke, 1828

Karl Sille's monograph regarding the history of the Ruschig family shows that David Ruschig married Johanna Sternitzke in 1828. David Ruschig was born at Pawellau in 1795 and died there in 1872. David was the son of the Erbscholz (hereditary mayor) of Pawellau Friedrich Ruschig (1770-1829). Friedrich Ruschig married a member of the Sternitzke family at Kainowe in 1795. Her first name was not known by Karl Sille.

David's brother Christian Ruschig (1807-1895) was the last member of the Ruschig family to hold the office of Erbscholz at Pawellau.

The 1828 year of marriage listed by Karl Sille was either incorrect or David Ruschig (senior) was married to another woman in 1821. David Ruschig (junior) was born in 1821.

Death of Susanna (née Sternitzke) Ruschig, 1881 Pawellau

Susanna (née Sternitzke) Ruschig was born at Pawellau around 1800 (based on her age of 81 years old when she died in 1881 at Pawellau). She was the daughter of the Bauer (farmer Friedrich Sternitzke and his wife Susanne (née Kothin) Sternitzke, who both died at Pawellau.

See the Family of David Ruschig and Susanne (née Sternitzke) Ruschig, 1821 to 1881 Pawellau.

Friedrich Sternitzke (c.1801-1882) was born at Pawellau around 1801 (based on his age when he died in 1882). His death record shows he was the son of the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Heinrich Sternitzke and his wife Helene (née Gnerlich) Sternitzke. Friedrich's parents died at Pawellau before 1882. The death record for Friedrich was completed by his son Julius Sternitzke, who may have been mistaken in the first name of his grandmother.

According to the death record of the Bauergutsbesitzer Friedrich Sternitzke, he was married to Susanna Helene née Thinibel for 54 years, so they were married around 1828. Susanna Helene Thinibel was born at Pawellau on the 21st of November in 1806. She was the daughter of the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Friedrich Thinibel and his wife Susanna (née Sylle) Thinibel, who both died at Pawellau before 1883.

The Kohlenhändler (coal merchant) Gottlieb Wilhelm Sternitzke, died at his home in Breslau on the 2nd of June in 1890. His death record shows he died at the age of 60 years and 7 months, so he was born around the 2nd of November in 1829. His death was reported by his wife Louise (née Demmig) Sternitzke. She reported that Gottlieb Wilhelm Sternitzke was born at Pawellau, the son of the Freibauer (free farmer) Friedrich Sternitzke and his wife Susanna Helene (née Tinnibel) Sternitzke. See the Marriage and Family of Gottlieb Wilhelm Sternitzky, 1854 to 1921 City of Breslau.

Birth and Death of son Julius Sternitzke (c.1843-1921)

The Bauer (farmer) Julius Sternitzke (c.1843-1921) was born at Pawellau around 1843. That year was based on his age (39 years old) when he was a witness at a wedding recorded at Schimmerau on the 27th of April in 1882, and his age 78 years old when he died at Pawellau on the 26th of July in 1921. His death record was signed at Pawellau by his son the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Julius Robert Johannes Sternitzke (1894-1972). The cause of death was identified as Lungenentzündung (pulmonary infection). See the Family of Julius Sternitzke and Emilie (née Ritter) Sternitzke, 1875 to 1942 Pawellau.

Birth and Marriage of daughter Ernestine Johanne Louise Sternitzke, 1849 & 1875

The Freibauer (free farm owner) Friedrich Sternitzke and his wife Susanne Helene (née Thinibel) Sternitzke lived at Pawellau in 1849. Ernestine Johanne Louise Sternitzke was born at Pawellau around 1849. She was still living with her parents at Pawellau in 1875. Note the maiden name of Susanne Helena was spelled Thienibel on her daughter's civil marriage record.

Ernestine Johanne Louise Sternitzke was 26 years old when she married the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Heinrich August Tschipke at Schimmerau, on the 6th of July in 1875. They were both Protestants. Heinrich August Tschipke was 33 years old and lived at Gross Peterwitz in Trebnitz County. He was the son of the Bauergutsbesitzer Johann Gottlieb Tschipke and his wife Dorothea (née Strietzel) Tschipke. The groom's parents also lived at Gross Peterwitz. The registrar wrote the family name as Tschipke, but the groom signed his name as August Schipke (see below).

The wedding witnesses were the 76 years old Bauergutsbesitzer Heinrich Sternitzke from Brietzen and the 36 years old Gasthausbesitzer (hotel owner) Georg Vogt from Gross Peterwitz. Heinrich Sternitzke was born on the 2nd of June in 1799 at Pawellau). Heinrich Sternitzke (junior, 1799-1887) was the bride's uncle. The following records are related to the Friedrich Sternitzke (1820-1896) family from Pawellau. Additional information regarding the military service and emigration of members of the Sternitzke family from Pawellau has been included here from the associated chapters in Book III. The history of this family group is relatively recent, from the century before both World Wars until after the post-war expulsions of the Germans from Silesia. Emigrations of Sternitzke family members from Pawellau occurred from 1889 until 1953. To protect the privacy of living family members, the information provided here is purposely sketchy. The historical records of this family group were preserved by a descendant of Friedrich Sternitzke: Mr. Richard A. Harrer (1948-2020) of Eagle Harbor, Michigan. The photographs and information presented below were generously provided by Mr. Harrer.

The death record of Friedrich Sternitzke (1820-1896) shows he was born on the 3rd of January in 1820 at Gross Cainowe in Trebnitz County. On the 7th of May in 1877, the 56 years old Schmiedemeister Friedrich Sternitzke from Pawellau was a witness at the wedding that was recorded at Schimmerau, but probably took place at the Protestant Church at Pawellau. The 29 years old Schmiedemeister (master smith) Ernst August Schlinsog from the city of Trebnitz married the 22 years old Schneiderin (seamstress) Ernestine Caroline Gebel from Pawellau. Notes on the 1901 marriage record provided details regarding Paul Kupka and his daughters. A note on his marriage record shows that Paul Kupka died on the 16th of May in 1939 at Trebnitz (Standesamt Trebnitz death record number 96 in 1939). There were also notes regarding the records of their daughters Helene Berta Kupka and Waltraut (Trautel) Kupka (see below).

Sternitzke family letters from Pawellau to the United States recorded Berta as living in the city of Trebnitz in 1930. The 1931 address book for Trebnitz listed Paul Kupka as living at Friedrich-Ebert-Straße 12. The address for the widow Berta Kupka in 1942 was Horst-Wessel-Straße 12 in Trebnitz.

Berta Kupka and her daughters (Erna and Waltraut) were expelled from Silesia in 1945. They lived in Czechoslovakia until the end of the war and then walked back to Trebnitz. The walk took them three weeks, and Trebnitz was mostly destroyed by the war. They were then driven to Kottbus (Cottbus, Lusatia, now in Brandenburg). They traveled to Golberode, five miles south of Dresden, to stay with Berta's sister Anna Tondera, and worked as laborers on a farm. They were still living at Golberode in October of 1947. In November of 1970, Berta and her daughter Erna were living at Nikern, five miles southeast of Dresden.

Paul and Berta Kupka had three daughters. The letters from Berta and other family members to family in the United States were the sources of additional information regarding Berta's daughters. The ages of her daughters were recorded in a letter from Berta Kupka to Reinhold Sternitzke, dated the 3rd of October in 1947.

- Helene Berta Kupka was born on the 22nd of January in 1921 at Pawellau (birth record number 2 in 1921). She died on the 19th of October in 1940 at Trebnitz (death record number 38 in 1940). She had been married for only one year.
- Erna Kupka as 24 years old in 1947, so she was born around 1923 at Trebnitz. She was living with her mother at Nikern, Saxony on the 30th of November in 1970.
- Waltraut (Trautel) Kupka was born on 21 October 1929 at Trebnitz (birth record number 144 in 1929). She married Wolfgang Muller. They had a son named Roland Muller. A letter from Waltraut dated the 2nd of September in 1970 recorded that Roland was enrolled in his last year of school, and that the family was living in Dresden, Saxony.

An old faded photograph exists showing the sisters Berta, Anna and Emma. Berta and Anna were young women so the photograph may have been from around 1915. Emma at that time was a very young girl – perhaps two or three years old.

- Circa Gen.Xb. Wilhelm Sternitzke (1854-1925) was born on the 10th of August in 1854 at Pawellau, one of the twin sons of Friedrich Sternitzke. Wilhelm married Pauline Schosnig around 1890.

The death record for the Auszügler (pensioner) Wilhelm Sternitzke shows they were married 35 years until his death in 1925. Wilhelm Sternitzke died at Pawellau on the 17th of June in 1925, at the age of 70 and $\frac{3}{4}$ years. The names of his parents are not identified on his death record, but because he was a twin, his mother must have been Anna Rosina (née Sternitzke) Sternitzke.

There are two notes written in the margin of the death record. The first note listed his birth date as the 10th of August in 1854. The second note listed his cause of death as Lungenentzündung (pneumonia). Pauline signed her husband's death record.

Pauline Schosnig was born on the 11th of December in 1867 at Maretschine (in Militsch County, Silesia). Variations of her maiden name include: Schosnig, Schossnig, Tschaschnig and Tschosnig. She was the daughter of Elisabeth (née Thomas) Schosnig who was born at Maretschine on the 18th of October in 1826 and died at Pawellau on the 21st of February in 1901. Elisabeth Thomas was the daughter of Heinrich Thomas and his wife Eva Rosina Nitschke who died at Maretschine. The Freigärtner Wilhelm Sternitzke signed the death record of his mother-in-law Elisabeth (née Thomas) Schosnig. She was a Protestant. Her name was originally written as Tschaschnig on her death record, and then corrected to Schosnig.

Pauline (née Schosnig) Sternitzke died on the 3rd of October in 1952 at Munchschofen, Bavaria.

Wilhelm Sternitzke had a blacksmith shop at his farm in Pawellau (shown below). The 36 years old Schmiedemeister (master smith) Wilhelm Sternitzke from Pawellau was one of the witnesses at the wedding of the Freigärtner Herrmann Adolf Schosnig and the Bauertochter (farmer's daughter) Beate Luise Feuerstein. The marriage was recorded at Brietzen on the 25th of November in 1890, but it was probably performed at the Protestant Church in Pawellau. The bride and the groom were both Protestants.

Wilhelm's signature from the original marriage record is copied here.

After Wilhelm's death in 1925, Pauline and her son Hermann Fritz lived at the family farm at Pawellau until they were evacuated on the 21st of January of 1945. The family fled to Oberndorf (perhaps Oberndorf bei Salzberg near the Austrian border) where they stayed with a farmer named Karl Mauer. They tried to return to Pawellau after the war (along with nineteen other families) but were turned back by the Russians. The Sternitzke family (Pauline, Hermann's family, Gustav and his wife Martha) were resettled at a farm near Eschlbach, two kilometers northeast of Leiblfling, Bavaria on the 24th of August in 1945. Hermann's sons, who had served in the German Army during the Second World War, rejoined the family at Eschlbach before the end of 1945: Alfred on the 16th of October; Martin on the 4th of November.

Wilhelm and Pauline Sternitzke had four sons: Reinhold, Hermann, Paul and Adolf (see the family photograph below). Three sons (Hermann, Paul and Adolf) served in the German Army during the First World War. Paul and Adolf were killed during the war.

He found a job working at a farm near Chicago owned by another branch of the Sternitzke family (see Book III, Chapter 20: Sternitzke Emigrations from Europe to America).

Reinhold Wilhelm Sternitzke became a naturalized U.S. citizen on the 13th of June in 1913. In 1920, he was living and working at the farm of Adolph A. Quasthoff in Bremen Township, Cook County, Illinois.

Reinhold Sternitzke applied for a U.S. passport on the 5th of July in 1922. The application shows he was born at Pawellau on the 22nd of April in 1891. He had been living at Chicago from 1907 to 1922 where he worked as a farmer and became a naturalized citizen. He was traveling back to Pawellau to visit his parents. He intended to leave the port of New York on board the Resolute on the 25th of July in 1922. The second page of the application included a signed photograph of Reinhold. The passport was issued on the 10th of July in 1922.

Reinhold moved from Chicago to St. Paul, Minnesota, where he married Ida Marie Sletten (1894-1986). Ida Sletten was born on the 20th of October in 1894, the daughter of Engebret Sletten and Anne Mathea (née Leland) Sletten. Ida died on the 10th of November in 1986 at Aitkin, Minnesota. Reinhold died at Aitkin, Minnesota on the 26th of January in 1984.

Anna Rosina Sternitzke was born on the 4th of June in 1821 at Peterwitz (near Wiese) in Trebnitz County. She was the daughter of the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Johann Christian Sternitzke and his wife Susanna (née Fabisch) Sternitzke. Her parents died at Peterwitz before 1901. See the Family of Johann Christian Sternitzke, 1816 Trebnitz, 1821 & 1833 Peterwitz.

Anna Rosina (née Sternitzke) Müller died at Pawellau on the 17th of May 1901, at the age of 79 and $\frac{3}{4}$ years. Her husband, Gottlieb Müller died in 1883 (see below). The Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Gottlieb Müller and his wife Anna Rosina (née Sternitzke) Müller lived at Dobertowitz (in Militsch County) in 1849 and 1860. Their son (Carl Friedrich David Müller) and their daughter (Rosina Pauline Auguste Müller) were born at Dobertowitz. Death of the Taubstumme Friedrich Sternitzke
1891 Pawellau

Friedrich Sternitzke (1825-1891) was born at Brietzen in May of 1825. He was a Taubstumme (deaf-mute) and the son of the Halbhübner Gottlieb Johann Sternitzke and his wife. The maiden name of Gottlieb's wife was Schwarz. A Halbhübner was a farmer who owned a farm with a property size of ½ Huben (about 8 acres). One Huben (also known as a Hufen) was the size of the property associated with a standard full-sized farm.

The Schmiedemeister (master smith) Wilhelm Sternitzke (1854-1925) from Pawellau reported the death of the Taubstumme (deaf-mute) Friedrich Sternitzke on the 26th of July in 1891. Friedrich was 66 years old when he died, unmarried and a resident of Pawellau. Friedrich's parents died at Brietzen before the death of their son.

BOOK III

Sternitzke Family Silesian
Histories and Origin

By

James W. Sternitzky Ph.D.

Introduction

In this book, I have generally continued the practice started by Wilhelm Starnitzki to use the Sternitzke spelling to refer to our overall family. But, where a reference uses a distinct spelling of our name for a specific person or family group, the spelling used in the reference was used by me and underlined to show it deviated from Sternitzke and to show I verified the original source used that variation. I also continued my conventions used in translating. Foreign words appear in italics and the English word “county” is used as the translation for the German word Kreis.

While researching and translating the works of Herr Wilhelm Starnitzki and Pastor Ernst Conrad, I made connections with other researchers who have ties through marriage with the Sternitzke family. Besides helping me with translating, Wilfried Hübner, Margarete (née Runge) Reiter and Martin Kugler provided additional history related to the Sternitzke family in Silesia. Their contributions have been added and credited.

Wilhelm Starnitzki concentrated on documenting his direct lineage in Trebnitz County, but through his work he documented much of our general family history outside his lineage and identified many branches from his family tree. In some cases, he referred to other Silesian villages and counties our family lived in (and provided some information about those locations). Pastor Conrad's history of the Pawellau Church included the historical events that affected our family at Pawellau and at other villages in Trebnitz County. In order to better translate the works of Wilhelm Starnitzki and Pastor Conrad, I researched the background behind the events, locations and people that were mentioned. In doing so, I found that there is a great deal of Sternitzke family history on web pages and in old German books now available on the Internet. Most of that 500-year Silesian history of the Sternitzke family is fragmented due to the destruction of records by natural disasters and wars. Only a small portion can be directly linked to the family tree that was built by Herr Starnitzki.

Part 1 of this book documents the fragments of Sternitzke family history, organized by the Silesian administrative district (Regierungsbezirk), then by county (Kreis), and then by city, town or village. I start this book with Breslau County, followed by Trebnitz County and then followed by other locations alphabetically. Many of the Breslau city records (birth, marriages and deaths) survived the Second World War and have been made available for review on the Internet. The Breslau records provided the names, occupations and locations of the parents in many records that often linked the Breslau Sternitzke family groups to the family groups in the other parts of Silesia. Trebnitz County was discussed next because it was the center of Sternitzke family activities from 1500 to 1945.

The Sternitzke family history, as documented by Wilhelm Starnitzki, originated in Trebnitz County in the Breslau District in the 16th century. From Trebnitz County, the family spread to the neighboring counties in the Breslau District: Breslau, Militsch, Wohlau, and Öls. Other members of the Sternitzke family were recorded in counties of the Liegnitz District and Oppeln District of Silesia.

The Landkreisen (counties) and administrative districts were established by Prussia, long after the Sternitzke family first settled in Silesia, but most of the written sources (regarding Silesia) that have survived and are available via the Internet were written in the 18th and 19th centuries. So, the information in this book is organized and based on the Prussian administrative structure (districts, counties, cities, towns and villages). Grouping the data by city, town or village is useful for identifying links between fragments from multiple sources (civil records, military records, newspapers, church records, etc.). It was especially useful to list the data chronologically for each location because the spellings of the Sternitzke name varied between the sources. The map below shows the counties of Silesia in 1937 within the three administrative districts: the Liegnitz district to the west, the central Breslau District, and the Oppeln District to the east. The Oder River (shown in purple on the map) flows northwest across all three districts of Silesia.

 and the counties (Landkreise). Rivers are marked in purple.

In order to limit the size of this book, I have concentrated on the Sternitzke family history during the time when the family lived in Silesia, which means up to the end of the Second World War. Three major exceptions to that limitation are the chapters in Part 2 regarding: the Sternitzke family members who served in the military, the family members who migrated to other parts of Prussia (Brandenburg, Posen, Pomerania, West Prussia and East Prussia), and the chapter regarding emigrations to the United States. One minor exception to my self-imposed boundaries is the interesting story of the “Polish Countess” Dorothea Sternitzky, discussed below (because I didn’t know where else to include it).

The chapter regarding military service began with members of the Sternitzke family who were born in Silesia and who performed military service in many locations in and out of Silesia. But that chapter was expanded to include all Sternitzke family members who served in the German military service during the First and Second World Wars. Wilhelm Starnitzki had determined that by the beginning of the twentieth century, the Sternitzke family had spread from its origin in Trebnitz County to many parts of Germany. As far as I have been able to determine, all of the Sternitzke family members who served in the German military during the two World Wars were descendants of the Sternitzke family from Silesia. An interesting example was the Bavarian military records of Wilhelm Starnitzki (the native Silesian author of the first book in this family history), whose military records were found on the Internet.

The Posen branch of the family tree originated in Silesia and had a relatively short history in Posen between the time when that territory became a Prussian province and the time when the Germans were expelled after the Second World War. In some cases, the Sternitzke family groups in Posen can be directly linked to their Silesian ancestors. From Posen, the Sternitzke family continued to expand northwards into Pomerania.

The emigration records (from Germany) and immigration records (into the United States), and the vital records of the Sternitzke family in the United States provided pieces of their Silesian history (such as village of origin and the birthdates of their children born prior to the emigration).

In Part 3 of this book, I describe my theory of the origin of the Sternitzke name: that the name derived from the name of a village. I also identify several villages which could have been the source of the family name, and the possible location of the family prior to their 16th Century to 1945 history in Trebnitz County. This book is not the end of the search for our family roots, because the Sternitzke family began as ethnically a German family, meaning they were settlers in Silesia. The family origin was somewhere to the west of Silesia (with a possible period of time in Bohemia before settling in Trebnitz County of Silesia).

In 1175, Duke Henry the Bearded brought a religious order called the Cistercians from what is now the German state Thuringia to Leubus in Wohrlau County (about 30 miles northeast of Breslau). In 1202, the Cistercian abbey at Trebnitz (which later became the county seat of Trebnitz County) was established. German farmers from Thuringia, Saxony, Franconia and Brandenburg were encouraged to settle the land near these religious centers at Leubus and Trebnitz. The German settlers were allowed to establish villages and administer themselves under German Law. This historical process is known in German as Ostsiedlung (settlement in the east) and Ostkolonisation (east colonization). The descendants of the German settlers called Silesia their home for hundreds of years, until they were forced to leave after the Second World War.

The Sternitzke family survived hundreds of years of wars, famines and plagues in Silesia. The original home of the Sternitzke family was somewhere to the west of Silesia in modern Germany, and family members are probably now living at or near that location. That is a comforting thought to me. I hope that more lost records are found and shared via the Internet, so that someday we can learn more about the early history of our family.

Many variations of the Sternitzke family name have been recorded over the last 500 years. The sections regarding the Breslau civil records (births, deaths, marriages and address books) include surnames that are in addition to the variations of the Sternitzke name that were identified by Wilhelm Starnitzki. My list of Sternitzke name variations grew as I reviewed civil records. For example: Hermann Sternitzke was also listed as Hermann Stanitzke in the 1931 Breslau address book. The 1935 Breslau address book listed three name variations for the resident at Kospothstraße 45: Auguste Sternitzke, Auguste Stanitzke and Auguste Sternitzki. See the Marriage and Family of Eduard Hermann Sternitzke and Auguste Karoline Gawlitta, 1900 to 1943 City of Breslau. The complete list of Sternitzke name variations found in my research is included in the section of this book regarding the origin and meaning of the family name.

As mentioned before, it was very difficult for me to limit the scope of my research. The history of the Sternitzke family did not stop at the borders of Silesia. There were many interesting family members who lived in Germany and the United States of America. There were also members of the Sternitzke family who emigrated to other parts of Europe. Below is a very odd story regarding the “Polish Countess” Dorothea Sternitzky which does not fit in any of the chapters of this book.

The Fraudulent Countess Dorothea Sternitzky 1865 Munich, Bavaria

In 1865, several German newspapers published reports regarding the strange case of a fraudulent Polish Countess Sternitzky (polnische Gräfin Sternitzky). The alleged countess, who perpetrated various frauds in several locations in Germany and Austria, turned out to have been a thin 22-year-old waiter from Wasserburg (25 miles east of Munich, Bavaria) who dressed in elegant women’s clothing. The waiter was the son of a butcher (named Brucker) from Wasserburg. The District Court of Traunstein (about 50 miles southeast of Munich) initiated the investigation and warrant. The pseudo-countess was captured in Switzerland and transferred to Munich. According to the newspaper articles, the waiter did not receive any material advantages from his frauds while posing as a countess for his amusement at Traunstein and other resort towns in Germany. He played his role so well that a rich Englishman proposed marriage to him in Baden-Baden.

Research performed by Wilfried Hübner identified the young man’s name was Theodor Brucker. Though Theodor posed as Countess Dorothea Sternitzky, he was not related to the Sternitzky family. Theodor Brucker received several years in prison for his frauds.

Part 1: Sternitzke Family History in Silesia

Chapter 1

Breslau County in the Breslau District

City of Breslau

During its 1000+ year history, Breslau (now Wrocław) was ruled over by several political entities and has been known by many names. Davies and Moorhouse, the authors of the most comprehensive history of Breslau (in the English language), categorized the major periods of the city and the associated dominant forms of the city's name:

- Wrotizla during the early Medieval Piast period (1000-1335),
- Vretslav under the rule of the Kingdom of Bohemia (1335-1526),
- Presslaw under the rule of the Habsburg Monarchy of Austria (1526-1741),
- Bresslau under the rule of the Kingdom of Prussia (1741-1871),
- Breslau from the beginning of the German Empire until the end of the Second World War (1871-1945), and
- Wrocław, Poland (after 1945).

The cultural and political history of the Bohemian Kingdom continued to play an important role in the history of our family during the period under Austrian rule, because Silesia was still considered part of the Crown Lands of Bohemia, under the rule of the Habsburg Monarchy of Austria. The Hussite Wars (1419-1434) and Thirty Year's War (1618-1648) began in Bohemia (in the area that is now the Czech Republic) but spread to the Bohemian Crown Lands including Silesia, causing destruction of farms, churches and whole villages from Bohemia to the shores of the Baltic.

There have been many variations in spelling of the city Breslau, depending on the education and ethnicity of the writer and language of the publication. Davies and Moorhouse wrote they found more than fifty variations of the name of Breslau, which is about one half of the number of variations of the Sternitzke family name (see Chapter 21). Paul Hefftner wrote in 1909, the Czech form for use in Latin documents was Wratislaw. He also wrote that the names of the city were based on the names of historical people: the Bohemian Duke Bretislaw and the Bohemian King Wratislaw (and that the name Wrocław was a short version of Wrócislaw, the Polish version of Wratislaw). Hefftner's complete list of variations of the name of Breslau was:

- Wortislaua (1017),
- Wratislaviensem (1155),
- Vrodezlau (1157),
- Vratizlau (1189),
- Vratizlav (1193),
- Werslaue in Wroczlaviensi province (1198),

- Wreczeslaw and Wratislaw (1201),
- Vroslavia (1202),
- Wrezlau (1204),
- Wratislaviensi (1208),
- Wratislaviensis (1221),
- Wrotizlaensis (1226),
- Wratislau (1245),
- Wratislavia (1247),
- Wrazslavie (1253),
- Wratislavia (1254),
- Breßlau (1266 German document),
- Pressela (1267 German document),
- Wratislaw (1280 German document),
- Wrezlaw (1295 German document),
- Wraislaw (1301 German document),
- Bretzla (1302 German document),
- Breslau (1314 & 1334 German documents),
- Brezlaw (1314 & 1357 German documents),
- Bretzlaw and Bretzlau (1324 German document),
- Wretslaw (1327 German document),
- Brezlaw (1333-1370 German documents),
- Wratislauia (1337 Latin document),
- Breslou (1339 German document),
- Breslaw (1348 & 1351 German documents),
- Wraczlaviensis (1348 & 1351 Latin documents),
- Bresslawe and Presslaw (1350 German document),
- Wraczlavie (1351 & 1362),
- Bresslow (1359, 1361, 1363 & 1367),
- Bresslaw (1359),
- Breslow (1360),
- Brezslaw (1367),
- Bresslau and Bretzlaw (1371),
- Breßlaw (1452-1620),
- Breßlau (1453-1800),
- Presslaw (1555 & 1561) and
- Breslau or Breßlau (1713, 1792, 1801 and later).

After World War II, Breslau became officially known as Wrocław by the Poles, but continued to be referred to as Breslau by the Germans. This political issue was resolved in 1990 when the borders of Poland were formally recognized. Breslau continues to be used as the name of the city by Germans (even on the departure/arrival monitors at the German airports). Gregor Thum wrote that even some Poles refer to the city as Breslau in documents published for German readers. I refer to the city as Breslau in this book (and generally use the German names for other locations), because most of the documents I reviewed for writing this book were written in German before 1945. Please note that the city was spelled Bressla on the 1493 drawing below. On the map shown below from 1650, the city was identified both as Wratislavia and Breszlaw.

My visits to Breslau

My wife and I hired a tour guide in 2008 to show us the main attractions of the old city: the Ring, the Rathaus (old city hall), the 700-year-old Schweidnitz (now Świdnica) beer cellar, the University, the St. John the Baptist's Cathedral and many churches. Many of the original buildings were destroyed in 1945, but the Ring (now called the Rynek) and some of the major historical buildings have been restored. Photographs of those historic buildings are available on the Internet (and are much better than mine).

We then spent the next week visiting museums, touring Trebnitz and Öls Counties and exploring Breslau on our own (by foot and by rental car). We never had problems finding our way to destinations inside the old city walls, or to cities and villages outside the city, but we got lost in the suburbs of modern Breslau almost every day, and often had to use a compass and maps to find our way back to the hotel.

Early members of the Sternitzke family generally lived in small German farming villages in Trebnitz, Militsch and Öls counties to the north and northeast of Breslau. But there are records of our family members who lived in Breslau, were married in Breslau churches and attended the schools at Breslau. As part of his search for his Sternitzki ancestors, Gustav Stein (Ph.D. in Political Science, born around 1859) requested a search of the State and City Archives in Breslau in 1934 to identify the first bearer of the Sternitzke family name in those records. The earliest Sternitzke record found in the Breslau personal records collection was for the wedding of Anna Regina Sternitzke in 1698. Dr. Stein also identified (through literature searches) a Jakob Sternitzki, a baker who lived in Breslau in 1695. The results of Dr. Stein's research are presented in this chapter and in the chapter regarding the Hochkirch Parish (in Trebnitz County), and in Book III, Part 3: Analyses and Theories of Origin.

Old Breslau city address books provide the names, occupations and addresses for many Sternitzke family members. In 2009, I used those address books and pre-1945 Breslau street maps (showing house numbers) to locate and photograph several of the buildings our family lived in. Though the street names were changed after the Second World War, and many of the buildings were rebuilt after the destruction by the Soviet invasion, I was able to navigate quite easily using the old maps of the city. The book Uprooted, by Gregor Thum thoroughly documented the process of renaming the streets of Breslau, and mentions that the house numbers were not changed after the Second World War. I found this to be true by comparing old maps of Breslau (that showed house numbers) to modern maps of Wrocław, and by comparisons during my walking tours in the city.

I did not search for Sternitzke family members in the cemeteries of Breslau in 2008 or 2009, having been shown at the Koszurki (formerly Kotzerki) village cemetery in 2008 how the German tombstones in Silesia had been broken and used as building materials. I had also learned from the local village priests at Pawłów Trzebnicki (formerly Pawellau) and Koniowo (formerly Friedrichskirch) that the German cemeteries no longer existed. I was not able to learn what happened to the bodies. Gregor Thum's book later confirmed that all of the German cemeteries in Breslau had been dismantled between 1964 and 1968.

Below is a map showing the locations inside the old city walls where a few members of our family lived. I used this map for a walking tour of Breslau. A few photographs of those locations are included in this chapter. The Sternitzke family members listed in Breslau address books throughout the city are transcribed in this chapter. I have added the modern Polish street names, which with the building numbers can be used to locate their locations on Google Maps.

Sternitzke Family of Bakers in Breslau

Several members of the Sternitzke family were associated with the baking occupation at Breslau. They held the occupational titles: Bäckergeselle (journeyman baker), Bäcker (baker), Bäckermeister (master baker), Konsumbäcker (baker at a cooperative), Pfefferkuchler (gingerbread baker) and Bäckerei Eigenthümer (proprietor of a bakery). Some relationships are known and others are surmised. Below is a summary of the Sternitzke family employed as bakers. See the chronology of Sternitzke family events at Breslau for the details and sources.

- Jakob Sternitzci (c.1660-after 1695) was a member of the trade guild, the Bäckergesellen - Brüderschaft (brotherhood of journeymen bakers) of Thorn, and lived at Breslau in 1695. See the Bäckergesellen Jakob Sternitzci, 1695 City of Breßlau.
- The Bäckergeselle (journeyman baker) Friedrich Starnitzke was a baptism sponsor at the St. Marie Magdalena Protestant Church in 1815. Friedrich was identified as being from Damnowitz (Domnowitz in Trebnitz County). He was probably the same man identified as the Bäcker (baker) Friedrich Sternitzki (1786-1848) in 1817. See the Bäckergeselle Friedrich Starnitzke From Damnowitz, 1815 City of Breslau.
- The Bäckermeister (master baker) Friedrich Karl Sternitzke (1786-1848) and his family lived at Goldene Radegasse 5. Friedrich is known to have lived there from at least 1839, until his death in 1848. His wife Anna Rosina (née Elsner) Sternitzke lived at Goldene Radegasse until her death 1871. Their oldest son Carl Friedrich Alexander Sternitzke (1821-after 1871) was also a Bäckermeister at Goldene Radegasse 5. See the Bäckermeister Sternitzke Family of Goldene Radegasse 5, 1817 to 1871 City of Breslau.
- The Bürger und Bäckermeister (citizen and master baker) Johann Gottfried Sternitze was one of the baptism sponsors for Henriette Wilhelmine Amalie Mühlfried at the St. Maria Magdalena Protestant Church in Breslau in 1828.
- The Bäckergeselle (journeyman baker) Carl Friedrich Sternitzke (c.1823-1868) married Susanna Eleonore Taube in Breslau on the 26th of July in 1858. Carl was the oldest son of the Bauergutbesitzer David Sternitzke (c.1793-after 1854) from Gross Perschnitz near Militsch. Carl became a Bäckermeister and owned a bakery at Reuschestraße 10. See the Bäckermeister Carl Friedrich Sternitzke, Reuschestraße 10, 1858 to 1868 City of Breslau.
- Heinrich Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke (1829-1905) was a Bäckermeister who lived in Breslau at Mehlgasse 39 in 1884, and later at Mehlgasse 35. He was born at Brietzen in 1829, the son of Heinrich Sternitzke (1799-1887). Heinrich (the son) married Anna Rosina Dorothea Hoffmann in 1868. They lived at Mehlgasse 35 until his death in 1905. See the discussion regarding the Bäckermeister Heinrich Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke and Anna Rosina Dorothea (née Hoffmann) Sternitzke, 1868 to 1918 City of Breslau.
- Heinrich Sternitzke (1851-February 1891) was born in 1851 at Brietzen in Trebnitz County, the son of Gottlieb Sternitzke (1816-1896) and Johanna (née Fischer) Sternitzke. The 1870 Breslau address book listed a Bäckergeselle (journeyman baker) H. Sternitzki, who lived at Stockgasse 19 IV (about 4 blocks north of the Ring, now Więzienna Street). This was probably Heinrich Sternitzke (1851-February 1891) who would have been 19 years old at the time. Heinrich married Rosine Kern around 1876 and he was a Bäckermeister at Breslau at that time. Heinrich was the brother of Pauline Louise Sternitzke (1848- 1939) whose marriage to Alois Hertwig he witnessed in Breslau in 1889. Heinrich Sternitzke (1851-1891) was a Bäckermeister (master baker) who lived in the village Rosenthal (north of Breslau) in 1889. Heinrich died in 1891 at Breslau. His death was reported by his second wife Ernestine (née Kutzner) Sternitzke. They lived in Breslau at Waterloostraße 18 at the time of Heinrich's death. See the Marriages, Family and Death of Heinrich Sternitzke, 1870 to 1938 City of Breslau.

- Karl Heinrich Julius Sternitzke (1863-c.1927) was born at Briesche between the 12th of January and the 4th of May in 1863. He was the son of Gottlieb Sternitzke (1832-1911) and Anna Christiane (née Sternitzke) Sternitzke (1833-1910). Karl Heinrich Julius Sternitzke married Bertha Luise Anna Klara Hartmann See the Family of Karl Heinrich Julius Sternitzke and Bertha Luise Anna Klara (née Hartmann) Sternitzke, 1895 to 1943 City of Breslau.

He was listed as a Bäcker in 1916, and as a Pfefferküchler (gingerbread baker) at that address in 1934, 1935 and 1937. He was listed as retired and still living at Weinstraße 34 in 1941 and 1943. See the Pfefferküchler Richard Hermann Emil Starnitzke, 1896 to 1943 City of Breslau.
- Bruno Sternitzke (c.1900-after 1943) was a Bäckermeister (master baker) who lived at Elbingstraße 5 until his marriage to Dora Eitner in 1938. They lived at Vinzenzstraße 12 from 1938 to 1943. See the discussion regarding the Bäckermeister Bruno Sternitzke, 1938 to 1943 City of Breslau.

Marriage of Anna Regina Sternitzke 1698 City of Breslau

Anna Regina Sternitzke (c.1678-after 1698) married Gottfried Hantke at the Protestant Cathedral and Parish Church of St. Maria Magdalene on the 22nd of April in 1698. Anna was the daughter of a deceased Partkrämer named Matthäus Sternitzke (before 1648-d. before 1698). The groom, Gottfried Hantke was a Musketeer of the Green Company in Breslau. The Breslau city garrison was comprised of two companies: the Grünen Compagnie (Green Company) and the Rothen Compagnie (Red Company).

A Partkrämer was a merchant who purchased goods from other merchants and then sold them at the market stalls in Breslau (perhaps at the Ring or the Neumarkt). Matthäus Sternitzke may have been a farmer (or merchant) from a village in Trebnitz County who periodically traveled to Breslau to sell locally produced goods. He would have lived from around the middle of the 17th century, but died before the wedding on the 22nd of April in 1698. The Sternitzke family was well established citizens of Domnowitz and Gross Ujeschütz during the 17th century. His daughter may have been born around 20 years before her wedding (born circa 1678). The groom may have been born around 30 years before the wedding (born circa 1668).

Organist Andreas Sternitzky 1701, 1703 & 1741 City of Breslau

A 1701 Breslau address book listed Andreas Sternitzky (before 1680-after 1703) as the Organist at the St. Salvatoris Church (outside the old city walls, two blocks south of the Zentral-Bahnhof main train station). A Breslau address book from 1703 listed Andreas Sternitzky as one of two Organisten (organists) at the St. Elizabeth Church (inside the old city walls). Johann Glättinger played the main organ keyboard and Andreas Sternitzky played the separate Positiv (choir) keyboard for accompanying the choir.

The 1741 burial record book for the St. Elisabeth Protestant Church in Breslau listed the burial of Frau Eleonora (née Scheibelin) Sternitzkÿ. She died at the age of 74 years, 6 months and 3 days. The date listed in the book was probably for the date of her burial: on the 31st of January in 1741. She was probably born around the 28th of June in 1666. She was the wife of Andreas Sternitzkÿ, who was the organist at the St. Elisabeth Church in Breslau.

Joh. And. Starnitzky was a Cammerdiener (a civil servant working for one of the government departments) in Breslau. His name was probably Johann Andreas Starnitzky (born circa 1740 – died after 1771). She was the fourth daughter of George Methner, a coin smelter working for Johann Friedrich Gentz.

The family Bible of Johann and Maria Sternitzki listed their children and their dates of birth. It is likely that all nine of their children were born in Breslau.

1. Anna Maria Elisabeth Sternitzki was born on the 26th of January in 1779, and died in 1785.
2. Christian Leonhard Gottlob Sternitzki was born on the 27th September in 1780.

Kaufmann Heinrich Sternitzke
1792 City of Breslau

Friedrich Sternitzke was a Musquetier (infantryman) from Breslau. Heinrich Sternitzke (c.1762-after 1792) was a Kaufmann (merchant) from Breslau. They were listed as Taufzeugen (baptismal sponsors) for Heinrich Wilhelm Daniel Sternitzke on the 4th of March in 1792, at Glauche in Trebnitz County. Heinrich Wilhelm Daniel Sternitzke was the son of Daniel Sternitzke (c. 1762-after 1792) and his wife Anna Rosina (née Kurtsin, Kurts or Kurtz) Sternitzke. Daniel Sternitzke was the Erbscholz (hereditary mayor) of Groß Totschen in Trebnitz County. Another sponsor for that baptism was Daniel Ziegler, a Feldwebel (senior sergeant) from the Wendsches Infanterieregiment at Breslau.

See Chapter 2, Trebnitz County in the Breslau District, Villages of Groß Totschen and Klein Totschen in Trebnitz County: the Erbscholz Daniel Sternitzke, 1792 Groß Totschen. See the 1792 death the Musquetier Friedrich Sternitzke (c.1760-1792) below. If this was the same Friedrich Sternitzke, then Friedrich was probably a brother of Daniel Sternitzke (c. 1762-after 1792), and the Kaufmann Heinrich Sternitzke may have been their brother.

Graf von Starnitzki 1798 City of Breslau

Gottfried August Thilo (7 March 1766-1 March 1855) was an artist in Breslau who was known for his oil paintings and miniature portraits. The book listed below included a list of the clients of Thilo (on pages 121-133) from 1795 to 1818, each with the price of their portraits. Among his many clients was Graf (Count) von Starnitzki who paid 22 Thalers for a miniature portrait in September of 1798.

Count von Starnitzki may have been the Herr von Czarnecki whose death was reported in October of 1845:

The last great dignitary of the Polish Crown died some days ago, at his county-seat, a short distance from Posen. His name was Herr von Czarnecki; he was the Royal Carver of Stanislaus Augustus Poniatowski, the last King of Poland, and had attained his ninetieth year. According to his expressed wish, he was buried with all the ceremony due to his former high rank and station – Allgemeine Zeitung.

This Herr von Czarnecki may have been Antoni Czarnecki who was born in 1756 and died in 1845. He was the son of Jan Antoni Czarnecki who was born around 1700 and died in 1733.

Herr von Czarnecki was probably an ancestor of Janusz Graf von Czarnecki, who was listed as missing in action in the First World War German Army casualty list from 23 October 1914. His rank was listed Visemachtmeister in the Regiment Königs-Jäger zu Pferde Nr. 1, Mobile Ersatz-Eskadron, Posen. His birthplace was listed as Golejewsko, in Rawitsch County of Posen. The village is only ten miles northeast of the city of Militsch. The village, now named Golejewko is eight miles east of the city Rawicz, and 55 miles south of the regional capital Poznań (formerly known as Posen).

Another spelling variation of the Czarnecki name was recorded in the diaries of Cardinal Ernst Adalbert von Harrach on the 10th of September in 1656 at Prag: Tscharnetzki (for Stefan Czarnecki).

Sternitzke Family Kutschers of Breslau

Many of the members of the Sternitzke family were born in small farming villages north of Breslau, and moved to Breslau to find work. Many were employed in Breslau as common laborers and janitors. Several members of the Sternitzke family were employed as Kutschers (coachmen) in Breslau. For example, Gottlieb Wilhelm Sternitzky was born in 1829 at the farming village of Pawellau in Trebnitz County. He was employed as a Kutscher in Breslau when he married Marie Johanna Louise Demmig in 1862. He then worked as a Colporteur (door-to-door salesman) in 1863. He worked as a Kohlenhandler (coal merchant) from 1886 until his death in 1890. See the Marriage and Family of Gottlieb Wilhelm Sternitzky, 1854 to 1921 City of Breslau.

The 1848 City of Breslau address book listed two widows of members of the Sternitzke family who had been employed as Kutschers.

Carl (Karl) Gottlieb Sternitzke was a Kutscher (coachman) at Breslau in 1866, 1868 and 1870. He was the son of Daniel Sternitzke who lived at Striese in Trebnitz County. See the Marriage, Family and Death of Carl Gottlieb Sternitzke, 1862 to 1941 City of Breslau.

Gottfried Sternitzke (Sternitzki) was a Kutscher at Breslau who lived at Langegasse 15 in 1884, and at Langegasse 19 in 1886 and 1887. He lived at Bahnhofstraße 2 in 1897. He was listed as the former Kutscher at that address in 1915 and 1916. Gottfried lived at Hünern in Trebnitz County prior to moving to Breslau. See the Family of Gottfried Sternitzke and Elisabeth (née Leschner) Sternitzke, 1884 to 1943 City of Breslau.

Paul Gustav Hermann Sternitzke was a Kutscher at Breslau in 1904, and an Arbeiter (laborer) in 1906 and 1907. He was born in 1877 at Kloch-Ellguth in Trebnitz County. He married Meta Hedwig Bulitz in 1903. See the Marriage and Family of Paul Gustav Hermann Sternitzke, 1903 to 1943 City of Breslau.

Franz Paul Stanetzki was a Kutscher at Breslau in 1908 and 1909. He married Pauline Luise (née Kiontke) Stanetzki. See the Family of Franz Paul Stanetzki, January 1906 to 1945 City of Breslau.

There were a few other occupational titles related to coach drivers:

- A Herrschaftliche Kutscher was a coachman for a noble family. Johann Gottlieb Starnitzke was listed as a Herrschaftliche Kutscher on baptism record for his sons in 1832 and 1833. See the Family of Johann Gottlieb Starnitzke and Louise (née Matzke) Starnitzke, 1832 to 1905 City of Breslau.

In 1856, David Sternitzke was employed as a Herrschaftliche Kutscher (a coachman for a noble family) at Schweinern in Breslau County (about 7 miles northwest of Breslau). He was the youngest son of the Bauergutsbesitzer (farmstead owner) Gottlieb Sternitzke who lived at Obernigk in Trebnitz County. See the Marriage of David Sternitzke, 1856 Schweinern, Obernigk, Hünern and Breslau.

- A Lohnkutscher was a hired coachman, possibly employed by a merchant. Christoph Stanitzke was a Haushälter (janitor) in 1824 when he married Marie Elisabet Stulpe. He may have been the Lohnkutscher (hired coachman) Sternetzky listed in the 1832 Breslau address book. His widow may have the Lohnkutscher widow Sternitzky listed in the 1852 Breslau address book. She was listed as Marie Elisabet (née Stulpe) Stanitzke in the baptism record of Anna Louise Pauline Mentzel at the St. Bernhardin Protestant Church in 1856. See the Marriage of Christoph Stanitzke, 1824 City of Breslau.
- A Droschkenkutscher was a carriage cab driver who often lived close to the train stations to pick up passengers. The word Droschke is the German spelling for the Russian word droschky, which was a type of carriage. Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke (1833-1898) was born at Karoschke in Trebnitz County. He was a Kutscher in Breslau in 1858, a Droschkenkutscher from 1860 to 1868 and then a Droschkenbesitzer (carriage owner) from 1868 until his death in 1898. See the Marriages and Family of Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke, 25 January 1858 and 1 July 1867 City of Breslau.

- A Droschkenführer was another word for a carriage cab driver. Emilie Minna Valeska Sternitzke was a daughter of Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke (1833-1898). Minna married the Droschkenführer (coach driver) Johann Karl Josef May at the Elftausend Jungfrauen Protestant Church in Breslau on the 30th of September in 1889. See the Family of Karl May and Emilie Minna Valeska née Sternitzke, 1889 to 1913 City of Breslau.

The Droschkenführer Karl Richard Oskar Sternitzke was one of sons of the Droschkenbesitzer Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke (1833-1898). See the Marriage and Family of Karl Richard Oskar Sternitzke, 18 October 1894 to 1937 City of Breslau.

- A Droschkenbesitzer was the owner of his own carriage. One of sons of the Droschkenbesitzer Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke (1833-1898) was the Droschkenbesitzer Heinrich Robert Wilhelm Sternitzke. See the Marriage and Family of Heinrich Robert Wilhelm Sternitzke, 29 December 1890 to 1908 City of Breslau.

Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke (1833-1898) may have been a brother of the Droschkenbesitzer (carriage owner) Ernst Sternitzke, who was born around 1835. See the Family of Ernst Sternitzke and Rosina (née Kroll) Sternitzke, 1865 to 1912 City of Breslau.

The Droschkenbesitzer Karl Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke was born at Klein Schwundnig (in Trebnitz County) around the 26th of November in 1850. See the Death of Karl Friedrich Wilhelm Sternitzke, 26 October 1909 City of Breslau.

Sternitzke Family Births in Breslau in the 19th and 20th Centuries

Below is a table listing the known births in Breslau for members of the Sternitzke family (and the known variations of the family name). Most of this information came from records that were digitally scanned and made available on the Internet by the National Archive in Wrocław (Archiwum Państwowe we Wrocławiu). The scanned records include the birth, marriage and death records from the registry offices (Standesamts) of the Breslau administrative districts (Standesamtsbezirke) I, II and III. Breslau was separated into two administrative districts (I and II) in 1874, with district I including the north and center parts of the city. District II included the southern part of the city. In 1891, the northern part of district I became district III, probably due to the growth of the northern and western parts of the city. As the city grew, the neighboring villages became incorporated with Breslau and became suburbs, resulting in districts IV through IX.

We are fortunate to have access to scanned copies of the districts I and III, because many of the Sternitzke family members settled on the north side of Breslau near the main road and the railroad line from Trebnitz County. Unfortunately, the scanned records are incomplete and some are difficult to read due to water damage, probably due to the Second World War and the 1997 Great Flood of the Oder River. In many cases the original main official (Haupt) record book is missing, but the duplicate (Neben) record books survived and were also scanned. The Haupt record books are more valuable to us because they included the original signatures of our family members, allowing us to compare signatures and verify the identities of individuals in multiple records (such as the birth records of several children and the marriage records). But, even with the duplicate record books supplementing the missing original records, there are still many gaps in the records due to books that are missing or too damaged to scan.

The website for the National Archive in Wrocław (Archiwum Państwowe we Wrocławiu at <http://www.archeion.net/atom/index.php>) is in Polish. A genealogist named Radoslaw Zanh created a website in German (at <http://ahnenforscher.pl/>) with hyperlinks to some of the scanned record books. Unfortunately, the URLs (Internet addresses) for the record books have changed over the years, possibly due to different companies performing the scanning of the records for the Polish Archives. Some of the *Geburtsregister*s (birth records), *Heiratsregister*s (marriage records) and *Sterberegister*s (death records) are also now available at the Standesamt I in Berlin. See <http://www.breslau-wroclaw.de/de/breslau/source/sa1berlin/> for the list of their records.

The website for the National Archive in Wrocław also includes scanned records from the der Haupt- und Pfarr-Kirche zu St. Elisabet (St. Elisabeth Church) in Breslau. It was the primary Protestant church at Breslau, so the records for some of the other Protestant churches in the area were included in the records at St. Elisabeth.

The baptism records from 1785 to 1946 were reviewed and the results were added either to the table below, or to the sections regarding the villages identified as the home of the parents (such as Opperau and Pöpelwitz). The baptism record books were written in three formats: the Tauf Bericht, the Taufbuch and the Tauf Register. The Tauf Bericht books included the applications for baptism, and were signed by a parent or midwife. The Taufbuch books were the church records of the baptisms. The Tauf Register books were later completed for each year as an index of the baptisms that were performed at the church.

The death records were recorded in books titled Begräbnissbuch or Totenbuch, with a series of index books titled Totenregister. As the city grew, the new cemeteries were created farther from the center of the city. Some of the Sternitzke family from Breslau were buried at the cemeteries at the villages of Gräbschen, Pohlanowitz, Rosenthal and Schmiedefeld.

| 25 March 1869 | Gustav Wilhelm Hermann Starnitzki (Sternitzky) | Christiane Sternitzky |
| Notes: The mother of Gustav was identified on his 1903 marriage record as Christiane née Starnitzki, who was later married to the Maschinenheizer (boiler stoker) Scholz. Gustav's baptismal record shows that his mother's maiden name was Sternitzky. The Taufberichte for Gustav's baptism was completed by a midwife who spelled Christiane's name as Starnitzki. There must have been some confusion at the time of his marriage regarding the legal spelling of his name, because a note was written on his baptismal record. The note (dated the 30th of May in 1903) stated his mother's name was verified to be Sternitzky, by the Royal Government Department of Churches and Education at Breslau. Wilhelm Sternitzke

Johanna Kalewa

Notes: The Droschkenkutscher (carriage cab driver) Wilhelm Sternitzke and his wife lived at Hinterhäuser 20. The misspelling of Johanna's last name (Kalewa instead of Cholewa) may have been because the Taufberichte document was completed by a midwife. The Taufberichte record shows that Wilhelm was Protestant and Johanna was a Catholic. The baptismal sponsors were Fraulein Louise Sternitzke (daughter of the Handelsmann Friedrich Sternitzke in Hochkirch in Trebnitz County, a Protestant), the Handelsmann August Seifert (a Protestant) and the Eisenbahnbeamter Adam Opalofsky (a Catholic). The St. Elisabeth Church death record book (for 1872 to 1884) includes a record of the death of Max Sternetzky, the son of the Droschkenkutscher Wilhelm Sternetzky. The address was listed as Hinterhäuser 20. Max died at the age of 8 months old, on the 17th of December in 1872. He was buried on the 21st of December 1872 at Schmiedefeld Village Cemetery (about 4 miles west of the St. Elisabeth Church. Max died from a Halsgeschwer (an ulcer of the throat or neck).
